4,000 CHICAGO MEN WILL GET JOBS IN FORESTS

Begin Mobilization of 250,000 Today.

Washington, D. C., April 5.—(AP)—Mobilization of the first 25,000 recruits for the conservation corps will be started tomorrow with four government departments speeding preparations in a bustling atmosphere reminiscent of wartime in efforts to carry out President Roosevelt's attack on idleness.

At the White House orders were issued for the war department to be ready for the first movement of men tomorrow, but it was learned at the labor department that the initial recruits will not enter conditioning camps until Friday and Saturday.

Allotment of the first contingent of 25,000 men from 17 cities in the eastern half of the nation was completed today. Others will be selected in additional cities before the end of the week, with the President planning to have 250,000 men at work before July 1.

Registration of applicants will not be undertaken by the labor department at public places as previously planned. Instead unmarried men between 18 and 25 years old, who have dependent relatives for whose benefit they are willing to allot a substantial portion of their $30 monthly wage, will be selected.

Relief Agencies Pick Men.

The labor department announced the selections will be made "by official, established state or city relief administrations which are actively assisting those known to be the most in need of employment and who have records of their names, addresses, and circumstances."

There will be registration of applicants at public places only in case this class of young men has been provided for completely.

After each group of recruits has been conditioned for about two weeks at military camps they will be moved to work projects in national forests and parks. In addition, projects on state and private lands will be undertaken and this phase of the reorganization plans will be discussed at a meeting tomorrow of state foresters with Maj. R. Y. Stuart, head of the United States forest service.

Quotas by Cities.

The quotas of the first movement follow: New York City, 7,500; Buffalo, 600; Chicago, 4,000; Philadelphia, 3,000; Pittsburgh, 900; Detroit, 2,100; Cleveland, 1,000; Cincinnati, 500; St. Louis, 900; Kansas City, 400; Baltimore., 1,000; Boston, 900; Milwaukee, 600; Washington, 500; Minneapolis and St. Paul, 600, and Newark, 500.

A work camp in George Washington national forest between Luray and Edinburg, Va., is expected to be the first put into operation. The forest service is prepared to use men immediately at other camp sites in Pennsylvania, upper New England, the Carolinas, Georgia, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Florida, to meet the occupancy needs of the first recruits.

Thousands of projects including erosion control and the combatting of forestry disease are ready in every other national forest, particularly in the west where most of the 161 million acres of national forest area is located.

CHICAGO AWAITS WORD.

Chicago's emergency relief officials last night were awaiting instructions from Washington on recruiting this city's first allotment of 4,000 men for the Roosevelt forest program. However, the relief commission is ready on a moment's notice to select the men, Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary, said last night.

"We have anticipated such instructions and are in a position to make the selections," he said. "We have data on every charity dependent and we can fit into any scheme on organization at any moment."

PROJECT FOR SKOKIE

A proposal to transform the Skokie marsh into a series of wooded lagoons as a part of President Roosevelt's reforestation plan for relief of the idle, was approved yesterday by President Whealan of the forest preserve board and the members of his advisory committee, of which Gen. Abel Davis is chairman.

If President Roosevelt's aids and forestry officials at Washington approve, the project will give employment to 1,000 men all summer and up to about Nov. 1. Charles G. Sauers, superintendent of the forest preserves, sent a letter giving details of the plan Repeal Forces Warn Against Excesses.

The stroke of midnight will be the knell of one-half of 1 per cent. One minute after that hour tonight the sale of beer 3.2 per cent alcoholic will be legal in Illinois and nineteen other states. Uncle Sam has released his grip up to that point after 13 years.

Chicago is ready to celebrate the return of the foaming brew. Fleets of trucks with engines running, freight cars with engines attached—all loaded with kegs and cases of legal beer—will be standing in the brewery yards of the city as midnight approaches. With the first stroke of the clock that marks the beginning of April 7 the gates will swing wide and the first cargoes will be hurried to retailers of beverages.

For a Mild Celebration.

Indications are that customers will not be wanting. Downtown clubs, cafés and a few of the hotels are going ahead with their plans to have a mild celebration of the so-called New Beer's eve, in spite of warnings from those who fear that too earnest lifting of steins too early—especially if preceded by the use of bootleg liquor—may cause a reaction against efforts to thrust prohibition intolerance further into the discard.

"Why shouldn't there be a little celebration?" asked one night club manager. "Doesn't the country need to add a little gayety to its gloom, and is there a better time than right after the legal restriction is first lifted to see whether 3.2 beer can be trusted to add it? We'll have our celebration, to begin as soon as the supplies can reach us."

Ruppert Tries to Delay It.

In New York yesterday Jacob Ruppert, president of the United States Brewers' association, issued a recommendation that breweries delay deliveries until 6 or 7 o'clock tomorrow. Representatives of the Atlas, Prima and other Chicago companies said the advice came too late.

"We are acting under tremendous pressure for beer supplies," declared Anton Laadt of the Atlas company. "Our customers want beer not only in Chicago but in all the surrounding territory. We are undertaking to deliver 100,000 cases and 2,000 barrels by Saturday night. We would get swamped if we waited."

Joseph Dubin, editor of the Brewery Age, called attention to one brewery which has on hand orders for 250,000 cases of beer, two-thirds of all it has been able to manufacture and age.

Col. Reeves Objects.

The attitude of the Chicago brewery officials was severely criticized by Col. Ira L. Reeves, district director of the Crusaders, who are striving to get rid of prohibition entirely. He referred to the celebration which is contemplated as endangering full dry law repeal.

"The objection of some Chicago hotel men to a midnight gin and liquor brawl is justified," he said. "The stubborn attitude of those Chicago brewers who insist on midnight deliveries clearly indicates to us that they oppose repeal of the prohibition amendment and have lined up with the drys and the bootleggers."

The action in opposition to a celebration, taken a few days ago by the hotel men's association, has been rescinded, but a number of the hotels are refusing to encourage a general beer drinking festival as an inauguration for the new era. The Bismarck is an exception. Its management explained that its German-American clientele had been considered and that the patrons were entitled to say a few "prosits" as soon as the government authorized them to.

Dry Agents Still with Us.

Like the ghosts of bygone, or at least bygoing, days prohibition agents will circulate in the celebrant crowds to see that not too much gin and bathtub whisky gets mixed up with the legal brew.

But their activities are to be rather strictly limited. They have no funds with which to buy illegal drinks, so they can tell the courts about it and they are not allowed to molest the merry patrons who carry their own nips on their hips.

State's Attorney Courtney said he expected no disorders.

THE FIREWORKS START

Surgical Feat Removes Pin, Saving Baby

(Picture on Back Page.)

It was bath time for the baby last Tuesday morning and Mrs. Benjamin Zeigmund, 6636 North Washtenaw avenue, put 10 weeks' old Marilyn, face up, on a dressing table. She stood over the child, an open safety pin in her mouth. The antics of the child caused Mrs. Zeigmund to laugh. The pin fell from her mouth, dropped into Marilyn's open mouth and Marilyn promptly swallowed it.

Too Young for Operation.

Dr. Gustav G. Herpe was summoned and he took the infant to the Lakeview hospital. An X-ray photograph showed that the open pin had lodged in the lower part of the stomach. Dr. Herpe decided that the baby was too young to survive an operation to remove the pin by opening the stomach.

Yesterday, however, after a thirty hour wait in which the dangerous obstruction had not yet disappeared, Dr. Herpe resorted to an unusual surgical method. He made an incision in the abdominal wall and took Marilyn's tiny stomach in his hand, and by careful manipulation succeeded in closing the safety pin inside the stomach walls. No instruments were used except in making the abdominal incision.

Baby Out of Danger.

Thus the principal peril to the infant's life was removed. The stomach was replaced and the incision closed. Then Dr. Herpe waited. After a while baby Marylin regurgitated the closed safety pin. Last night she was pronounced "out of danger."

SPANISH LINER STILL AGROUND OFF MIAMI COAST

Miami, Fla., April 5.—(AP)—Her nose rammed across a coral reef, the Spanish liner Marques de Comillas, carrying 104 passengers, a crew of 165 and a cargo of wines and preserves, remained aground at Carysfort light, south of here, tonight despite efforts to shove free with her own power.

She appeared in no immediate danger, although she listed slightly on the left side. She went aground last night.

The tug Relief from Key West and the coast guard cutter Unalga from Fort Lauderdale rode at anchor nearby, ready to lend assistance. The Relief was expected to attempt to float the Marques during the night or tomorrow.

FLAMES DESTROY LOCKER BUILDING OF RAVISLOE CLUB

Damage estimated at $50,000 to $75,000 was caused last night by a spectacular fire which destroyed the locker room building of the Ravisloe Country club at Homewood.

Fire departments from Hazel Crest, Flossmoor, Harvey, Homewood, and Chicago Heights were called to fight the flames, but were hampered in their work by a shortage of water. The fire spread rapidly through the structure, which measured about 100 by 100 feet. The firemen were able, however, to protect the main clubhouse.

Frank Murray, manager of the club, said that the loss on the locker building would exceed $30,000.

ROBBER TRAPPED BY TRYING TO BE TOO EFFICIENT

Last Tuesday night Floyd McNulty, 21 years old, 2327 West Adams street, held up Norman Perrigo outside his restaurant at 6335 South Central avenue, and took $11 and checks for $40 from him. McNulty did some thinking and then called Perrigo on the telephone.

"I have found $40 worth of checks belonging to you," he said. "Somebody dropped them on a street car. Will you give $5 for them?"

"Sure," said Perrigo. "Meet me at 63d and Crawford."

The rendezvous was kept not only by the principals in the transaction but also by a squad of policemen. McNulty was arrested and confessed.

SEIZE 83 BEGGARS IN LOOP; NOT ONE A RESIDENT HERE

Eighty-three beggars, not one a Chicagoan, were arrested in loop streets last night as the anti-panhandler drive continued. Sergt. John Gapinski seized forty-three, and Sergt. Ray Crane grabbed forty. One of the prisoners, Joseph Vanis of Paterson, N. J., had forty dimes in his pockets. Supervising Lieutenant Charles Grattan, who ordered the drive, said that not one of the beggars had lived in Chicago more than a few months.

Two Stench Bombs Blamed on 3.2 Beer Racketeers

Stench bombs were tossed last night into two south side saloons, supposedly by racketeers trying to force the proprietors to purchase legal beer through them. The places were those of Pierce Wilbur, 6850 Stony Island avenue, and Charles Egan, 7007 Stony Island avenue.

Science Ready to Trap Star's Rays for Fair

The heat rays of the star Arcturus when they reach the earth after a journey of 40 years across space are about equal to the rays from a single candle five miles away. Preparations were completed yesterday at the Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago, at Williams Bay, Wis., for opening A Century of Progress exposition on June 1 by trapping this infinitesimal bit of energy from Arcturus and converting it into electricity.

The feeble beam of starlight which has been speeding towards us at the rate of 186,000 miles a second ever since the Columbian exposition of 1893 will be caught by the giant 40 inch telescope at Yerkes. The telescope will concentrate the light from the star at the lower end of the big tube, at a point called the focus.

To Fall on Delicate Surface.

A delicate instrument, the photoelectric cell, will be set up at the focus and the light will fall on the sensitive potassium surface which converts light into electric current.

The light of Arcturus will generate a current that is about a millionth of a millionth of the current flowing through an ordinary electric light. The scientists at the observatory will build up this tiny current by means of specially constructed detecting and amplifying tubes and the output from this amplifier will be transmitted over wires to throw the switch controlling the great light in the Hall of Science.

Shows Energy Reception.

"The practical value of this experiment is not great," said Dr. Otto Struve, director of the observatory, "but it demonstrates that our earth is receiving vast amounts of energy from the sun and the stars. If all the light received from the stars such as Arcturus could be converted into mechanical energy the result would indeed be enormous."

The idea of opening the exposition in this novel manner was suggested some months ago by the retired director of Yerkes, Dr. Edwin B. Frost. He has been invited to make a brief address just prior to the flashing on of the light.

Charge Nitti's Police Accuser with Perjury

Detective Harry Lang, former member of a police squad attached to the mayor's office, was arrested on a charge of perjury last evening after a turbulent scene in the courtroom of Judge Rudolph Desort. Lang was to have been the state's witness against Frank Nitti, a Capone gang chief, who was on trial before Judge Desort on a charge of assault with intent to kill Lang. Lang and Nitti both were shot during a raid led by Lang on Dec. 19 last year on a loop office which the police called a gang rendezvous.

The detective surprised the crowded courtroom yesterday when he answered a question by Defense Attorney Ben J. Short by saying: "I don't know who shot me."

This reply threw the prosecutors and defense attorneys into an uproar and for a time they were all speaking at once. The angry prosecutors were demanding to be heard on a perjury proposition and the defense attorneys were upholding the detective, who a moment before had been considered their foe.

Promise Surprise Testimony.

Still another surprise is looked for when the trial is resumed this morning. Prosecutors Charles A. Dougherty and James A. Brown said after the adjournment of court.

Detective Chris Callahan, who was called in at the last minute to assist the squad from the mayor's office to make the raid on Nitti's office, will be put on the witness stand to tell what he says is the true story of the shooting. His testimony, the prosecutors said, will be to the effect that Detective Lang shot Nitti, who was unarmed, and then apparently shot himself.

The scene is then expected to shift, according to the prosecutors, to the grand jury room, where Nitti and the policemen involved in the prosecution of him will be asked to explain the situation. The prosecutors said Nitti might be called upon to appear as the prosecuting witness against the policeman.

Detective on Witness Stand.

The hearing before a jury was proceeding calmly yesterday with Detective Lang testifying that he and Detective Harry Miller, the other member of the mayor's office squad, went to raid Nitti's office after a two day observation revealed that "thieves and hoodlums" made the offices a rendezvous. Defense Attorneys Short and Rocco De Stefano previously had been clamoring for a hearing on a petition to suppress any evidence presumably taken by the police from the offices without a search warrant.

The judge decided the time had come for such a hearing and the jury was excused from the room.

Prosecutor Dougherty asked a few perfunctory questions to show that the police had a right to enter the premises without a warrant. He asked nothing about the shooting affray.

As Attorney Short arose to cross-examine Detective Lang, Nitti sat tense in his chair, muttering imprecations against the policeman.

"Who shot you?" was the first question by the defense lawyers.

"I don't know who shot me," the policeman answered.

HOPES TO MEET BACK SALARIES WITH WARRANTS

President Orville J. Taylor of the school board yesterday announced the board's conviction that it is impossible to get more than a small fraction of the cash needed to bring up to date the long unpaid salaries of school employés. The board has abandoned hope of a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan at this time, he said, and by mutual agreement it severed its relations yesterday with the Dewey tax warrant sales committee.

As a result the board will offer to clear up the pay arrears of teachers and other workers with 1932 tax warrants. These school employés have had only one month's pay in cash since the schools opened last September, and none at all this year. On April 1 back school salaries totaled about $29,500,000. The board hopes to get $1,700,000 in cash from the banks to clear up June, 1932, salary arrears. Of this the teachers will get one week's pay and the relatively smaller group of civil service workers two weeks.

Marks Turbulent Day.

President Taylor's announcement was made at a board meeting attended by some 500 teachers, and came at the end of a turbulent day which started with an abortive strike staged by pupils in a few schools. About 15,000 of the half million pupils in the schools walked out. School authorities expressed confidence last night that the pupils will be back in their classes today and that there will be no spread of the trouble.

Ostensibly the strike was staged in sympathy with the unpaid teachers, although teachers disclaimed any connection with the movement and some of them remarked, rather acidly, that their pupils had failed to exhibit their sympathy in the classrooms recently.

Suspect Red Agitators.

Police and several school principals expressed the belief that young communist agitators had taken part in organizing the strikes at a number of schools, aided in their efforts by the general schoolboy instinct to skip classes whenever an excuse is offered. A girl agitator, Yetta Barshefsky, who was expelled from Crane Junior college for attempting to organize a demonstration there, has been arrested several times for taking part in communist demonstrations.

Trustee Joseph P. Savage, who introduced a resolution at the school board meeting for an investigation of the strike, withdrew it after he was informed that educational executives had already started one. He expressed the conviction that teachers had nothing to do with the walkout, and warned students that disorders in the schools will have the worst possible effect on efforts being made to obtain pay for their instructors.

Confer with Sargent.

The board meeting opened after the school trustees had spent three hours in conference with Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the citizens' committee on public expenditures. The withdrawal of the school board from the tax warrant sales plan will not affect the efforts of the committee headed by Charles S. Dewey to sell warrants of the city and county for pay roll purposes, Mr. Sargent said later.

The school board had pledged itself to issue warrants against not more than 50 per cent of its 1932 tax levy, as did the other governments, Mr. Sargent explained, and those pledges have been an important argument in the sale of warrants by the Dewey committee, Mr. Sargent explained.

Since the payment of its employés in warrants will require more than this 50 per cent limit, the school board will rescind its pledge and the Dewey committee will make no further efforts to sell school warrants. To date the committee has obtained subscriptions for about $14,000,000 worth of warrants, of which $6,500,000 are school warrants. These latter subscriptions are now automatically canceled.

Hope to Validate Warrants.

The pledges are contingent upon the committee selling the full amount of warrants offered, some $42,000,000, including the school warrants. Mr. Sargent expressed the conviction that the majority of the subscribers will release the committee from this obligation of selling all the warrants and take up their subscriptions as soon as Acting Mayor Corr or his successor is invested with legal power to sign the warrants.

"With the warrants held in the city aggregate of funds and those still to be issued by the school board, we will have about $36,000,000 in 1932 warrants," said President Taylor. "The city will be asked to exchange $20,000,000 worth of 1932 warrants which it holds for 1933 warrants. Before those warrants can be issued, however, the city council must approve the school board's 1933 budget and tax levy ordinances."

The city council held an informal meeting yesterday and will not meet again until April 17, when it will receive the report of its committee on committees and organize its membership, just elected. An attempt probably will be made by the school trustees to have the council organize and get down to business at an earlier date.

President Taylor and Mr. Sargent are to confer today with Acting Mayor Corr. Later Mr. Sargent will interview bankers in an attempt to get the $1,700,000 for the June pay day.

Seek Acceptances at Par.

"If the warrants are issued," said President Taylor after the meeting, "we appeal to the public from the standpoint of civic patriotism to do all within its power to maintain their value through acceptance of the warrants at par by merchants, landlords, and all individuals, firms, and corporations to whom they may be offered.

"I am convinced that we cannot have any relief from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and although we appreciate the efforts of the Dewey committee we are convinced that due to the bank moratorium and the depression it is a physical impossibility for the committee to sell these warrants."

At the close of the board meeting Milton Raymer, a teacher at Tilden High school, pushed forward from the crowd of spectators and began a speech. President Taylor asked him what he wanted to say.

"I want to tell the teachers and the board," said Raymer, "that there is no chance of getting any money at all—that you are just pushing things further along."

"I move that we adjourn," said Trustee Helen Hefferan. "Today happens to be my birthday and I have a tea party to attend."

The teachers booed as the vote was taken on her motion and the meeting broke up. They stayed in the board rooms and Raymer continued speaking.

Brokers said yesterday that if the board carries out its announced intention of distributing to its employés more than $26,000,000 worth of 1932 tax warrants, some such appeal to civic patriotism as President Taylor mentioned will be necessary to save the teachers from serious loss through depreciation of the warrants.

Warrants Sell at 90.

The 1931 warrants of the school board are now selling at about 90, and a broker who specializes in tax warrant sales predicted that if such a large amount of 1932 warrants are dumped on the market their price would be at least ten points lower than that of the 1931 warrants, which are now being redeemed from tax collections.

Teachers in Chicago schools now have seven and a half months' pay due them, and civil service employés, who work through the summer months, nine and a half months. In addition to two half monthly pay installments which the employés received in cash, both before the first of the year, they were also given tax warrants six weeks ago. The teachers get warrants equal to twenty days' pay, and civil service workers a full month's pay. Since last September the board has also made available to employés who refused to take scrip, warrants for varying periods during 1931, for which they were still unpaid.

STRIKE HITS 4 SCHOOLS

The strike of public school pupils yesterday, confined to a few south and west side high schools and one or two grammar schools where the walkouts were apparently incited by high school pupils, took place while Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan was in Springfield with a delegation of teachers. Gov. Horner received them and promised to consider their request that he call a conference to consider the financial problem of the city's schools.

In Mr. Bogan's absence, the assistant superintendents of the school system started an investigation of the strike, and took measures to end it. Both the higher executives and the teachers maintained that the unpaid teachers had not only had nothing to do with organizing the disorder, but had done everything in their power to prevent it.

Believes Discipline Destroyed.

From Miss Agnes Clohesy, head of the elementary teachers union, came the assertion, however, that teachers' worry over their financial problems and their discussion of them in the hearing of their pupils has had a serious effect in destroying discipline in the schools.

"The teacher necessarily thinks of her own troubles 24 hours a day," said Miss Clohesy. "She colors her teaching with this philosophy, which tends to encourage radical tendencies in the students, and is so engrossed in her own troubles that she lets discipline slip.

"The authority of the teacher is based in a large measure on the respect for her held by the pupil. When the pupil sees and hears that the teacher is unable to collect her pay, and listens to the teacher complain about her plight, it is impossible to have respect for that teacher. Unless something is done to return to a normal state a general breakdown of the school system is in sight."

Four Schools Hit.

The majority of the student strikers were recruited from Calumet, Englewood and Crane Technical High schools and the McAllister branch of Tilden Technical.

Early reports were that two-thirds of the students at Crane Junior college had left their classes, but this was denied by J. L. Hancock, dean of students, and by the students themselves. Two students of radical tendencies, one labeled a known communist by police, were expelled, but Mr. Hancock said that the strikers thought to be college students really came from the adjoining Crane High school. In view of recent demands by school trustees that the college be closed as an economy measure, student leaders pointed out that a strike there would be the worst possible tactics on the part of the students.

Parade to Hyde Park.

Students from Englewood High school paraded to Hyde Park High school to endeavor to persuade the students there to join them. Dr. Hiram B. Loomis, gray bearded principal of the school who will end 27 years in that post when he retires in June, was pitching for a team of faculty men in the annual indoor baseball game with women teachers. He hurried before his students, clad in sweat shirt, knickers and sneakers, and stopped the walkout.

Principals in several other high schools called student meetings when they learned of the strike movement and kept their pupils at their classes. Only a few grade schools were affected, and to the majority of them appeared later in the day streams of indignant parents with their striking youngsters in tow, to put them back in their classes.

SENATE TO VOTE ON THIRTY HOUR WEEK BILL TODAY

Joe Robinson Fights to Increase Limit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—With five more hours of debate, the senate today prepared for a vote tomorrow on the Black bill to prohibit from interstate commerce articles coming from manufacturies employing their workers more than six hours a day or 30 hours a week.

Preceding the final vote will come a roll call on an amendment proposed today by Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, to raise the limit to eight hours a day and 36 hours a week.

Hinges on Roosevelt Attitude.

Predictions were many that the bill would be thus amended and that as amended it would be passed. But whether the measure will be sent forward in the house will depend, Speaker Rainey announced today, on whether or not President Roosevelt is willing to accept it as part of his legislative program.

President Roosevelt's attitude has not been revealed, though a possible glimpse of it was disclosed during the debate in which Senator Robinson argued for his amendment over the objections of Senators Johnson of California, Norris of Nebraska, Long of Louisiana, and Robinson of Indiana, all of whom claimed that the eight hour maximum would kill the six hour principle sought to be established by the bill.

Tartly, Senator Robinson of Indiana asked his Arkansas namesake whether the amendment was offered at the request of President Roosevelt. In reply, the Arkansas senator said he believed "it would be acceptable."

The senate adopted an amendment by Senator Tydings [Dem., Md.], excluding employés of newspapers and periodicals from the provisions of the bill.

Lewis' Plea Is Rejected.

Senator Lewis [Dem., Ill.], was less successful with an amendment to exempt employés engaged in preparing perishable products of live stock, poultry, and milk. Opponents of the amendment declared it designed to aid the packers. It was beaten on a roll call vote of 44 to 34 after Senator Lewis had remarked with heat that the senate seemed willing to "pack the canners of the northwest, but can the packers of the middle west." The remark alluded to the Dill amendment accepted yesterday exempting workers in canneries.

An amendment by Senator Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], approved by the senate eliminated from the bill "officers, executives, superintendents and their personal and immediate clerical assistants."

Future Savings of Billion on Veterans Program Is Shown

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt announced today that curtailment of veterans' hospitalization benefits in the recently enacted economy law will spell a future saving to the government of more than one billion dollars in hospital construction and operating costs.

By eliminating the necessity for new hospital and domiciliary facilities, the President said, the economy act will effect an estimated saving in construction and operating costs of $1,203,000,000. Such an amount, it was stated, would have been necessary to meet maximum requirements under the old laws.

Huge Operating Saving.

Estimates furnished the President by Veterans' Administrator Frank T Hines indicated a saving of 160 million dollars in actual construction costs, and a saving of $1,043,000,000 in operating and equipment costs.

The future savings, it was pointed out, are in addition to the estimated 400 million dollars slash in veterans' costs made directly through the provisions of the economy act reducing or abolishing veterans' payments.

White House Statement.

The White House statement, based on Brig. Gen. Hines' estimate, was in part as follows:

"The act of March 20, 1933, by eliminating the necessity for any further construction of hospital or domiciliary facilities will effect estimated future savings in construction and operating costs of $1,203,000,000 in the amount which would have been needed to meet the estimated maximum requirements for these services under the laws in effect prior thereto. The savings indicated are over and above those in connection with the operation of both hospital and domiciliary facilities which will prospectively accrue through material reductions in the present load for these services by reason of the provisions of the act of March 20, 1933, and regulations issued thereunder."

Roosevelt Calls for Cuts.

As a supplemental budget balancing move President Roosevelt has called upon all the executive departments of the governments to make further reductions in contemplated expenditures for the coming fiscal year. According to apparently authentic reports the cuts will aggregate around 250 million dollars.

Figures suggested to the navy department by the budget office call for reduction of its 330 million dollar credits at the treasury for 1934 by between $50,000,000 and $70,000,000. A part of this cut may be effected through transferring new warship construction from the navy's regular budget to the public works program. Other naval economy moves decided upon include the operation of fewer ships afloat. Enlistments also probably will be allowed to drop. Lakehurst almost certainly will be closed. Whether other shore stations will be closed has not been announced. Most of the warship repair work will be done on the east coast.

Would Balance Budget.

While officials declined to admit that the new economics represented direct orders, all department heads were making preparations today to make new reductions. The purpose of the new move, it was said, is to so reduce expenditures as to balance the 1934 budget. If the new economies amount to 250 million the total Roosevelt reductions up to date would total in the neighborhood of three-quarters of a billion dollars. Other reductions are to be effected through reorganizations.

The war department cut was estimated today at $40,000,000, although no definite figures were available.

DISABLED VETS UNABLE TO JOIN IN POPPY DAY

Unless they are permitted to sell their official flower, the forget-me-not, the Disabled American Veterans cannot actively participate in poppy day next month, Howard R. Roberts informed the Veterans' Poppy Day association last night at a meeting in the Great Northern hotel. Roberts headed a delegation of disabled war veterans attending the meeting.

Roberts explained that permission to sell the poppy was refused by the national body of the D. A. V. in accordance with a national rule which can be amended only by the national convention meeting in Cincinnati in June.

A motion to amend the by-laws of the Poppy Day association to permit the disabled veterans to sell forget-me-nots, was defeated. A committee was then appointed representing the five veteran groups composing the poppy association, to determine a way in which the D. A. V. may be allocated a proportionate amount of the proceeds of poppy day.

BRITAIN SENDING MACDONALD FOR ROOSEVELT TALK

Debts, Arms, Trade Up for Decision Tomorrow.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—Information oozing out of official sources here indicates that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald has two exceedingly good reasons for his decision to visit Washington at this time for conversations with President Roosevelt. The premier, according to a London cablegram, probably will sail April 15.

One is that Mr. MacDonald believes the way has been paved for an agreement on the reduction, if not the cancellation, of the four billion dollar war debt Great Britain owes to the United States. The other is that since the United States suspended gold payments and put an embargo on the export of gold Great Britain has become intensely interested in the restoration of the dollar as an international medium of exchange, to avert Britain's own premature return to a gold basis.

News Comes from London.

The news that Mr. MacDonald is coming to Washington emanated from London. The administration expressed pleasure at the intelligence, but made it understood that the prime minister is not coming in response to a specific invitation to discuss debt reduction. Instead he is coming because Mr. Roosevelt thought Mr. MacDonald would be helpful in discussing world economic rehabilitation and disarmament.

To explain the attitude of the administration, the White House issued this statement by the President:

"In the course of informal exchanges of views between the British and ourselves regarding the general economic situation and the problem of disarmament, the President has felt that a visit to Washington by the prime minister would be helpful.

Visit Previously Discussed.

"The President ever since his first conversation with the British ambassador at Warm Springs has emphasized the hope that the prime minister would come over."

The decision of the prime minister to visit Washington was reached after discussions he had with Norman H. Davis, Mr. Roosevelt's European ambassador at large. Reports that Mr. Davis had led Mr. MacDonald to believe that Mr. Roosevelt is ready to knock about 700 million dollars off the British debt to America were denied by Secretary of State Cordell Hull. Mr. Hull displayed a cablegram from Mr. Davis declaring them unfounded.

MacDonald Hints Reduction.

It is recalled, however, that Mr. MacDonald said some weeks ago he would go to Washington if preliminary negotiations should establish a reasonable prospect of an agreement with the American government to scale down the debt. He made it clear that he had no intention of coming to Washington merely to identify himself with a fiasco which would be politically ruinous to him at home.

Administration officials are emphatic in denial that any assurances have been given to the British of an eventual reduction of the debt. What has been done, they assert, is to give the British to understand, in no uncertain manner, that the President regards the removal of tariff, exchange and other barriers to the revival of world trade of paramount importance and the war debts of secondary importance.

Hinges on Trade Action.

Furthermore, it is stated, it has been effectively borne in upon the British that the President will not be disposed to consider debt reduction pleas unless a satisfactory agreement can be reached on the economic problems. The British government endeavored to negotiate a debt reduction without making any economic concessions.

Neville Chamberlain, the British chancellor of the exchequer, said flatly that economic concessions would not be swapped for debt reduction. When, however, they found the President unwilling to discuss debt reduction before seeing what economic concessions were to be made, the British capitulated and began the negotiations which have been proceeding between Mr. Hull and Ambassador Lindsay for the last fortnight. At the session today the removal of exchange restrictions was discussed.

France May Take Part.

The French government may take a hand in the parley when Mr. MacDonald arrives, so that the discussions will pave the way for the world economic conference now scheduled for May.

Another reason for the sudden interest of the British in an economic agreement is that the dollar has ceased to be a satisfactory international medium of exchange. As far as international trade is concerned, the United States, like Britain, is now off the gold basis. This situation is playing havoc with British foreign trade. If it were to continue long, the British government would be compelled to return to the gold standard in order to reestablish an international medium of exchange.

To take that step prematurely might by financially disastrous. The British, therefore, now favor world economic adjustments that will promote recovery in the United States and restore the stability of the dollar in international trade.

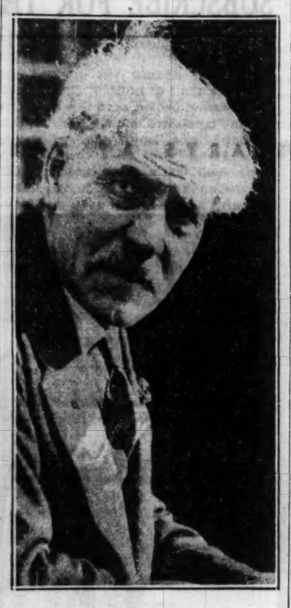
COMING TO U. S.



PREMIER MacDONALD.

SAILS NEXT WEEK

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 5.—It is now practically certain that Prime Minister MacDonald will sail next week for the United States to discuss war debts, disarmament, world economics, and other questions with President Roosevelt. He is only waiting for an official invitation from Washington, which is said to be on the way.

It is likely that he will sail on the Berengaria on April 15, but he may even decide to take the Olympic on April 12. Parliament will adjourn over Easter on April 13 and the prime minister could easily be spared for the last day. The reason for haste is that he is particularly anxious to get the war debt question either settled or on the way to settlement before parliament takes up the budget question when it reassembles on April 25.

Debt Has Bearing on Budget.

The amount Britain will have to pay America will have an important effect on the budget, and it would be easier for Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, to frame his estimates if he knew what this amount would be.

Another even more important reason for haste, it is felt here, is that the economic conference would be made much easier if the war debt question were settled. All nations, both debtors and creditors, will then know where they stand and can enter on a series of discussions and bargains to expedite world recovery without this element of uncertainty.

It has not been indicated yet whether MacDonald will be accompanied by any other British minister. Chamberlain obviously cannot go because of the budget, and Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, is likely to be tied up with Russian trade questions if there is a break with the soviets, which is quite possible over the charges against British prisoners now awaiting trial in Moscow.

The prime minister's daughter, Ishbel, will probably accompany him. At present his intentions are to remain in Washingtonly about a week, so as to enable him to get back as soon as possible after the reopening of parliament.

Davis Sidetracks Debt Talk.

PARIS, April 5.—(AP)—A drive to get the world economic machinery functioning smoothly was the chief aim of Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large, in a conference today with Premier Daladier.

Europe's preoccupation with how to whittle down the war debts has been sidetracked by Mr. Davis. It is understood that he told both Daladier and Foreign Minister Paul Boncour, whom he saw yesterday, that it was more important to expend energies getting men back to work than in discussions of the debts, which would regulate themselves if world confidence were revived.

The French ministers, it was said, sought to bring up the debt problem, but Mr. Davis insisted that the preliminary world economic conference to be held in Washington must not be turned into debt negotiations.

BARE POLITICAL SETTING OF OSER DEATH INQUEST

Coroner's Jurors Chosen on Patronage Plan.

Records of the Chicago crime commission yesterday disclosed the use of professional jurors for coroner's inquests and indicated that the verdict of justifiable homicide regarding the killing of Fred Oser by Ralph O'Hara was reached by inquest jurors selected under a system of political patronage. Oser, an insurgent member of the motion picture operators' union, was shot by O'Hara, an organizer for the union, in the union headquarters on March 24.

Leslie Short, 510 Winnecona parkway, foreman of the coroner's jury which last Saturday decided the Oser slaying was justifiable homicide, was said to be a precinct worker in the ward where Coroner Frank J. Walsh is Democratic committeeman. Coroner Walsh presided during part of the Oser inquest and then placed Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel in charge.

"A Certain Leslie Short."

"A certain Leslie E. Short is in the majority of cases appointed foreman," reads a report on coroner's juries in the crime commission offices. The report then gives "a list of men who very often serve on Schewel's juries." On the list is the name of William Johnson, 4263 Sunnyside avenue, another member of the jury which called the Oser killing justifiable homicide.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, who on Tuesday gained the indictment of O'Hara on a charge of murder in spite of the coroner's jury verdict, said the inquest verdict was not in accord with the evidence. Mr. Dougherty declared that Coroner Walsh said to him during the inquest: "You lawyers haven't any rights here; you are here only on sufferance."

The jury exceeded its powers in attempting to declare O'Hara innocent, Mr. Dougherty and officials of the crime commission asserted. They said the duty of a coroner's jury is to fix the cause of death and in proper cases to order some one held to the grand jury for further action, but never to make a finding that is equivalent to "not guilty."

Others Reported in System.

The other four members of the Oser jury were said to be in the system under which men are selected for coroner's juries only on recommendation of Democratic ward committeemen. Coroner's juries get $1 a day per inquest and they sometimes act in as many as four or five inquests a day under this system, it was reported.

Legally the coroner has the right to use the same set of men for continuous jury service, it was said, although the custom previously has been to select jurors from the streets in the neighborhood where the death occurred or where the inquest is held. The law says the jurors must be drawn from the neighborhood, but under a court decision the entire county is the neighborhood.

Capias for O'Hara's Arrest.

A capias for the arrest of O'Hara was issued yesterday when the murder indictment was returned before Chief Justice Prystalski of the Criminal court. Deputy sheriffs went at once to the headquarters of the Motion Picture Operators' union at 506 South Wabash avenue to seek O'Hara, but did not find him. He is assistant to Tom Maloy, business agent of the union.

Oser and six other members of the union had rebelled against Maloy's rule and all had been expelled. Oser was seeking reinstatement when he went to Maloy's office on March 24. O'Hara admitted shooting Oser twice, but claimed self-defense.

He did not testify at the inquest and Deputy Schewel made a speech to the jurors stating that O'Hara's failure to testify was not to be considered by the jurors as reflecting in any manner on the question of his guilt or innocence.

NEIGHBORS ROUT BURGLAR.

A burglar who used the side of a trundle bed as a ladder was frightened away by neighbors as he attempted to climb into a window in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth O'Connor, 1841 North Luna avenue, early yesterday.

TOM MALOY IN COURT TO ADOPT SON OF HIS DEAD BROTHER

Thomas E. Maloy, czar of the Motion Picture Operators' union, appeared yesterday before Judge J. G. Van Keuren in the County court and applied for adoption papers for his nephew, Edward J. Maloy, 17 years old, 6806 Chappell avenue.

The boy is a son of Maloy's brother, Joseph F. Maloy, city examiner of motion picture operators, who died March 14. The boy gave his consent to the adoption, which is necessary in the case of children over 14 years old, and Judge Van Keuren set hearing on the case for April 15.

Earlier in the day Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Taylor, had declared a will executed by Joseph Maloy to be invalid, because it was drawn in 1927 and made no mention of his second wife, Mrs. Anita Maloy, 1518 East 59th street, whom he married in 1930. Thomas Maloy's petition for appointment as executor was automatically dismissed and Mrs. Maloy was named administratrix of the $15,000 estate. She and her stepsons, Edward and Thomas E. Maloy, a namesake of the union boss, will share the estate equally.

HORNER GETS BILL TO SAFEGUARD EYES OF NEW BORN BABIES

Springfield, Ill., April 5.—[Special.]—Without debate, the senate today passed the humanitarian bill making mandatory the washing of new born babies' eyes with a mild solution of silver nitrate to prevent a common form of blindness. The vote was 37 to 3. The bill now goes to Gov. Horner.

Voting against the measure were Senators W. E. C. Clifford [Dem., Champaign], James O. Monroe [Dem., Collinsville] and Louis E. Williams [Dem., Clinton]. James J. Barbour [Rep., Evanston] and others who opposed the bill last week held their votes.

An identical bill passed the assembly in 1931, but was vetoed by Gov. Emmerson. The house repassed it over the veto, but the senate refused like action. Gov. Horner is understood to be friendly to the bill. Christian Scientists opposed it on the grounds that it constituted compulsory medication. Friends of the measure contended it was merely sanitation.

DROPS DEAD AT HOME.

Seek Early Compromise on Measure.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 5.—[Special.]—Illinois goes into the post-Volstead beer era with no state regulation over the new 3.2 beer.

This became certain when a second attempt to pass the Horner regulatory measures through the house mustered only 54 votes, a total short by 23 votes of the 77 necessary to make the act effective on July 1 and only slightly more than half the number needed for the emergency clause necessary to put it into effect at once.

The second roll call came late in the evening after numerous conferences intended to iron out the differences over the Ward control bill, which provides control of the liquor or trade, particularly such points as the question whether the state should collect a $100 license fee from every dispenser of the new beer.

Quit for the Night.

These talks were inconclusive and, seeing the fruitlessness of further efforts toward an agreement, the house quit for the night with the hope that some compromise might be evolved before 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The second roll call was not officially announced because before its completion there came a motion from James P. Boyle [Dem., Chicago] to postpone further consideration until morning. The unofficial count for the bill was given as 54 votes.

The prospects for further consideration of the control bill tomorrow gave small encouragement to the sponsors of the measure, for many Chicagoans and some downstaters will be absent in the morning because of the funeral of Representative Anthony Pintozzi of Chicago.

Debate Lasts All Day.

The debate occupied almost the entire day of the house of representatives. The attack on the pending bill was started by Leroy Green [Rep., Rockford], who, among other gestures, waved a stein and a glass, contrasting the difference of what a glass of beer would cost under ordinary taxation and what he called the "Horner" system.

Green was followed by Frank A. McCarthy [Rep., Elgin], who charged that the situation was being subjected to political manipulation. "In the interests of good, clean government," said McCarthy, "you ought to put this sale of beer out in the open. I'll never vote for this bill, for it will continue to keep beer in the racketeering game."

These two Republicans gave way to their minority leader, Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago], who started with the premise that the state must have a regulatory measure.

Calls Measure "Vicious."

"But this one," he said, "is vicious. It would involve the imposition of taxes that would make beer almost prohibitive to the workingman.

"The chief scourge of prohibition has been the bootlegger and the way to perpetuate bootlegging is to pass this bill."

Almost all of the opposition came from the Republican side, while the Democrats were in favor of sustaining the administration.

Another Ward bill—the designation further confused the membership—was introduced in the senate today. Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] presented a measure calling for the election of 50 delegates to a state convention, ratifying congressional action on repeal on July 10. Delegates would be chosen at the June 5 judicial election.

Fifty delegates would be picked from the state at large who would be nominated by petition. Each would be required to state his affiliation—either wet or dry—on his petition. Senator Ward promised to push the bill as fast as legislative procedure and the temper of his colleagues allowed.

Illinois House Balks at Cut in Supreme Court Salaries

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 5.—[Special.]—Offered their first big opportunity to vote economies in state government tonight, members of the Illinois house refused, 94 to 14, to reduce the salaries of Supreme court justices from $15,000 to $12,000 annually.

That was the first important plank of the economy program proposed by Representative James T. Burns [Dem. Kankakee] to be tried on third reading—the passage stage. Approval for minor parts of the plan had been given freely during the last few weeks.

Takes Emergency Action.

Mr. Burns, before the results of the roll call could be announced, asked and received permission to postpone consideration.

Thus the measure can be called up again next week. Burns hopes that 102 votes can be tallied then, for in order to save any immediate effect the bill must apply to the June election of five new justices of the high bench.

Notable among the bill's opponents tonight were leaders of the lawyer bloc in the house.

Former Judge Burns opened the discussion, reciting the need of economy in government, asking his colleagues to heed the taxpayers' demands for reduced expenses.

Chicago Opposes Cut.

His first opponent was Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago], the minority leader, who stated that if the bill passed Circuit and Superior court judges in Chicago would be receiving more salary than the judges of the Supreme court. For that reason, he said, "I have enough independence" to vote against the bill, "although I have supported all other economy bills."

Answering, Mr. Burns said, "If any officials should be willing to take a reduction it should be members of the Supreme court." He noted also that those judges were the highest paid officials in the state and that their total allowance amounted to $22,000 annually, including $15,000 salary, $5,000 for a secretary, and $2,000 for stenographic help.

Senate Passes Economy Bill.

The state senate today passed the first of the Burns bills to reach it and took like action on another economy measure which also came over from the house.

Senator Jerome O'Connell of Morris, who represents the Kankakee district, handled the bill, which would cut down county board members from five to four dollars a day, and had no trouble in passing it.

The vote was 39 to 1, Senator N. M. Mason [Rep., Oglesby], from the La Salle district, being the only member to vote against the bill.

But even Mason capitulated when the next bill was called. A part of the program devised by Griffenhagen and associates for the Illinois commission on taxation and expenditures, it would slice the parole board from 10 to 7 members, the tax commission from 5 to 3 and the commerce commission from 7 to 5 members. The vote on this house bill was 45 to 0, and both it and the Burns county board bill now go to Gov. Horner.

Simultaneous with this action the governor sent to the senate the names of six new members of the parole board, asking the present chairman, W. C. Jones of Streator, to remain for the present.

New Parole Members.

The new six members whose appointments were immediately confirmed, are:

Delmar D. Darrah, Bloomington, prominent in Masonic circles.

Edward C. Zilm, Streator, former city clerk and at present secretary of the People's Building and Loan association of Streator.

Michael J. Howlett, Chicago, state secretary of the Knights of Columbus, and an employer who is member of the board of examining plumbers.

John Landesco, Urbana, former member of the Northwestern university faculty and for many years a research worker for the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology.

Max Drezmal, Chicago, attorney, former member of the Chicago board of education, counsel for seven Polish Building and Loan associations and president of the Polish Art club.

Some Other Selections.

Other appointments sent to the senate include James H. Lloyd of Aurora as assistant director of the department of agriculture; Emil T. Rank of River Forest, as superintendent of printing; L. G. Coonrad of Savoy, as assistant director of purchases and construction; Joseph Nowicki of Chicago, as chief factory inspector; A. C. McInerney of Chicago, as superintendent of free employment agencies, and Raymond W. Moore of Chicago [44th ward], as inspector of private employment agencies.

REPEALISTS WIN WISCONSIN BY SWEEPING VOTE

Convention Will Ratify Action of Congress.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 5.—(AP)—Additional returns from yesterday's statewide referendum tonight gave emphasis to Wisconsin's disapproval of the eighteenth amendment.

With returns complete from 2,365 of the state's 2,899 voting precincts, the vote was: For repeal, 536,800; against, 111,971.

All of the fifteen selected for delegates to the constitutional convention to be held in Madison April 25, are committed to vote for the proposed amendment to end prohibition.

Opponents of prohibition hailed the triumph as complete. Indications were that drys did not carry one of the state's seventy-one counties.

Expected Wet Tide.

Opponents as well as proponents of prohibition expected a wet tide in Wisconsin, but wet leaders said they were elated by the proportions of their victory.

The drys were not dismayed, for they had conceded that they entered the test without hope. Anti-prohibitionists declared they were particularly jubilant because they believed that a great show of strength in the opposition to constitutional prohibition will energize the wet cause in other states soon to act on the proposal referred to the several states by congress.

"We are off to a good start," said Dr. J. J. Seelman, Milwaukee, chairman of the Wisconsin division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Sees End of Dry Laws.

"The vote in Wisconsin, coupled with the splendid victory in Michigan, marks the beginning of the end of prohibition. The tremendous majorities for repeal in these two states indicate that states which have been in the doubtful column now can be placed in the repeal column."

Milwaukee did about as expected—voting 12 to 1 for repeal. But other cities were on Milwaukee's heels. Green Bay went wet by a ratio of 11 to 1, while Kenosha swung to repeal, 7 to 1.

In the deluge Rockland Village, in western La Crosse county, stood out in curious, dry contrast. It voted to retain the eighteenth amendment by a count of 44 to 38.

81 MICHIGAN COUNTIES WET

Detroit, Mich., April 5.—(AP)—Belated returns received today made more certain the earlier indication that 81 of Michigan's 83 counties want the eighteenth amendment removed from the nation's basic law.

The additional figures also confirmed the fact that when the state formally ratifies the repealer amendment in the constitutional convention at Lansing next Monday its vote will be 99 to 1.

FINLAND, AFTER A YEAR, IS GLAD IT ENDED DRY LAW

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, April 5.—On the occasion of the first anniversary today of the repeal of the prohibition law here prominent citizens declared that the change had proved a distinct success, although rum running has not been fully suppressed. The chief of police here said drunkenness had decreased somewhat and that the anti-smuggling campaign is proceeding successfully.

The most remarkable development of the year has been the growing conviction, in even dry quarters, of the futility of excessive restrictions on liquor. Today further important alleviations were foreshadowed. These will include facilities for transportation of liquors by the railroads and the opening of cheap restaurants for the working classes.

The chief grievance that remains is the dearness of schnapps, the most popular drink. Experts agree that the new system meets all moderate demands and the net profit of the monopoly company is about $800,000. The cabinet has decided that the whole surplus shall be transferred to the treasury for state expenditures.

SHOUSE PREDICTS 1933 COMPLETES DRY ERA REPEAL

Washington, D. C., April 5.—(AP)—The outcome of Michigan and Wisconsin prohibition elections led Jouett Shouse, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, to assert today that ratification of the 18th amendment repeal is within the range of probability during 1933.

"The results speak for themselves," he said. "If, as now seems possible, legislation is passed in as many as forty states for conventions this year, it is well within the range of probability that the repeal amendment will be adopted before the close of 1933."

INDIANA WILL VOTE JUNE 6 ON REPEAL OF 18TH AMENDMENT

Indianapolis, Ind., April 5.—[Special.]—Indiana will vote on repeal of the 18th amendment June 6.

Gov. Paul V. McNutt, on his return today from Washington and New York, announced he would issue a proclamation late this week setting June 6 as the date for election of delegates to a state convention to act on the repeal amendment.

The governor said there would be 329 delegates in the convention to be held the third Monday after the election, June 26.

Twenty cents a pint will be the prevailing price charged in Indiana for 3.2 per cent beer when it comes on the market Friday, according to prices quoted by retailers. Some may set out twelve ounce bottles for 15 cents.

HOUSE APPROVES BILL GIVING BEER TO THE CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—Congress today finished its part in ending thirteen years of Volsteadism.

By a vote of 131 to 65 the house agreed to a conference report on the district beer bill legalizing the sale of 3.2 per cent brew in the national capital. With agreement of the senate already granted, the measure sped to the White House for approval by President Roosevelt.

The bill was finally approved in a form which will permit the sale of beer in public buildings, subject to regulation by the District of Columbia commissioners. Although final decision as to its sale in the capitol restaurants rests with the house committee on accounts, wet members of congress had little belief that it will be barred.

DON'T LET BEER END WET FIGHT, WOMEN ADVISED

Continue Repeal Battle, Convention Told.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—Suppose you're struggling up a high hill; finally near the top. Then suppose you flop down and start drinking beer. It may be refreshing; but you'll never scale those heights unless you set down the stein and get going up that last weary mile.

That—only in much more constitutional language—was the theme of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform which today opened its convention with a rally for ratification of the repeal amendment.

"Don't be diverted by beer," warned Representative James W. Wadsworth, New York Republican.

Sarah Butler Warns.

Sarah Schuyler Butler, daughter of College President Nicholas Murray Butler, in her first anti-prohibition speech, was more metaphorical than the others. She pointed to the danger of a "tidal wave of legal beer," which is to start flowing Friday, completely obliterating "the sign posts on the road to repeal."

And when Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, leader of the organization which now numbers 1,302,703 women wets, declared that "we must be prepared not to lay down our weapons until ratification is completed," the thousand or more delegates, with many a cheer, promised to do battle back in the states.

After praising Mrs. Sabin's women for bringing about "an astonishing change in the mental operations of a great many politicians and legislators," former Senator Wadsworth warned that the legalization of beer was not the supreme goal.

"Must Not Be Diverted."

"We must not be diverted by beer," he argued. "This is not a question merely of beverages. It is a question of sound constitutional government and the political decency that goes with it."

Both Miss Butler, a Republican, and Representative McDuffie, a Democrat, condemned the Republican prohibition plank at the Chicago convention, and termed the Roosevelt landslide an overwhelming moist mandate from the people.

It was this organization's support of the Roosevelt ticket last fall which caused a split in the ranks. Referring to this, Mrs. Sabin thanked her stars that the organization had "vitality sufficient to survive differences of opinion within itself."

Would Finish the Job.

As for the future of the group which has worked for four years and now with a "miraculous suddenness" sights its goal, Mrs. Sabin thinks the best thing is to finish the job and then get out of the limelight.

When the final victory is won Mrs. Sabin believes her women will have made two contributions to their government. They will have helped release our land from the "vicious thralldom under which it has lain under prohibition" and they will free for "intelligent political action along many lines the largest body of instructed, knowledgeable women ever let loose in a democracy."

Illinois' delegation, led by Co-Chairmen Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, includes Mrs. Fred Britten, wife of the Chicago congressman; Mrs. John Borden, and Mrs. William A. Sauer.

SPEEDY NAVAL BUILDING PLAN URGED FOR U. S.

Plea Quotes Report of General Board.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—A plea for united Democratic-Republican support for the Vinson program calling for the inclusion of thirty new warships in the Roosevelt public works bill was sounded today in a statement issued at the office of Fred A. Britten [Rep., Chicago].

As substantiation of his demand for new warship construction, the former naval affairs committee chairman quoted from a last year's report by the navy general board on the conditions of the fleet and the needs for new naval construction. That report, not made public by former President Hoover, asserted that the relative inferiority of the American navy was so great as to be provocative of a national emergency fraught with the gravest consequences to the nation.

Speedy Building Urged.

The board recommended that the United States lay down as expeditiously as possible all vessels needed to bring the fleet up to its proper ratios under the London and Washington treaties. Specifically it urged the laying down of forty-three warships prior to Dec. 31 this year. The report was prepared last fall.

The recommendations then made included laying down two aircraft carriers, seven six inch gun cruisers, twenty-four destroyers, nine submarines, and one eight inch gun cruiser. The board urged also that additional vessels be laid down as rapidly as possible until the United States caught up with Great Britain and Japan.

The Britten plea for naval construction was issued shortly after Chairman Carl A. Vinson [Dem., Ga.] of the house naval committee had predicted White House approval of his ship construction program. It also came as many signs pointed toward a revival of American warship building as a part of the Roosevelt public works program to be financed by a bond issue.

In asserting his belief that new ships would be appropriated for shortly, Mr. Vinson said the condition of the fleet, as far as new vessels are concerned, will be deplorable by 1936 if prompt action is not taken to initiate a new program. He said the United States was headed toward a third place position among the great naval powers.

Under the Vinson plan twenty destroyers, four submarines, one aircraft carrier and five 6 inch gun cruisers would be included in the Roosevelt public works program. The destroyers and submarines and possibly one of the cruisers would be laid down within ninety days. The other ships within six months. It is considered possible that funds for four destroyer leaders and an 8-inch gun cruiser, appropriated for in the regular supply bill, may be carried in the public works program. These latter five ships are to be laid down shortly. The general board said the United States is inferior to Britain and Japan except in battleships.

Quotes Navy Board's Report.

The extracts from the general board report of Sept. 17 last, quoted by Representative Britten, follows:

"A vital military consideration of naval policy is the relative strength at which the navy is maintained with respect to other leading navies of the world. For many years the growing inferiority of the American navy has been a matter of serious concern. In various correspondence the general board has pointed out the increasing gravity of the situation. The present relative inferiority of the American navy is so great and the protection of our national interests is so seriously jeopardized as to be provocative of a national emergency fraught with the gravest consequences to this nation.

"The Washington and London treaties established for each of the signatory powers limitations which determine the eventual relative naval strengths, or ratios. The same military considerations that dictated the ultimate prescribed ratios in these treaties require that these ratios should be maintained during the transition period as well as thereafter.

Little Done About Destroyers.

"Until the present year no destroyers have been laid down by the United States since 1920. During these years, Japan has maintained a continuous evenly distributed building program of destroyers of larger displacement and more recent design which outclass any existing types in our navy. Great Britain although not building as consistently in this category as Japan, has attained a far stronger position than the United States. On the other hand, the large destroyer force built by the United States during and immediately after the war has been steadily reduced—by wear and tear. Those remaining are becoming unfit for service at a constantly accelerating rate.

"The building program for 1934 should be based upon a single paramount consideration: That is, bringing the navy to relative strength within the shortest practical time."

SUIT OF SON AGAINST FATHER VALUES PEACE OF MIND AT $500,000

New York, April 5.—[Special.]—A man's peace of mind was valued at $500,000 in a suit filed in Supreme court today by Henry K. McHaig Jr. The defendant is McHaig's father, who is president of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway company and of the Alpena Gravel company.

The younger McHaig contends that he was a beneficiary under the will of his father, but that after his mother's death in 1925 the elder McHaig's attitude "changed materially" and that on Dec. 29, 1931, he was told that he had been disinherited.

The plaintiff is suing for $500,000 for damages to his "state of mind" and an additional $466,400 representing moneys allegedly owing to him in his capacity as vice president and general manager of the railroad company.

Because the defendant is a resident of Detroit the suit has been transferred to Federal court.

TOPEKA'S DOGS FREE TO ROAM CITY'S STREETS

Topeka, Kas., April 5.—(AP)—Dogs won the freedom of the streets here yesterday by the narrow margin of 117 votes.

The canine victory came when voters rejected, 10,098 to 9,981, a proposition for the city commission to enact an ordinance designed to prohibit dogs from running at large over the city, a proposal sponsored by garden makers.

Overshadowing all other issues and office races in the biennial municipal election, the posey-puppy controversy was given credit for bringing out the record vote of 21,205. Mayor Omar B. Ketchum was reëlected.

SURVIVING TRIO OF AKRON TELL STORY TO PRATT

Both Congress and Navy to Investigate.

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—The three survivors of the dirigible Akron's crew flew from New York to Washington today and spent the afternoon in making detailed verbal reports to Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations.

Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley, executive officer and second in command of the Akron on the fatal flight, will make a written report, embodying the statements of Richard E. Deal, boatswain's mate, and Moody Erwin, metal smith, the other two survivors, to be presented to Secretary Swanson tomorrow.

The survivors were brought directly to the navy department after they landed. Their interview with Admiral Pratt was interrupted for a short visit to Secretary Swanson's office, where the news reels recorded their conference.

Heroic Crew Praised.

Secretary Swanson said:

"I congratulate you, Lieutenant Commander Wiley, on being one of the survivors of as gallant a crew as ever constituted the personnel of the navy. In the Akron disaster the navy witnessed one of its greatest disasters. While there were only three survivors, the rest of the men went down with all the characteristics and traditions of the navy. They went down in discipline and courage. They faced death in a calm and courageous manner."

"Thank you, Mr. secretary," Mr. Wiley replied. "I would like to say that the discipline on the ship was perfect. The stand by alarm brought the men to their stations. Even our beloved Admiral Moffet went to his station. The orders were all given in a low tone of voice and carried out quickly. When the order for 'Stand by for a crash' came, nothing more was said. There was no further conversation."

Commander Wiley wore the khaki uniform in which he crashed. Although it had apparently been washed since, it had shrunk considerably. Deal was dressed in a civilian suit and overcoat, which he said his wife had brought to him at the hospital in Brooklyn. Erwin wore a borrowed uniform with the insignia of a pharmacist's mate first class.

President Roosevelt will receive the three at the White House tomorrow morning, it was announced.

The navy's court of inquiry into the disaster will convene at Lakehurst on Monday, Admiral Pratt said. Rear Admiral W. W. Phelps, commandant of the Third Naval district, New York, will preside over the court, which will be composed of Capt. Harry E. Shoemaker, now commanding the naval air station at Sunnyside, Cal.; Commander Garland Fulton, head of the division of airship design in the construction corps here, and Lieutenant Commander Ralph G. Pennoyer, who will act as judge advocate. Mr. Pennoyer was detailed as counsel to the judge advocate in the court of inquiry into the Shenandoah disaster in 1925.

No change has been made in the plans for the trial flights of the Macon, Admiral Pratt said tonight. The Macon is now practically complete at the Goodyear plant at Akron, O. It is modeled after the Akron.

Congress will not act hastily in investigating the Akron disaster, it was indicated. Representative Vinson of Georgia, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, was authorized by that committee to make a thorough investigation.

The investigation will be made by a subcommitte of which Representative Delaney of New York is the chairman. The other members are Representatives Sutphin of New Jersey, McGrath of California, McFarlane of Texas, Burke of California, Andrews of Massachusetts, Strong of Pennsylvania and Burnham of California. Mr. Delaney has called a meeting of the subcommittee for Friday.

"We are not going at this thing in any hysterical fashion, and we are not going to make up our minds in advance of the disclosure of the facts as to what caused the accident or its possible bearing on the future lighter-than-air craft policies of the United States," said Mr. Delaney.

Naval Inquiry First.

The hearings will be held in Washington, and are expected to follow the investigation to be made by a naval board of inquiry.

In the senate, Senator King introduced a resolution calling for an investigating committee of five senators to be appointed to hold hearings not only on the loss of the Akron but also "to inquire generally into the question of utility of dirigibles in the military and naval establishments, and to make recommendations to the senate with respect to the use of dirigibles for military and naval purposes." The resolution would appropriate $10,000 for the proposed study.

Chairman Carl Vinson of the house naval affairs committee, said he "just could not bring himself to realize" that Admiral Moffett was dead. He said he would suggest to Secretary Swanson the appointment of Capt. John H. Towers to succeed Admiral Moffett as chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy.

Resume Search Today.

New York, April 5.—[Special.]—Although no trace was found today of the 73 officers and men lost with the Akron, or of the main body of wreckage, which either sank near the scene of the disaster in Barnegat inlet or was carried far away by the strong wind, the searchers did not give up all hope. They will resume their search at daybreak tomorrow in the hope that survivors will be found clinging to wreckage, or at least that some debris will be discovered that may throw light on the cause of the accident.

The finding just before darkness fell of one of the Akron's 120 aluminum gasoline tanks floating on the water fifty miles from the position of the disaster was reported by the destroyer Bernado.

Land planes patrolled the shore line all day and will do so again today.

The three survivors, Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley, Moody E. Erwin, aviation mechanic, and Richard E. Deal, boatswain's mate, made brief statements for the news reel and sound cameras at Floyd Bennett field just before taking off for Washington.

"We are now fully recovered," said Commander Wiley, "and ready for duty in airships wherever we may be assigned."

At Lakehurst funeral services were held for Lieutenant Commander Cummins, commander of the J-3, at his quarters at the naval air station. Lieutenant Commander W. L. Steiner, post chaplain, officiated. Burial will be in Arlington cemetery, Washington, this afternoon.

The bodies of Lieutenant Commander H. E. Maclellan of the Akron and of Pasquale Bettio, chief machinist's mate of the J-3, were sent to Washington for burial at Arlington.

Patrolman Otto A. Kafka, pilot of the New York police plane which rescued five of the seven in the J-3 crew, disclosed that Commander Cummins, one of the two who died, could have been among the rescued if he had wished.

Kafka said that Commander Cummins was close to the plane when it landed on the ocean near the blimp. When they prepared to take him aboard he waved to the others clinging to the wreckage and said he could wait. The policemen took five men from the wreckage. This made a heavy load for the plane, putting its lower wing below water. The plane taxied ashore, leaving Cummins and Bettio, the chief machinist's mate, behind. When it sought to return for them it was unable to get started.

Chicagoan Receives Last Letter by Moffett; Cluverius Pays Tribute to Old Sea Comrade

What was probably the last letter written by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, before he lost his life with most of the crew of the navy dirigible Akron, concerned Chicago.

The letter, written by Admiral Moffett in Washington last Monday, a few hours before he boarded the Akron for its fatal flight down the Atlantic coast, was addressed to and made public yesterday by Commander Eugene F. McDonald, Chicago yachtsman.

Commander McDonald had written the admiral on Saturday suggesting that one or both of the towers erected for the sky ride at the Century of Progress exposition might ultimately be utilized by the navy for dirigible mooring masts. Incloged with the McDonald letter was a clipping of a recent editorial in THE TRIBUNE concerning Josephus Daniels, wartime secretary of the navy, under whom Admiral Moffett had developed the Great Lakes Naval Training station as the greatest naval establishment in the country.

The Admiral's Letter.

Admiral Moffett's reply, commenting on the mooring mast suggestion, the death of Mayor Cermak, and other local affairs, is as follows:

"My dear Gene: Glad to hear from you, to have your letter of April first. I was interested in the editorial from THE TRIBUNE about Mr. Josephus Daniels.

"I am having your suggestion as to using the towers for mooring masts looked into and will let you know the results. It may prove to be a very good idea. However, we have developed a low mast which is comparatively inexpensive The mast part is little more than a steel pipe The ship's nose is secured to it and the stern of the ship rests on a truck, which is carried on a circular track

"I regretted very much the death of Mayor Cermak I have been reading the articles in the newspapers about his successor and have been surprised that Dr Bundesen's name is not mentioned. I think he behaved splendidly in stepping aside and hoped that he would be appointed in Cermak's place if it could be done.

"I retire on the first of November next and will be looking for a job myself. With kindest regards,

(Signed) "W. A. MOFFETT."

Cluverius Pays Tribute.

Tribute to the character and achievements of Admiral Moffett was paid yesterday by his former shipmate, Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, now commanding at the Great Lakes.

Sitting beside a wood fire in the commandant's quarters at the station, Admiral Cluverius mused over the days thirty years ago when he and Admiral Moffett were stationed at a Philadelphia shipyard, inspecting construction on the new U. S. S. Maine, being built to replace the famous warship blown up in the harbor at Havana, Cuba.

Admiral Cluverius recalled an anecdote of his shipmate's career at the United States Naval academy, exemplifying Admiral Moffett's courage and forthright determination, even as a young midshipman.

"A civilian instructor in history, touching on battles of the civil war, referred to Gen. Robert E. Lee as a 'traitor.'" Admiral Cluverius recalled. "The scars of reconstruction times were not wholly healed in those days, and Moffett, a native of Charleston, S. C., resented the remark about Gen. Lee.

Defends Robert E. Lee.

"He rose to his feet and challenged the instructor's statement as a lie. He might have sat down and taken refuge from rebuke among his 200 classmates. Instead, he stood undaunted until the superintendent of the academy arrived and singled him out for reprimand. Thereafter he spent a couple of days in the prison ship Santee."

"From his earliest days in the service Admiral Moffett had the ability to lead and to inspire loyalty and enthusiasm. The company building the Maine at Philadelphia also had a contract to build a cruiser for the Turkish government, a new type of boiler being installed in both vessels. The Turkish officers heard of Moffett's talents and, when the Maine was completed, requested the loan of Moffett's services to instruct their crew in the workings of the boilers.

"One of his outstanding achievements, of course, was his work here at Great Lakes. When I was transferred here from the sea I heard his name mentioned everywhere. If my car stopped for a traffic light in Chicago some motorist in another car was sure to call over and ask where Moffett was.

Moffett Is Navy in West.

"When I arrived here to take command he showed his unflagging interest in this station by writing me a list of influential people whom he had made the navy's friends and who are still the navy's friends in these difficult days when the service is attacked by pacifist foes. From all I heard of his work I could only conclude that in the middle west the navy was Moffett.

"He displayed the same quality of leadership at sea when he commanded the U. S. S. Mississippi on a highly successful cruise before being assigned as chief of the bureau of aeronautics, where his work was arrested when he sacrificed his life in the development of lighter than aircraft.

"There may be some question as to the value of dirigibles in warfare, but there could be none as to the strength of Moffett's purpose. Charged by congress with the duty of developing lighter than air craft for commercial purposes, he plunged into his task with all the enthusiasm at his command, communicated his enthusiasm to others and overrode obstacles.

"That he lost his life in striving to advance the art of lighter than air craft is a testimonial to his gallantry and sincerity. No man could do more in devotion to duty."

WEDDING TRIP KEEPS CHIEF PETTY OFFICER FROM AKRON DISASTER

Buchanan, Mich., April 5.—[Special.]—A honeymoon spared Wilmer Conover from the tragic fate of his mates in the Akron disaster. That was revealed here tonight. Conover, 24 years old, of Attica, Ind., was a chief petty officer on the ill fated airship.

He took his furlough two weeks ago and came here to wed his fiancée, Mrs. Clara Shreve, 24 years old, daughter of Mrs. Louise De Weese. It was Mrs. De Weese who told the story.

Conover and Mrs. Shreve were married at South Bend, Ind., a week ago Monday. They started on their honeymoon and then near the furlough's end started for Lakehurst, N. J., home of the Akron. They reached there the day after the ship crashed into the sea.

THE many friends of M. J. Lanahan will be happy to learn that he now heads a new Dodge retailing organization under the name of M. J. Lanahan, Inc. Headquarters of the new company will be at the former Dashiell Motor Co. establishment, 2542 South Michigan Avenue.

In addition to handling retail sales on the complete Dodge and Plymouth line, this company will offer service facilities to the public, second to none.

Mr. Lanahan extends a special invitation to all of his friends and acquaintances to come in and see the new cars and trucks on display. Learn why the much discussed features of Patented Floating Power engine mountings, Hydraulic Brakes, Oilite Springs and other Dodge and Plymouth advancements are causing such a sensation everywhere. Business men especially should see the new Commercial Cars—most beautiful ever seen on any highway—yet amazingly low priced. Before you make a deal on any car or truck, find out what Dodge offers you in the way of extra value . . . at greatly reduced prices.

M. J. Lanahan, pictured above, has been closely associated with Dodge products for over 20 years. For many years he has been a major figure in Dashiell Motor Co., former Dodge dealer in the Chicago territory. He now heads a new company to take over the retail sales and service establishment of the Dashiell Motor Co., occupying the same quarters.

Here's the sensational, big, new Dodge 6—the car that is recording surprising sales gains over last year's figures. The last word in style—fast as a shot—with many astonishing safety features—yet costs only a few dollars more than lowest priced cars.

FARM MEASURE, INFLATION PLAN SENT TO SENATE

Mortgage Aid Also Given Favorable Report.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—A senate agricultural committee which only a few days ago was threatening revolt against the administration farm relief bill today reported favorably not only on that measure, but on the farm mortgage bill as well, and for good measure embodied in its report a recommendation for currency inflation through a controlled dollar.

The farm relief bill submitted by Chairman Ellison D. Smith [Dem., S. C.] with his committee's approval, will begin its senate course tomorrow in virtually the same form in which it was sent to congress and passed by the house. The elimination of cattle and sheep and the inclusion of the so-called Simpson price fixing plan as an alternative and discretionary means of raising farm prices were the only major amendments.

Two Billion for Mortgages.

Linked to the bill is the administration's measure to refinance farm mortgages through the issue of two billion dollars worth of new federal land bank bonds and the loan of 200 millions in R. F. C. funds to the farm loan commissioner, together with a program for liquidating the Joint Stock Land bank system.

Senators were ready for these two bills, but by no means were all prepared for the concluding section of the committee report written by Senator Elmer D. Thomas [Dem., Okla.], one of the senate's most determined devotees of inflation.

Should the farm relief bill accomplish its purpose and restore farm commodities to the price parity with industrial commodities which they enjoyed before the world war, this would not be relief enough, the Thomas statement asserted. Deflation, he declared, must be not only checked, but reversed and "a substantial sum of money admitted and, if need be, forced into circulation."

Says Reserve System Fails.

The federal reserve system has failed to keep sufficient money and credit available, said the report. Without explaining how funds to meet the cost of emergency legislation were to be raised without selling government securities, Senator Thomas demanded that "existing policies of selling bills, U. S. securities and deflating the currency and credit be reversed."

The report avoided an outright description of the method by which inflation was to be achieved and the dollar stabilized, but the evidence of the concluding paragraphs showed that the plan in mind was fashioned on the pattern of the old Goldsborough bill. This measure sought to stabilize the dollar by requiring the federal reserve board to gear its open market operations and its control of the rediscount rate to the index of commodity prices.

Demands "Adequate Money."

"Agriculture demands an adequate supply of honest and sound money and reports that at this time we have neither," said the Thomas portion of the report. "Agriculture does not demand a 50 cent dollar or an unsound dollar, but does protest the retention of a 200 cent dollar. A dollar which fluctuates in purchasing power from 50 cents in 1920 to 200 cents in 1933 is neither a sound nor an honest dollar. Dollars so scarce as to be obscure, thereby forcing into existence systems of barter, trade, and scrip are not adequate.

"Agriculture demands that the farmer should have a 100 cent dollar, that the purchasing power of the dollar should be fixed and established at that point to serve the best interest of the people, trade, commerce, and industry and that when such value is once fixed, it should be stabilized at such value. We report further that no just, substantial, reliable or permanent relief can be provided agriculture or any other industry until the money question is considered and adjusted."

Act at President's Behest.

The agriculture committee frankly admitted that it was at President Roosevelt's behest that members originally opposed to granting the secretary of agriculture autocratic powers over agriculture had finally swung into line.

"On account of the desire of the administration that no change be made, the bill is presented to the senate in practically an unchanged form," the report explained.

Also frank was the explanation that the levying of a processing tax on basic farm commodities would be accompanied by an increase in the tariff on those products.

The name of Senator Smith, whose boast it has been that he never voted for a tariff, was subscribed to a prediction that the tariff on wheat might be raised from 42 to 90 cents and a tariff of 4 or 5 cents be placed on cotton.

Mortgage Report Made.

From the senate banking and currency committee came a separate report on the farm mortgage bill. Describing the critical condition of farm financing and the remedies proposed in the bill, the committee, through Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], offered the following "significant figures" bearing on the situation:

"1. The amount of farm mortgage indebtedness outstanding in 1933 is estimated at about 8 billion 500 million dollars.

"2. The personal or short term farm indebtedness is estimated at 3 billion 500 million.

"3. Approximately 42 per cent of the farms in the United States are covered by mortgage.

U. S. Held 19 Per Cent.

"4. The federal land banks, as of Nov. 30, 1932, held farm mortgages amounting to 1 billion 121 million dollars. The joint stock land banks, as of the same date, held farm mortgages amounting to 415 million. Together the federal land banks and the joint stock land banks held 19 per cent of the volume of outstanding farm mortgages; 23 per cent was held by insurance companies; 11 per cent by commercial banks; 10 per cent by mortgage companies; 7 per cent by other firms or agencies, and 30 per cent by individuals.

"5. In March, 1932, farm land values stood at 39 per cent of 1912-'14 value.

"6. Gross farm income amounted to: 1919, 17 billion dollars; 1923-'29, between 11 billion and 12 billion; 1930, 9 billion 347 million; 1931, 6 billion 920 million; 1932, 5 billion dollars.

"7. Forced sales numbered for the year ending March 1, 1931, 26.1 per thousand farms; for the year ending March 1, 1932, 41.7 per thousand farms."

The major purposes of the bill, the committee stated, are four in number:

"1. To enable the federal land bank system to secure new capital and thereby to resume its functioning as an effective agricultural credit agency.

"2. To reduce the burden of mortgage debt now oppressing the farmer and to lift the threat of imminent foreclosure.

"3. To provide for liquidating, in an orderly fashion, the affairs of the joint stock land banks.

"4. To refinance the short term indebtedness of the farmer, to provide him with working capital when necessary, and to help him redeem or repurchase his foreclosed farm home."

Washington, D. C., April 5.—(AP)—Andrew W. Mellon, who recently resigned as ambassador to Great Britain, today visited the scenes where for eleven years he directed the finances of the government.

Mr. Mellon paid what was termed a social call on Secretary Woodin of the treasury. He later visited Arthur A. Ballantine, undersecretary, whom Mr. Mellon appointed two years ago as assistant secretary.

Mr. Ballantine moved up to the undersecretaryship when Ogden L. Mills became secretary on Mr. Mellon's appointment to the court of St. James.

STATE DEMANDS CONCERN RETAIN FUND FOR TAXES

Attorney General Otto Kerner and State's Attorney Courtney joined yesterday in filing a petition in the Superior court for an order to restrain officials of the Cranston Building corporation, owner of several apartment buildings, from distributing to stockholders $50,000 collected for the purpose of paying taxes.

The petition recited that $39,075 is now owed by the corporation for taxes for the years 1928 to 1931. An assessment against the stockholders was made for the purpose of raising money to pay these taxes, but recently the directors decided to return the money to the stockholders, the petition said. It declared that the Cody Trust company, trustee for the properties, has threatened to foreclose unless the taxes are paid.

NORWAY'S CLAIM IN GREENLAND IS RULED INVALID

World Court Holds Area Belongs to Denmark.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, April 5.—The Permanent Court of International Justice by a vote of 12 to 2 today confirmed Denmark's sovereignty in eastern Greenland and thereby disallowed Norway's claims to a strip of territory about 350 miles long on the coast between the parallels 71.30 north and 75.40 degrees north. The Norwegian premier at Oslo said his country would respect the decision.

On July 10, 1931, the Norwegian government gave Hallvard Devold and Herman Andresen magisterial powers over the territory, the former south and the latter north of Claveringsfjord. The territory was given the name of Eric the Red land in honor of the Scandinavian who in 983 discovered and colonized Greenland. Eric died about 995 A. D. Denmark contended that Norway had broken the continuity of occupation in the 13th century, when Norse ships failed to call with food and the colony starved.

Calls Norway's Seizure Illegal.

The court found that Norway's occupation in 1931 was in violation of the existing legal status and was invalid.

[Davis rediscovered Greenland in 1585-87, but the old Norse colonists had disappeared and only a few traces of their towns remained. The Danes obtained a footing on the west coast in 1721, and shortly afterwards a number of mission stations were established. Today the trade of Greenland is a state monopoly of the Royal Danish Greenland company.]

Denmark Celebrates Victory.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

COPENHAGEN, April 5.—Enthusiastic celebrations over Denmark's victory in the East Greenland dispute are being held in all parts of the country tonight. A special radio broadcast was arranged for Greenland. Eskimos and others living in the hitherto disputed ice covered areas sent congratulatory messages, expressing thankfulness for the work Denmark has done to keep Greenland undivided.

The verdict depressed Norway. In the storting Premier Mowinckel read the findings, which were heard in dead silence, many delegates having tears in their eyes. As nobody wanted to speak, the meeting of the parliament was immediately adjourned.

Premier Mowinckel previously had announced that Norway would respect the world court's verdict. Former Premier Hundseid of Norway made the disappointed remark, "It is a sour apple, but we must swallow it like men."

BANDIT WOUNDED BY CORR HOME GUARD IS DEAD

Arthur Fox, 19 year old robber, who was wounded when he attempted, with the aid of a companion, to hold up the Rowantrees hotel at 500 Englewood avenue, on March 28, died yesterday in St. Bernard's hospital.

The robbers were interrupted by Policemen Thomas Wall and William Steffen, who ran to the hotel from the home of Mayor Frank Corr, at 507 Englewood avenue, when they heard a holdup was in progress. A pistol battle ensued, in which Fox and Policeman Wall were wounded. Wall is recovering.

Fox resided at 5710 South May street. His companion, George Bindell, 23 years old, 6353 South Sangamon street, escaped from the hotel, but was arrested several days ago. Wall and Steffen had been assigned to guard the home of Mayor Corr.

SENTENCED ON GIRL'S STORY.

Boston, Mass., April 5.—(AP)—Thomas P. Adams, 30, of Flint, Mich., today was sentenced to 18 months in the federal penitentiary at Louisburg, Pa., for violating the Mann act, after Mabel Gerrett, 22, of Norfolk, Va., testified she was held prisoner three weeks in a south end room.

CHARGE NITTI'S POLICE ACCUSER WITH PERJURY

He Retracts Story That Gangster Shot Him.

was the defendant Nitti who shot you?" Attorney Short asked as the two prosecutors were jumping to their feet and Capt. Dan Gilbert and other police officials hurried forward.

"No," replied Lang. "I wouldn't say he did."

"The dirty so and so," said Detective Miller in a stage whisper as he excitedly joined the group of surprised prosecutors and police officials. Miller was Lang's partner. Prosecutor Dougherty, a small but fiery individual pushed his way out of the group gathered around him. His face flushed, he pointed a finger and shouted:

"Do you see the man in this courtroom who shot you?"

"No," replied the witness, who seemed to be the calmest person in the room.

Defense Attorneys Short and DeStefano were on their feet by this time, trying to stop the prosecutors' questions on the ground that he could not impeach his own witness.

Raises Question of Perjury.

"Yeh," Attorney Dougherty answered sarcastically, "he's my witness. He turned out to be yours. I want to ask him if he committed perjury now or when he testified before the grand jury when this indictment was voted. He said before the grand jury that Nitti shot him."

Former Assistant State's Attorney Daniel Covelli, who throughout the proceedings had sat quietly in a chair on the side of the courtroom, stepped forward at this point. He started to speak. The two prosecutors and two defense lawyers demanded forthwith what right he had to intrude in the proceedings.

"I am appearing here as this policeman's lawyer," said Covelli, when he was allowed to speak. "As his counsel I advise him not to answer any more questions."

"Either this witness, who is a policeman, lied before the grand jury or he is lying now," interposed Prosecutor Dougherty. "If he has committed perjury I am giving him this chance to straighten himself out."

Again Attorney Covelli advised the policeman not to answer. The prosecutor asked that the judge force him to answer.

Detective Blames "Shock."

Lang, who remained calm, replied that "because of shock" after he was shot his memory at that time was not as good as it is now.

"You were not suffering from shock or dizziness on Jan. 31 when you testified before the grand jury," shouted the prosecutor. "You were out of the hospital and cured by that time."

"Yes, I was," Lang replied. "I can bring doctors to prove it."

"Well, you probably will have the chance in a trial of your own," replied Prosecutor Dougherty. At this point a recess was called to give the lawyers a chance to discuss the situation.

Detective Miller was telling a group around him that Lang was afraid of hoodlums. He cited the fact that Lang has insisted on a bodyguard for himself and family, even though he is a policeman.

In another part of the corridor were Detective Callahan and his friends, who were announcing that the truth would be told in a little while. So was Attorney Covelli. Nitti was smiling as he talked with his lawyers.

Arrested on Perjury Charge.

Prosecutor Dougherty, in the meantime, went to his office and prepared a perjury warrant for Lang. When court was finally resumed the warrant was issued and Lang was arrested. He was released later on $2,000 bonds. Dougherty had asked for a larger bond, but the judge said that $2,000 was enough for a policeman.

"You mean WAS a policeman," said the prosecutor.

The scene then shifted to the prosecutor's office, where plans were made for the continuance of the trial today. Detective Callahan, Dougherty said, will be put on the witness stand to tell his version of the affair, and then the prosecution will allow the case to be dismissed. The grand jury will try to "wash out the dirty linen" and find out what is the truth, the prosecutor said.

Explains Refusal to Testify.

Prosecutor Dougherty admitted that he has known for some days that all was not well with his case. It was said he received several phone calls from a priest in behalf of Detective Callahan. These explained why Detective Callahan had refused to testify under oath before the grand jury at the time the indictment was voted. He was not a witness.

The prosecutor said that Callahan's story was that he had searched Nitti twice on Detective Lang's instructions and found no revolver. Nitti then was put alone in one of the rooms in the office suite and Callahan was holding his hands when Lang came from another office. Nitti at the time was chewing some paper and Lang said something about it and then fired two shots. Detective Callahan, according to the prosecutor, jumped away at this point and Lang fired again at Nitti and hit him in the body.

INFORMAL TAX ON ROMANCES TOLD AT TRIAL

New York, April 5.—(AP)—The marriage ceremony at city hall, various bridegrooms declared today, included the opening of a drawer filed with $1, $5, and $10 bills by Deputy City Clerk James J. McCormick and the remark: "It's up to you."

Two o fthe bridegrooms were called "cheap skates" in front of their brides, they testified, and Hans Witschi, who was married by McCormick in January, 1930, told the story:

"After the ceremony I turned to Mr. McCormick and said 'any charge?'

"'No, of course,' he said.

"I took out a dollar bill and gave it to him. He turned to somebody and said, 'one lousy buck.'"

The testimony was given at McCormick's trial in the federal court on charges of attempting to evade the income tax law for 1929 and 1930 and failing to file returns for those years.

G. O. P. PROPOSES BENCH COALITION WITH DEMOCRATS

Asks 50-50 Basis on Slate for Circuit Court.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Judicial coalition on a 50-50 basis was proposed to the Democratic organization yesterday by a group from the Republican county committee, but further negotiations were held in abeyence until tomorrow, when Patrick A. Nash, Democratic party leader, is expected to take part in the discussion.

The Republican sub-committee, composed of William H. Weber, county chairman, Ald. Oscar F. Nelson, city chairman, and Edward F. Moore, conferred with a sub-committee of Democrats at their Morrison hotel headquarters. The proposition they laid down was that the Republicans and Democrats should each nominate ten candidates for Circuit court judges on a coalition slate, that the Democrats should have the two Superior court places and that there should be coalition on Justice R. DeYoung of the Supreme court in the 7th district.

Under the Republican proposal each party would pick its own slate of ten candidates for Circuit judge. The Democrats raised the question of whether the Republicans expected to nominate the four Republican retiring judges who were not indorsed by the bar association primaries. The discussion arrived nowhere, and it was put on the shelf until tomorrow.

Dispute over Bar's Verdict.

As to the Circuit judges who were disapproved in the bar primaries there is much dispute in both parties. The politicians envision an independent bar ticket if any coalition should embrace the six judges against whom the bar association is directing its activities—Judges George Fred Rush, Michael Feinberg, David M. Brothers, and Stanley H. Klarkowski, Republicans, and John R. Caverly and Harry M. Fisher, Democrats.

Among the Democratic committeemen the idea still seemed to prevail yesterday that coalition should be partial and be confined perhaps to an indorsement by the Democrats of the five Republican judges indorsed by the bar association and indorsement by the Republicans of the seven Democratic judges indorsed in the bar primaries.

Francis A. Horrigan, Republican committeeman of the 37th ward, is sponsor of a proposed resolution whereby the two parties would invite the Chicago Bar association to hold a judicial primary to select a nonpartisan judicial ticket which would then be nominated by both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Runoff Vote Cheers G. O. P.

Republicans yesterday extracted some crumbs of hope from the outcome of Tuesday's runoff aldermanic elections. The defeat of Leslie V. Beck in the Ninth ward, who had the strong support of former Ald. Sheldon Govier, Appellate court clerk, and the election of Ald. James C. Moreland in the 41st over Oliver W. Holmes, who was backed by Thomas Bowler, president of the sanitary district, were held by the Republicans to indicate that they were picking up a bit.

Aldermen Leave to Plan New Council Organization

ALDERMEN LEAVE TO FRAME NEW COUNCIL SETUP

Committee's Program to Be Submitted April 17.

The committee on committees of the city council left last night for Hot Springs, Ark., where its members will work for the next ten days on the organization of the new city council. Its slate of chairmen and members of the council committees will be submitted on April 17, coincident with the inauguration of the new cabinet.

The steering committee was selected yesterday, with the council acting in five groups, each group of ten wards electing a member. Those elected, and their alternates, are: Wards 1 to 10—B. A. Cronson [4th] and John J. Coughlin [1st]; Wards 11 to 20—Thomas A. Doyle [11th] and Terence F. Moran [18th]; Wards 21 to 30—J. M. Arvey [24th] and John Toman [23d]; Wards 31 to 40—Thomas P. Keane [31st] and Walter J. Orlikoski [35th]; Wards 41 to 50—James R. Quinn [50th] and George A. Williston [49th].

May Retain Ald. Clark.

The choice chairmanship is that of the finance committee, which is sometimes known as the "house of lords." This position is held now by Ald. John S. Clark [30th]. Although Clark was a candidate for acting mayor against Frank J. Corr, there has appeared a disposition to heal any breach that his candidacy might have caused by retaining him in the chairmanship.

However, disciplinary action against James B. Bowler [25th], one of Clark's staunchest backers for the mayoralty, has been proposed. It is reported that his vehement partisanship for Clark may cause him to lose the chairmanship of the committee on local transportation, another highly regarded council position.

The return of beer with the attendant furor over regulatory measures has convinced a number of aldermen that the steering committee should create a committee on licenses to handle all city license matters. This committee would have work to do, if the 18th amendment is repealed within the next two years, in providing regulations for the sale of liquor.

Other Positions Open.

In addition, the voluntary retirement of some aldermen and the defeat of others has made vacancies in the leadership of five other council committees, the committees on special assessments, World's Fair, judiciary, schools, and recreation and aviation. Besides filling these places, the steering group will have a number of vacancies on each of the council's 17 committees to fill.

The usual rule in building the council slate is to give the more important posts to the senior aldermen,

3 GUNMEN ROB OAK LAWN BANK; FLEE WITH $2,300

Three gunmen took $2,300 yesterday in a robbery of the Oaklawn Trust and Savings bank, 5310 West 95th street, Oaklawn, and escaped in an automobile in which three companions waited at the curb. One of the bandits, young and well-dressed, entered the bank with a brief case and book under his arm. He drew a sawed-off shotgun and, joined by his two companions, forced Cashier John L. Brumerstedt and his assistant, Berk Triezenberg, to open the vault safe.

After scooping up the money the leader forced the cashier and his assistant into the vault cage.

"If you'll give us the name of some one we could call to release you," the bandit leader told them, "we'd lock that door." After taking the telephone number of the bank president the bandits decided not to lock the door and fled. The bandit leader left the book that he had carried on the counter. It was a copy of "Building the Fortresses of Health." Police said that it would be examined for fingerprints.

OAK PARK, DRY SINCE 1873, HAS A BEER PROBLEM

Oak Park, which has been dry territory since Henry Austin bought the Farmers tavern on Lake street in 1873 and closed it, is uncertain what to do about 3.2 per cent beer.

At a village board meeting last night it was decided to wait on legislation at Springfield before adopting any licensing regulations for beer. Village Attorney Frederick W. Pringle, informed that a drug store chain planned to start selling brew at once in the suburb, said the company would be taking chances, but declined to amplify his statement.

There is an old law in the village code which prohibits the selling or giving away of intoxicants.

LAWYERS BATTLE IN COURT; CHARGE 1 WITH CONTEMPT

A $2 cut in an alimony order yesterday turned the courtroom of Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court into a battlefield. As a result Arthur U. Foreman, a 190 pound lawyer who took the offensive in the battle, was found guilty of contempt of court and must appear before Judge Sabath today for sentence.

The case was that of Mrs. Minnie Leidig, who recently divorced William Leidig, an official of the barbers' union. Leidig and Bailey Samelow, his 145 pound attorney, appeared before Judge Sabath and asked that Leidig's alimony payments be cut from $12 to $10 a week.

The argument over the reduction was heated. Foreman called Samelow a liar and was reprimanded by the judge. Judge Sabath granted the reduction and the two attorneys withdrew to a room at the rear of the courtroom to draft the order. They renewed the dispute there and Foreman socked Samelow on the nose.

Judge Sabath, who witnessed the short encounter from the bench, sent a bailiff to bring the belligerents before him. A doctor was called from the city health department to stop Samelow's nose bleed.

LEADERS URGE NEW TYPE STATE RELIEF CONTROL

Call Project Big Business —Assail Politics.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Reorganization of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission is awaited anxiously by social workers and others who have been carrying on this work in Chicago, since March when the life of the present commission officially expired.

There is a bill now slumbering in the legislature which extends the life of the commission to Aug. 1, 1935, cutting the membership to five to be appointed by the governor, and giving it sole power and control over the expenditure of federal and state funds. This bill has the support of the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Cook county board and of those members of the commission who are in temporary charge of this vast enterprise.

Ryerson Warns of Politics.

"Something should be done about it at once," said Edward L. Ryerson Jr., who resigned as chairman of the commission on March 1, but whose resignation has not been accepted. Mr. Ryerson explained his views in a letter to members of the Council of Social Agencies, of which he is president, at the time of his resignation. In this he said in part:

"Since September, 1930, I have been actively engaged in an attempt to direct the administration of emergency relief along lines that should combine efficiency with safeguarding of human values and interests.

"The Illinois Emergency Relief commission has assumed the responsibility for expenditure of some fifty millions of dollars. We have now reached a point where there is grave danger that important matters of policy may be decided on the basis of political expediency, rather than upon sound judgment.

Defends Board Members.

"On Jan. 31 control of the relief in Cook county was transferred to the board of commissioners, which has resulted in a divided responsibility for policies. There is no one body, at present, in complete authority to act. What is every one's business is no one's business, and consequently nothing constructive can be accomplished.

"The difficulties I have mentioned are not due to the individuals serving on the board of commissioners of Cook county, many of whom have worked diligently and conscientiously to try and bring an orderly administration out of this complicated organization. Regardless of the ability and good intentions of the board members, however, drastic changes in organization must be made if the relief service is to be efficiently operated.

"It is essential that the Bureau of Public Welfare of Cook County should continue to act as the medium through which state or federal relief funds are dispersed. But some means must be provided by which this administration can be supervised by a single body of persons who can give much time and thought to these matters, and who are free from political or private influences which would prevent them from forming independent judgments."

Bureau Under Relief Board.

Since that time the county board has again washed its hands of the direction of relief work and the public welfare bureau is under temporary supervision by the relief commission. One of the latest plans is to have this commission, when reorganized, administer relief directly, but this, according to Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary and social worker of 30 years' experience, would merely mean that the commission would take over the bureau, subordinating its present officials.

There is a minimum of political pressure operating in relief work, according to Miss Amelia Sears, member of the county board. All appointments are made by the advisory board of the relief commission, and there are at present 1,428 persons on the relief rolls certified for jobs when open.

The acting commission consists of Mr. Ryerson, Joseph M. Cudahy, vice chairman; Omar H. Wright, former state director of finance; Paul Abt, East St. Louis banker; George A. Barr of Joliet, Edward J. Barrett, state auditor; John C. Martin, new state treasurer; Victor Olander of Chicago, J. J. Rice, present director of finance; William H. Sexton, corporation counsel.

Propose New Commission.

It is the present aim to get rid of these state officers and to get a commission of industrial and professional men who will direct the board finances, while the actual relief work will be in complete charge of the social service group recruited from the universities and from the social agencies. This is the politics of the situation.

"The most important problem is the development of a policy and specific plans for the application of relief money in such a way that each dollar can be made to go as far as possible," said the Association of Commerce report, made by a committee of which C. L. Rice, manager of the Hawthorne works of the Western Electric, was chairman. This continues:

"A situation calling for coöperation between an elected board and the emergency relief commission in the management and coördination of charities, is by no means best. Recent developments in staff quarters and purchases indicated clearly the strain in the situation and waste of effort.

Calls for Highest Type Control.

"The reorganization should be on strictly nonpolitical lines. Every possible precaution should be taken to safeguard its activities from being politically administered, or even influenced. Many difficulties now apparent would undoubtedly disappear with a satisfactory settlement of the major question of providing for a strictly nonpolitical organization, safeguarded against partisan as well as religious influences; the establishment of a central operating control and provision for careful planning for the future.

"This community is confronted with an undertaking requiring the expenditure of approximately 92 million dollar in 1933. That is big business on a scale calling for the highest type of management and control, free from the taint of political spoliation."

EX-BANKER AIDS PROSECUTION IN CITY STATE CASE

Robinson Witness Against Former Associates.

Frank D. Robinson, former vice president of the closed City State bank, testified for the state yesterday in the trial of five of the bank officials who are charged with receiving deposits while the bank was insolvent. Robinson turned state's evidence after pleading guilty. As he testified he averted his eyes from the defense table where sat Seymour Stedman, also a former vice president, and the four other officials whose case is being heard by a jury before Judge Francis B. Allegretti.

In March, 1929, six months before the bank closed, the directors of the bank met with the then state auditor, Oscar Nelson. Robinson told the jury. At that time the aggregate loans by the bank to the Coöperative Society of America, which owned the bank, were more than $800,000 and Nelson warned the officials to remove "doubtful and worthless" assets from the books, Robinson said.

"Society Unable to Pay."

"At the time the blank closed, was the Coöperative society able financially to pay its debts to the bank?" Robinson was asked by Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hora.

After lengthy objections had been made by defense attorneys to this query the witness was allowed to answer.

"It was not," he said.

In reply to further questions Robinson said the Coöperative society was not able sixty days later to pay the debts.

Robinson was one of the three trustees of the Coöperative society, he testified. Stedman and Morrison Castle, another defendant, were the other two trustees.

Tells of Trustees' Salaries.

"Stedman received $300 a week as trustee," Robinson testified. "Castle and I received $150 a week. None of us received salaries from the bank. My duties as vice president of the bank were to watch the Coöperative society affairs in the bank."

Robinson then told of the organization of the City State Investment company and its purpose to remove slow and doubtful assets from the bank. The state has previously shown that money utilized from the sale of this company's stock to the public was used in part to cancel bad assets. The public was sold $285,000 in stock of the company between October, 1928, and the time of the bank closing, Robinson declared.

NEW YORK CITY SPENT $9,540,000 FOR RELIEF IN FEBRUARY

New York, April 5.—[Special.]—Public and private relief agencies in New York City spent the $9,540,000 during February, according to an analysis of such expenditures made public today by the welfare council of New York City. February expenditures compared with a total of $8,000,000 in January and $1,000,000 a month in 1929 and 1930.

The total number of relief cases in New York City reached the record breaking total of 250,000 during February, against 220,000 in January. As the vast majority of the cases represent families, it was estimated that more than 1,000,000 persons are now receiving direct relief in this city.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, April 5.—Complying with a decree that all Uruguayan newspapers must submit copy for approval before publication, the newspaper El Pais placed President Terrar's dictatorship in a dilemma today. It submitted the text of the national anthem. The censor finally turned it down, presumably because the anthem describes the treatment which "free and enlightened Uruguayans will forever mete out to tyrants." The publisher of El Pais discreetly departed for Buenos Aires tonight.

THE AKRON DISASTER.

The [illegible] spirited utterance upon the [illegible] of the Akron and the officers and men it carried admirably expresses the thought and emotion of the nation. The loss of the airship, costly as it was, is nothing to the loss of so many able and devoted men.

Outstanding in this loss is that of Rear Admiral Moffett, one of the most valuable of our naval men. His death will be especially felt by the many in this community who knew him during his fine service at Great Lakes during the war and by all who came into contact with his forceful yet kindly personality.

The navy especially will miss his splendid enthusiasm and efficiency in the development of naval aviation. The progress of that increasingly important branch of our naval defense owes a great deal to Admiral Moffett, a most intelligent and resourceful enthusiast in this field.

There is a sad irony in the fact that he had been a strong champion of the lighter-than-air craft, in the greatest of which he lost his life. The chairman of the house naval affairs committee, Mr. Vinson, predicts that there will be no more of this type constructed now that two out of the three built have been destroyed by the elements. Probably Admiral Moffett would protest this decision, if he could do so, for he was convinced of their value in naval operations. The public is likely to agree with Mr. Vinson, and the pressing need of retrenchment gives considerable support to the elimination of such constructions. Whether the policy of continuing experiment in this type is advisable at this time or should be postponed or restricted to smaller types is a question for naval science to answer. It should not be foreclosed without fair and careful consideration of all the factors involved. Meanwhile the nation grieves over the sacrifice of so many brave and loyal servants.

MICHIGAN FIRST.

Michigan is the first state to show what it will do with the 18th amendment. Its referendum was held Monday to instruct the delegates to the state convention which meets next Monday. The voters instructed 99 out of the 100 members of the convention to vote for repeal. In Wayne county, the Detroit district, the vote was nearly 10 to 1 against the amendment.

Michigan was one of the states to go dry before federal prohibition. It tried state prohibition when it was far from probable that the whole country would undertake its experiment under a constitutional amendment. The state did not make much of a success of it, and may have been disposed by that fact in favor of federal prohibition. The state officials were either unable or unwilling to enforce the law, and Michigan had exemplary experience in illicit trade before that experience was forced upon states unwilling to make it themselves. After federal prohibition things became worse.

It is undoubtedly illustrative of the feeling in the whole of the old northwest, if not in the entire northern section of the country, that this pre-Volstead prohibition midwestern state should be the first to reverse its policies regarding alcoholic beverages. Michigan zealots while they had control yielded nothing in fierceness to their brethren in other parts of the country. They were responsible for the notorious life sentences given obscure and petty offenders against Volstead. Incidental reference may be made again to the fact that one of these victims, Fred Palm, is still serving his sentence, although it has been restricted to a definite term. The news carries the information that he is to have another hearing by the commissioner of pardons and paroles, another evasion of reasonable procedure in his case, even if it should be a step towards his release. What Michigan owes Palm in its present mood and in view of its present action is a pardon and an apology.

MUSSOLINI'S PLAN.

The proposals of Mussolini for a revision of boundaries and the reaction thereto in Europe give material for meditation by the American people. The plan seems to have been approved tentatively at least by the British prime minister in his hurried visit to Rome, although upon his return to Downing street he seems to have found his colleagues unwilling to commit themselves. The uninvited response of the lesser governments was prompt and emphatically negative, as was perhaps natural considering that the revision proposed is almost entirely at their expense. After several days' consideration the French government has now joined her negative to that of the French satellites, and the Italian project may therefore be buried along with other prior efforts to put European relations on a less unstable basis.

We think, nevertheless, there was a good deal to be said for the project. There can be no reasonable question that the status quo is not only unsatisfactory from the viewpoint of the economic restoration of Europe, including the countries which most object to revision, but highly explosive politically. Moreover, we hardly needed their vigorous objection to the Mussolini plan to remind us that it embodied one factor apparently essential to any substantial correction of the map made at Paris in 1919—namely: the coercion of the major powers.

Ideally speaking, revision ought to come by way of the voluntary renunciation and agreement of the countries immediately concerned, but in spite of the economic consequences of the division of territory imposed at Paris and in spite of the danger of war that present arrangements keep alive, a war in which the smaller countries are likely to be territorially at least the worst sufferers, there seems little likelihood that they can or will be important agents in a solution. This must come from a concert of the great European powers, a concert strong enough to impose its will. The militant nationalism of the lesser powers is the inevitable temptation and opportunity of the greater powers, and agreement for any durable settlement must be sought from the latter.

The Mussolini plan evidently was either ill advised or premature, but it recognized an essential factor in any solution worth considering and may pave the way to a more fortunate effort. Its failure was not surprising, since its terms were not well balanced. The judicial quality is not conspicuous in Il Duce's thinking, but probably the project was designed for trading purposes.

The key of any acceptable solution is in the joint possession of France and Germany. It is disheartening to realize that present conditions in the latter country seem to postpone any hope of accord between these countries, although the need for one is more urgent than ever.

INSURANCE CORPORATIONS AND THE LITTLE FELLOW.

In commenting on the plan for the refinancing of farm mortgages, Henry Morgenthau Jr., governor of the new farm credit administration, said: "The little fellow, the farmer, the village banker, the forgotten man, will be taken care of first, the corporations afterwards." The corporations are the insurance companies which hold about one-third of the farm mortgage indebtedness.

It is not necessary to quarrel with Mr. Morgenthau over this statement, but it does contain the taint of a superficial sort of public morality which gets a good deal of promotion these days. The insurance companies are heavily charged with the interests of the little fellow and, if we are still to remember him, of the forgotten man. There is probably no more vital interest in the country than the equities represented in these corporations. They contain the provision which men of small or moderate means have made against the future and for the security of their families. They contain the savings of a great mass of the indispensable part of the citizenship which seeks competence and guarantees in life by its own thrift and hard work.

A destruction of these equities and obligations and rights would be one of the hardest blows which hard times could hit the nation. When the policyholders in a mass are referred to as a corporation the intent seems to be, whether it is or not, to put them in a special category as to moral import. No such distinction can possibly be recognized.

It could even be said that these equities are of paramount importance over everything else when it comes to a question of obligation resting upon a custodial government. Both the farmer and the little man who went into debt, and the village banker who extended the credit, had something to do with the situation in which they find themselves. Their situation may be worthy of such aid as the government can offer them, but that does not detract from the right of the policyholder to have his investment safeguarded in every way possible. Social philosophy is entirely too much disposed to dismiss the corporation as a thing without widespread human elements.

Editorial of the Day

[Danville Commercial-News.]

The interstate commission on conflicting taxation reports that duplication of federal and state taxes places an "unreasonable economic restraint" upon business and industry, and threatens to delay economic recovery. It will do what it can to forward movements against further conflicting taxes and to put an end to some already existing. It recommends, among other items, that congress should relinquish gasoline taxes to states; that states should not levy additional taxes on tobacco. It suggests that since states were first to tax electrical energy, that field should be left to them solely, and that because congress already has levied "a heavy tax on beer," other governmental units should not levy additional heavy taxes on it unless they are for regulatory purposes.

No recommendation was made on a sales tax, since the federal government imposes no general sales tax. A report on this is expected later.

States having tax problems that cannot be satisfactorily adjusted without coöperative action are urged to get together in forming interstate compacts.

This is a good beginning. The recommendations should be acted upon as promptly as possible and precautions taken to prevent further conflicting taxation. Soaking the taxpayer, rich or poor, can become as unprofitable as killing the goose that laid the golden eggs. Taxes, after all, are not fines or penalties to be imposed on downtrodden citizens. They are more like dues reasonably assessed upon the members of society by their representatives to defray necessary and wisely budgeted expenses.

AN UNFORTUNATE TARIFF.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Some high tariffs have been a handicap to the country in recent years. The schedules are in effect augmented next week by the prohibitive tariff on beer of $1 a gallon. This rate is not new, but it has been meaningless until now. Such a tariff is objectionable because it does not produce revenue and because it prevents use of foreign beverages by those desiring them.

If American brewers were not able to compete with foreign makers of beer there might be some pretext for a prohibitive tariff. But, in fact, the beer produced in America, including that made in Cincinnati, has been and is as good as any made abroad. Connoisseurs who have sampled extensively the brews of both continents can verify this.

If we are able to compete with European makers then what possible excuse can there be for a tariff of 250 or 300 per cent? This will be the more important when wines are legalized. Only a few special types of beer would be imported extensively, since domestic manufacture would be cheaper and better in the lager beers. But with wines there are infinite varieties to please every taste. These would be barred entirely or made prohibitive in cost by tariffs comparable to that on beer.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IN REGARD TO YOUR KIND INVITATION to the New Beer party tonight at midnight: We thank you most kindly for inviting us, but when it comes to sitting up half the night just to meet some rather tame beer we must positively and absolutely decline. There are many things that might tempt us to stay up until midnight, but not three and two-tenths beer. We wouldn't even promise to wait up until half past nine to greet three and two-tenths beer. We regard the new legal beer as nothing at all to get up a temperature about. We feel that the kick in the new legal beer would be about that administered by any able-bodied canary bird, and we certainly wouldn't sit up half the night to be kicked by a canary bird.

We are indeed pleased that legal beer—even three and two-tenths beer—is coming back. We are pleased when th' first little wild flowers peer shyly up from the grass in the glad young springtime, but we don't go out in the woods and sit down all night waiting for them. The new beer is declared by congress to be nonintoxicating and to be taken for its splendid tonic qualities. We're taking a spring tonic right now, but if somebody asked us to sit up half the night and make whoopee and caper with joy when the spring tonic was passed around we'd turn the invitation over to the Psychopathic hospital.

But when the thirty-six required states have finally taken action and given the sacred eighteenth the bum's rush and we see a single glass of sparkling Burgundy or three star brandy coming our way—ah, then then we will burst into mad huzzas and throw a barrel of confetti and a mile and a half of ticker tape and keep cheer until the neighbors send word to the police.

But sit up half the night and hire a band 'n' everything and get all worked up to greet three and two-tenths beer? No, no! Why, if we would break down like that over three and two-tenths beer we would fear we had lost our self-control and that the next time we met a glass of buttermilk we would burst into tears, while a bottle of lemon soda would cause us to faint. Again regretting we cannot accept your invitation, we remain, et cet., et cet., and et cet.

GOOD NEWS.

Naked bough and moaning tree,
North wind sighing gloomily,
Is there news from o'er the plain?
Tell, will Springtime come again?
And the wind and bough and tree
Heard not, chanting drearily.

Sun of morn and soft South Wind,
Surely you are not unkind.
In your journeyings afar,
Have you found where gardens are?
Are there blooming zones of earth?
Will our Spring soon come to birth?
And the sun and wind heard me—

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

GOODY, GOODY! The United States has secrets. Congress has so decided and clamped a hard law down on anybody that tells 'em to any foreign government (Japan please write). Of course, nobody knows what our secrets are, but, congressional action coming just as they're digging the new swimming pool for Franklin Delano in the White House grounds, we rather think that the secret is how deep the pool is going to be. Because, if they knew, some despicable foreign foe might sneak a submarine into it and keep it there waiting for war to break out.

Higher Education Note from Oregon.

Flora, Ore., April 4.—(AP)—To back up his assertion that members of his health class should eat more eggs, T. S. Easton, high school principal, today ate two dozen raw ones in the presence of twenty students. He advised the students, however, to never eat more than six at one meal.

MANY OF US are inclined to pooh-pooh Mr. George Bernard Shaw, who is now on his way to New York, and say that he is a bore or, at most, a wisecracker. And it may be true, as they point out, that his works will not live as long as those of Mr. Shakespeare, but, however, we must admit that Mr. Shaw is at least the equal of our Hooey Long and may live in history as long as our justly celebrated Bishop Cannon Jr., Deets Pickett, or Dr. Clarence True Wilson. At least George is much more amusing than any of the four great men mentioned, and even in this best of all worlds we do like to be amused now and then.

BEAUTY PASSES.

You were the wind that played upon
The hidden strings; now you are gone
The strings are muted . . . silence broods
Where once poured forth enchanted moods.

You were the sun that thawed the throat
To sing the gay, the joyous note,
The light that made of this rough stone
A diamond seem, the while it shone.

Dear, you the poet were, not I,
Who but a mirror was, no less,
Which, holding beauty for an hour
Assumed its own your loveliness.

And as a pool the blanker seems
For sunlight having passed its way,
And left, so am I desolate,
Unending night awaiting day.

SHERRY KING.

IT USED TO BE considered a very merry jest to greet somebody just come back from a long trip, maybe to Europe or South America or around the world, by shaking hands with him in a sort of surprised way and saying, "Oh, have you been away?" But we can greet beer that way without joking at all. R. H. L.

FEEDING VEGETABLES TO BABIES.

It is possible to feed a baby vegetables at 6 weeks and at any age thereafter, provided the vegetables are of the right kind and properly prepared. This is about the age when the use of orange juice is begun. Vegetable juice seems to be about as well tolerated as that of the fruits. In the case of tomatoes the claim is made that the product is more beneficial and quite as well tolerated as is the fruit product.

But all fruit juice contains a small amount of the fruit substance and the same can be said for tomato juice. Tomato pulp is much richer in vitamins and minerals than is the juice itself and it follows that tomato pulp should be better for babies if it can be so prepared as to be digestible and nonirritating to the digestive tract. The claim is made that well cooked and well strained vegetables of many kinds meet these requirements. When they are so prepared as that the fiber is softened and pretty well broken up and then all the coarser peel, seeds, and shreds are strained out the product is not irritating to the digestive tract of even young babies.

Dr. G. W. Caldwell put this to the test. He selected a line of vegetables that did not contain much pungent oil. For this reason he probably excluded radishes and he may not have used onions nor any member of the onion family.

The vegetables used were young, tender, and fresh. Doubtless they were well peeled or hulled, pitted, and deprived of all seed parts when there were any. Vegetables composed of well covered grains, where there is a tendency for the mass to pass through unbroken and therefore unabsorbed, were rejected wholly or else were well broken up before being cooked. The cooking was long continued and thorough. Prolonged cooking makes members of the cabbage group indigestible, but on practically all other vegetables it has the opposite effect. Finally the well cooked vegetables were well strained.

The resultant food, perhaps after the addition of some of the cook water, was fed to fifty breast fed babies ranging in age from 6 weeks to 9 months. It was begun by small feedings, mixed with milk or not, and given from a spoon, cup, or bottle. One ounce a day was about the starting allowance. Older children got it more often and in larger amount.

Usually the baby had to acquire a taste for the new food, as is the case with orange and tomato juice.

The rule was that the babies thrived exceptionally well. Some of them developed loose bowels and it was thought best to interrupt the vegetable feedings. In others the use of the vegetables was persisted in despite the loose bowels and after a few days conditions became normal.

The evidence indicates that if babies become constipated, as so many of them do, the addition of well cooked and well strained vegetables, or even of clear vegetable soups and liquors, to the diet overcomes the bowel condition.

When these babies got their teeth they had no decay nor did much of that trouble develop in early youth. Addition of vegetables to the diet of babies causes the oncoming teeth to be of good quality, in the opinion of Dr. Caldwell.

CRACKING JOINTS.

P. R. writes: What is the cause of the knees, shoulders, ankles, etc., cracking? This started about two weeks ago. Is there any particular food that I could eat that would cure this? I am a woman 30 years old.

REPLY.

You have a mild arthritis, a disorder which is very prevalent among people thirty years and over. The chances are that it will never be very bad. If it progresses it will do so very slowly. In consequence you may think otherwise, but you will never do anything about it. And that is just as well, since so little can be done. I doubt if you would better things by dieting, and again there is a slim chance that you will try for any length of time.

FINGERS NUMB.

Mrs. W. R. H. writes: My left arm becomes numb and goes to sleep soon after I go to bed, causing my three fingers to cramp and to feel as if they would surely burst. After I get up and stir about I am all right unless I remain still for a while and hold my arm in one position in reading, sewing, and the like. Please give me some information as to the cause and is it likely to cause paralysis in the arm? I suffer also with neuritis under my shoulder, especially at night.

REPLY.

The usual cause of numbness and tingling of the hands and fingers is pressure on the nerve of the arm by reason of position, such as lying on the arm, tightness of clothing, or something of that kind. Since you also have cramps and some other proof of neuritis, the cause in this case is neuritis of the nerve or pressure on the nerve or some tumor or something in the spinal canal, spinal cord, neck, or shoulder.

UNPAID TAXES.

Harvey, Ill., April 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a home and have been out of employment for some time. I have not paid my taxes. I am told that taxes can be left unpaid for seven years before they can sell the property. Is this true? E. E.

No. There can be a tax sale at once. After two years a tax deed will issue, which is a serious cloud on your title. If the grantee, under the tax deed, pays the taxes for seven years he will be in a position to put you out.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Chicago, April 1.—[Friend of the People.]—1. Is a man who served in the American navy from May, 1918, to September, 1919, and was retired with an honorable discharge an American citizen, even though he had not been prior to that time? 2. Has he all the rights of a citizen when it comes to voting and holding office? 3. If not, what rights does his service in the army or navy give him? W. H.

1. No.
2. It is understood that only citizens may vote and hold office.
3. Being a world war veteran, he may apply for naturalization under the act of May 25, 1932, without a declaration of intention [first paper] and he need prove only two years' residence in the United States pursuant to a legal admission to this country.

CASH SECURITY.

Chicago, April 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—When it necessitates giving a cash security for a position, just what steps should be taken to fully secure the employé's money? S. S. H.

One course would be to deposit the money in a savings account on a joint order of the two parties. Without knowing how much is involved we are not in a position to say how much trouble is worth while.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 6, 1917.

WASHINGTON. — The house of representatives at 3:15 a. m. [April 6] has just finished the vote which declares that a state of war exists between the United States and the German government. The roll call showed 373 in support of the declaration and 50 against it. Six Illinois representatives voted against the resolution. They were Britten, Fuller, King, Wheeler, Rodenburg and Mason. The measure, as passed, formally declared that the United States accepts the state of belligerency forced upon this nation by the aggressiveness of the German government, and authorizes and directs the President to employ the military and naval forces and all of the resources of the nation to bring the war to a successful conclusion. Every attempt to amend the resolution was defeated. Representative Britten of Chicago offered an amendment providing that no American troops should be used in Europe, Asia, or Africa until ordered there by congress, excepting those troops who specifically volunteer for such service. This was howled down. Then Representative Sloan of Nebraska moved that a substitute resolution declare war outright. This was overwhelmingly defeated. Before tonight all of the formalities connected with the declaration of war will have been completed. President Wilson will have signed the war resolution and issued a proclamation informing the nations of the world of the belligerency of the United States. By that time the administration and congress will be launched upon the stupendous undertaking of preparing the nation for effective participation in the world conflict.

WASHINGTON.—Secretary Baker submitted to congress the war department's bill to create an American army for the German war emergency. The bill provides for recruiting, as soon as possible, an army of a million men and for two million men in two years. The cost for the first year, it is estimated, will approximate $3,000,000,000. Five hundred thousand men will be raised by conscription, in addition to the regular army and National Guard brought up to war strength. The conscript army will be recruited by selective draft on the basis of universal liability to military service as recommended by the President in his war message to congress the night of April 2.

WASHINGTON. — Sinking without warning of the unarmed American steamer Missourian, which left Genoa April 4 with thirty-two Americans among the crew of fifty-three, was reported to the state department today by Consul General Wilbur at Genoa. The crew was saved.

WASHINGTON.—A story has been floating around the capital today that Austria is sending peace proposals to Washington. It is said that they contain no terms and that their purpose is to "disturb public sentiment here."

CHICAGO.—William Falconer, who will be 100 years old tomorrow, is celebrating his birthday by turning over the deed to his 160 acre farm to new owners. It cost him $200 when he bought it from the government at $1.25 an acre. He gets for it $2,500 an acre, or $400,000. Some time ago men came and tacked a number, 3,000, over his door. And a sign post upon the corner said to the world that it was North Cicero avenue. People said to him that this was Belmont park. Prosperous city persons shook the $400,000 under his nose and he accepted it.

THE LOSS OF THE AKRON.

Chicago, April 5.—I trust that no one will have the temerity in this hour of the nation's bereavement to speak of the death of more than seventy men as a "step in the development of man's conquest of the air"—or some similar silly rot. Obviously these men are not pioneers in the calling for which they so bravely died; they are, instead, the victims of a government's grandiose attempt to build the largest of something or other. Lighter-than-air craft have been perfected to a certain point over a period of more than 35 years. It was, you remember, before the turn of the century that Santos-Dumont made his world startling flight around the Eiffel tower. Isn't it time we stopped talking about this branch of aeronautics as being in its infancy and referring to its victims as "pioneers"? Thirty-five years is a long infancy, considering what has been done in the automobile and heavier-than-air equipment within a much shorter time.

How can people dare to pretend that the cause of aeronautics is one whit the better off because of the death of these fine fellows? The multimillion dollar aircraft is gone, and there isn't even enough of the "evidence" left for an investigating committee to rub its chins over. Even if the evidence had fallen on dry land, as did so many of its unfortunate predecessors, there is some doubt that any benefit to the development of the big ships would accrue from the customary investigation. What progress has been made? There are two of these gigantic craft that have not come to grief and ten that have fallen, taking their toll of lives. Where are the lessons all these victims are supposed to have died to give their fellow men of the air?

Let's draw the inevitable conclusion. Let's not send any more of our men into the air to die for the future of aeronautics, to "pioneer" this so-called "infant." The combined lessons we have learned about airship construction haven't been worth just one of the many lives we have taken in its name. Let's come down to earth, at least until new materials are developed and tested thoroughly on the ground! For the men's sake, let's use smaller ships and forget our unreasonable pride in the word "biggest." Let's use heavier-than-air equipment, tried and found true, or lighter-than-air craft of moderate size. Let's quit making human sacrifices to our infernal pride. R. F.

IT CERTAINLY OUGHT.

Chicago, April 3.—What has happened to the project of synchronizing the lights on Michigan avenue? Everybody agreed some time ago that it was the thing to do. It would enable traffic to move in an uninterrupted flow instead of piling up a block deep at every red light. It ought to be done right now before the fair opens and we have a real traffic problem in the loop. M. ANDERSON.

BEER AND THE DEATH RATE.

Chicago, April 3.—The article by Edward J. Eisele, as published in these columns on April 2, was meant to imply that decreased death rates of the last 15 years were due to prohibition and that beer drinking increases death rates. The decreases of the last 15 years are only a continuation of a decline that started over half a century before prohibition. In practically every country in the world the death rate has declined as much as it has in this country in the last 15 years.

In 1870 the death rate of this country was 20 per 1,000 population; by 1900 it had declined to 16; by 1916 in less than three-quarters of the population included in the registration area, for the most part in industrial states, it had declined to 14; perhaps it was 13 if all the rural states were included; by 1930, with 96 per cent of the population in the registration area, it had declined to 11.3.

In 1870 only 5,000,000 people out of 40 million lived in dry territory. Still the per capita use of beer was only 5.31 gallons and whisky 2.07. By 1916 over 60 million people lived in dry territory and 40 million in license territory. Still the per capita use of beer had increased to 17.59 gallons, while that of distilled spirits had declined to 1.35 gallons.

Thus in less than 50 years the death rate had declined nearly one-third, while the per capita use of beer was over three times as great in 1916 as it was in 1870. It is also interesting to notice that the use of beer increased enormously, although twelve times as many people lived under prohibition laws in 1916 as contrasted to 1870. Also the increased use of beer did not increase the use of whisky, as the drys claim, as the per capita use of whisky actually decreased one-third in this period.

JOSEPH GALLAGHER.

A HANDSOME TRIBUTE.

Michigan City, Ind., April 3.—Now that the beer bill is passed and actually is becoming a reality, I feel it my duty as a subscriber of your newspaper to express my appreciation of the untiring efforts of your editors in being instrumental in bringing this about. I feel that the efforts of the staff connected with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE were more influential in bringing this about than any other factor.

I fully realize that combating this evil was a part of your business, but to me at the time it appeared a useless task. Many thanks for your courage.

I might state that in writing this letter I have no selfish motive in mind other than the fact that we have four children, two girls and two boys, that are growing up; and we feel that they will become better citizens than if they had been reared and educated under prohibition as we see it.

We do not drink beer nor do we handle it in any way. A. L. WILLIARD.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 5.—Alfred Rotter, a Jew and formerly a theater director in Berlin, and his wife were murdered today near Driesenberg in the principality of Liechtenstein. The murderers also attempted to take Alfred's brother, Fritz, for a ride. Fritz jumped from a speeding automobile and escaped. His shoulders were broken.

The Rotters fled to Liechtenstein late last year after a sensational theater scandal here in which they were charged with a tax swindle. They became citizens of the principality and thus could not be extradited. Today they were invited to visit the Kur hotel in Driesenberg, where they were attacked by seven men. Fritz escaped, was caught and carried off in a car, from which he jumped. When he returned with police he found his brother and sister-in-law murdered.

Later seven suspects were arrested at Feldkirch, across the border in Austria. Police suspected they are German students.

For months the Rotters have been denounced as "Jewish czars of the German theater." Their collapse involved several million dollars.

Von Papen Off for Rome.

Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen today left for Rome to take part in the Easter celebration of holy year and simultaneously to negotiate for a general concordat between the Vatican and Germany to replace the agreements signed between the separate German states and the Vatican.

While Von Papen is calling officially on the pope, Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Nazi minister without portfolio and Chancellor Hitler's right hand man, will go to Rome to visit Premier Mussolini. They will discuss the world situation, including Mussolini's four power peace club plan, and prepare for a formal meeting between Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler, which the latter hopes will make for closer coöperation between Italy and Germany.

Hitler Promises to Help Farmers.

Hitler today turned his attention to the German farmer. He told members of the agricultural chamber convening here that the government has the interests of the farmers and peasants at heart. It is his government's greatest duty, he declaimed, to sustain the German peasantry.

"All the vicissitudes and blows of fate can be overcome by a government if only there is a sound peasantry on hand," Hitler asserted.

Hitler did not reveal what his government's farm relief program will be other than to announce that Germany would have to use "very primitive common sense principles" from now on.

"There has been a great interweaving of interests in the last 15 years," he said, "so that it is hardly possible to take one step without bumping against material and spiritual corruption."

The government reversed one of its Nazi cabinet members today by announcing that a decree forbidding any one to leave Germany without a special police permit does not apply to foreigners. Goering yesterday said that foreigners, too, must obtain special permission to leave the country. The decree was promulgated to prevent a general exodus of Jews.

FOREIGN NEWSPAPER WRITERS IN GERMANY DEFY NAZI DICTATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 5.—The Foreign Press Association of Berlin, representing about 135 correspondents from more than 20 nations, today refused to accept the resignation of its American president as requested by German authorities.

On Feb. 20 the official German press department informed Edgar Ansel Mowrer of the Chicago Daily News that the government would boycott the press club socially unless Mowrer resigned as president because several members of the cabinet objected to references to them in a book which Mowrer wrote about Germany before the cabinet was appointed. Mowrer was asked to keep the request for his resignation secret and to claim that illness compelled him to resign.

American correspondents protested to Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett, who tried unsuccessfully to smooth out the differences.

Mowrer offered his resignation to the general assembly of the association, which turned it down, 60 to 7. They agreed that "responsible foreign correspondents cannot be hindered by social or personal pressure of any kind in their freedom of comment based on indisputable material in their reports for their countries." A proposal that the club dissolve voluntarily was refused. It is reported that the government is planning to dissolve it.

Einstein's Daughters Flee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, April 5.—Prof. Albert Einstein announced today that his two daughters have fled from Germany, one to France and the other to southern Holland, to escape mistreatment at the hands of Nazis. The scientist's wife learned of the flight from a servant when she called her home in Berlin.

Prof. Einstein, who came to Belgium recently from the United States, said last week that he had renounced his German citizenship because of mistreatment of his daughters. He did not amplify his statement.

See Hitler Grip on Church.

BERLIN, April 5.—(AP)—A resolution saying that "the state and Chancellor Hitler are calling for the church, and the church has to hear the call" was adopted tonight at the closing session of the first national convention of the German Christian movement, composed of Protestant Nazis.

The resolution was taken to mean the dissolution of the present church bodies and the revision of the Protestant church constitution by means of adapting the church to the state.

Reorganization of the whole evangelical life by creating a uniform church in the reich and the closest coöperation with the state was suggested in another resolution.

Poland Makes New Protest.

WARSAW, Poland, April 5.—(AP)—The foreign office today announced that Dr. Alfred Wysocki, Polish minister at Berlin, intervened today for the fifth time concerning alleged mistreatment of Polish Jews in Germany. The announcement said the minister presented details of twenty new cases.

THREE BANDITS AND POLICEMAN SHOT IN BATTLE

A policeman and three bandits were wounded yesterday in a gun battle outside the real estate office of James B. Waller at 700 Irving Park boulevard. Two other members of the bandit gang escaped, but the loot of $1,000 which they had taken in the holdup of the office was recovered from one of the wounded men.

The policeman, who was shot in the left leg, is Frank Bychowski, 35 years old, 3119 North Sacramento avenue. The wounded bandits are Thomas Martin, 25 years old, leader of the gang; Harry Johnson, 37 years old, 616 West Madison street, and James Pappas, 37 years old, of the Royal hotel. The condition of Martin, who was struck in the back, left lung, and left leg, was reported to be critical.

The real estate office is in the English basement of the Pattington apartments. Mr. Waller, who has been alderman of the 43d ward and was defeated for reëlection last February, was not in his office when the five bandits entered.

Forced to Open Safe.

Five employés were lined against the wall. Miss Mabel Anis, 25 years old, 2326 Wilson avenue, the bookkeeper, was ordered to open the safe. She was so frightened by the guns of the bandits that she was unable to comply with the order. The bandits then ordered Sidney Wolf, attorney for Waller, to open the safe. They took $1,000 in cash.

As the bandits left the office they met a police squad which had been sent to the office by a radio flash after Miss Grace Hardesty, a tenant of the building, telephoned to the Town Hall police. She witnessed the robbery through her front door, which faces the door of the real estate office.

Policemen Earl Flannery, Frank McKune, and Michael McDonnell leaped from the squad car with drawn revolvers. The robbers opened fire. Flying bullets broke windows in adjoining apartments and imperiled pedestrians. Patients in the nearby Burrows hospital were aroused by the shots. A second squad car with Policeman Bychowski came up to join in the battle. Bychowski was shot before he could get his riot gun into action.

Empty Gun Saves Policeman.

Policeman McKune, in a hand-to-hand tussle with Johnson, slipped on mud near the sidewalk. The bandit stepped over him and placed his revolver against the policeman's head and pulled the trigger. The cartridge chamber was empty. As the bandit fled McKune took aim and dropped him. McKune then leaped to his feet and shot Martin as the latter tried to drive away with two other bandits.

Meanwhile, Policeman McDonnell had emptied his revolver in firing at Pappas. As McDonnell reached into his pockets for another weapon the bandits fired four shots at him. McDonnell then fired his second gun, wounding Pappas.

All of the wounded robbers were taken to the American hospital and Policeman Bychowski was taken to the Edgewater hospital. The loot of $1,000 was recovered in Martin's pockets. From his bed Johnson told Acting Captain John Benson he had recently come from Arkansas and had met the other men at a hotel in West Madison street. The holdup was suggested by them, he said.

The two bandits who escaped abandoned their automobile and fled on foot. The auto was found to have been stolen five weeks ago from the Devon Avenue garage at Devon and Bosworth avenue.

PEDESTRIAN IS KILLED; DRIVER OF AUTO HELD

Peter Gordon, 50 years old, 1664 South Millard avenue, was killed by an automobile yesterday in front of 3616 Ogden avenue. The driver, John Wiss, 2624 North Marshfield avenue, was held by Lawndale police for the inquest. He said his automobile skidded on the wet street.

Claude Bowers Confirmed as Ambassador to Spain

Washington, D. C., April 5.—(AP)—The senate today confirmed Claude G. Bowers as ambassador to Spain. Sumner Welles of Maryland also was confirmed as assistant secretary of state. Senate rules requiring two days to elapse were waived and the President ordered notified of the confirmations. This was broadened to include notification of the confirmation yesterday of Assistant Secretary of War Woodring.

TWO BANKERS GET 3 YEARS EACH FOR MISUSE OF FUNDS

Willis B. Strong, 47 years old, former president, and Harry Watts, 55 years old, former cashier of the First National bank of Leland, Ill., were sentenced to three years each in prison yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson for misapplication of $30,000 of the bank's funds. The defendants pleaded guilty and moved for probation.

"I am satisfied that this is not a case for probation," Judge Wilkerson said. "These are mature offenders."

The defense contended that the money had been paid as interest on mortgages on farm lands in La Salle county, the majority of which were owned by the bank and not by the defendants. In making the mortgage payments, the defense said, the bank officials had served the best interests of the bank. Assistant United States Attorney Owen A. West said that the plea was not borne out by the facts. The land, he said, was owned jointly by the defendants, and the money had been used for their personal benefit.

IL DUCE REJECTS MOVE TO MODIFY HIS PEACE PLAN

Warns France Scheme Must Remain Intact.

ROME, April 6. [Thursday.]—(AP)—While the French government was drafting what is reported to be a revised peace project to submit to Premier Mussolini, Il Duce early today issued an advance notice that the fundamental provisions of his "peace club" plan must remain intact.

Premier Mussolini's statement was issued through the grand council of Fascism, his highest advisory body, after a late night session.

It declared that his recent suggestions, asking for collaboration among Italy, France, Germany and Great Britain for peace, are the only bases on which "peace with equality" can be built.

Hope to Convince Leaders.

At the same time, the conviction was expressed that "through the work of clarification already initiated," the plan will find in the leaders of the governments "the same comprehension that already has been shown by the people."

The council said it felt sure that the formation of a new political atmosphere will make a fruitful international collaboration also possible in the field of economics.

Mussolini's proposals for peace, first discussed here recently between him and Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, provide for a four power collaboration; acceptance of the principle of revision of the peace treaties in accordance with the league of nations' convenant; a pledge by Great Britain, France, and Italy that arms equality for Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria would be gradually realized; the following of a common line of action by the four powers in world affairs; effectiveness of the accord for ten years at least, and registration of the pact with the league of nations.

French Draft Memorandum.

PARIS, April 5.—(AP)—The cabinet today approved the essential lines of a French memorandum on the Mussolini peace plan, confining the project within the structure of the league of nations. The question probably will be brought up in the chamber of deputies on Friday. The foreign affairs committee of the chamber opposed the pact in its original form on the ground that it was contrary to the principles of the league of nations and the world disarmament conference.

Poland Rejects Plan.

WARSAW, April 5.—(AP)—Poland is unconditionally opposed to the Mussolini four power peace plan, it was disclosed in the official newspaper, Gazeta Polska.

The organ said that revision of frontiers is a nonexistent question for Poland, and that the nation will not consider participating in the negotiations.

The view was expressed that the Mussolini pact contradicts principles of the league of nations, and that it would end the independence of France and diminish her importance.

Cordell Hull Puts Statistics Before Suavity of Phrases

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—He sits in his study away from the world, but he knows more about the taxes and the tariffs of the world than the most far flung traveler.

He's our contact man with the foreign diplomats in Washington; but he doesn't take a drink, prefers a 7 page pamphlet on tariff statistics to a seven course formal dinner.

This, briefly, is Cordell Hull, new secretary of state.

Two Views of Mr. Hull.

The day his appointment was announced, a senatorial colleague remarked sourly: "Hymph! Ask Hull a question, and you can't get an answer in less than 5,000 words."

Across the aisle another colleague praised warmly: "Fairest man I ever knew."

Put the two statements together, divide by two, and you will probably have a pretty fair equation of this tall Tennesseean with the soft voice, the mellow manners, the scholarly mind.

Cautious, and conscientious—that's what his friends call him. He's fair minded, they say; yes, sometimes even to the point of being longwinded.

His portfolio, fat with facts, has room for no funny stories. Cordell Hull feeds his audience the bitter pills of statistics; refuses to coat them with the sugar of humor.

Credulity Sharply Bounded.

I have spent the better part of a week trying to dig out some anecdotes for you; anecdotes that should illustrate the man. But the only one I found was so pat that it was suspicious; evidently the work of a friend who felt he had to dramatize the careful caution of the man. It's the one about the sheep grazing in the field. Mr. Hull, reported as being on a train, sees the sheep. The friend remarks, "They've been recently sheared." To which Mr. Hull replies, "On this side, anyway."

There is nothing pompous about Mr. Hull. You don't have to wait a week to get into his office. He's not solemn, but he is serious.

The other day at a press conference the newspaper men were quizzing him as to the personnel of the forthcoming world economic conference in which he is so deeply interested.

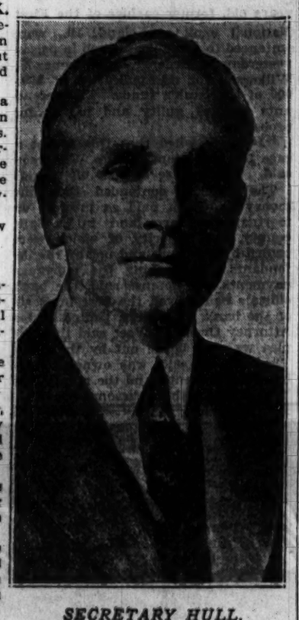
Born in Pickett county, Tennessee, 61 years ago, "Cordie" went to country school; debated, victoriously, that Washington did more for America than Columbus; won a law degree from Cumberland university, in Lebanon, Tenn., and went almost immediately to the state legislature.



SECRETARY HULL.

He's been in politics practically ever since, although the Harding landslide gave him a two years enforced furlough. How did he develop the detailed devotion to facts and figures; the methodical ways?

"Because in my early days," he explains, softly, "we did not have movies and golf and dances. We took our politics, yes, and our politicians very seriously. We kept score cards on them. It's not a bad custom."

That old copybook maxim about doing your daily task faithfully and some day you'll get a bigger job might have been written for Cordell Hull.

His Reward—More Work.

For years he has preached "tariff for revenue only." For years he has bene studying taxation. Now, when the world is at an economic deadlock fate beckons Cordell Hull, says "do your stuff."

The new secretary of state is a very busy man these days. He must be a very happy one.

4,000 CHICAGO MEN WILL GET JOBS IN FORESTS

Mobilization of 250,000 Begins Today.

Would Live at Fort Sheridan.

Work on the Skokie project can be started at once by the $30 a month laborer which the President is authorized to employ for his reforestation plan, since the forest preserve district already owns the land. Supt. Sauers suggested in his letter that it will be possible to house the workmen at Fort Sheridan, transporting then 5 to 12 miles to the Skokie district for their daily work.

"Approximately 3,000 acres of the 33,000 owned by the forest preserve district of Cook county are yet to be reforested," explained Supt. Sauers in his letter. "There is a possibility that 2,000 acres owned by the sanitary district would lend themselves to reforestation.

"In the forest preserve development scheme it is proposed to create lagoons in the Skokie marshes to serve as flood reservoirs when needed, and recreational water otherwise. This involves the moving of about 1,000,000 cubic yards of earth which, due to the nature of construction and the shortness of the haul, could be done by a large corps of hand laborers.

Tree Planting Is Fall Task.

"The project would require on the part of the federal authorities trucks, tools, foremen, a small amount of engineering supervision and, in the fall, some young trees."

The trees, Mr. Sauers explained, could not be planted until after the growing season ends. During the summer the government labor corps would scoop out the lagoon basin and fill the adjoining land to be planted in trees. The Skokie marsh for which the improvement is designed lies just west of the suburbs of Glencoe and Winnetka, and east of the Skokie valley routs of the North Shore interurban line. It begins just south of the Lake county line and extends to Lake avenue, west of Wilmette, where the Skokie river, draining the marsh, joins the north branch of the Chicago river.

TEXT OF OATH FOR MEMBERS OF CORPS FOR U. S. REFORESTATION

Washington, D. C., April 5.—(AP)—The text of the oath to be taken by the men who will work in the civilian forestation corps was issued today by the administration.

The oath follows:

"I, ——, do solemnly swear [or affirm] that the information given above as to my status is correct. I agree to remain in the civilian conservation corps for six months unless sooner released by proper authority, and that I will obey those in authority and observe all the rules and regulations thereof to the best of my ability and will accept such allowances as may be provided pursuant to law and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto.

"I understand and agree that any injury received or disease contracted by me while a member of the civilian conservation corps cannot be made the basis of any claim against the government, except such as I may be entitled to under the act of Sept. 7, 1916 [39 stat. 742] [an act to provide compensation for employés of the United States suffering injuries while in the performance of their duties and for other purposes], and that I shall not be entitled to any allowances upon release from camp, except transportation in kind to the place at which I was accepted for enrollment.

"I understand further that any articles issued to me by the United States government for use while a member of the civilian conservation corps are, and remain, property of the United States government and that wilful destruction, loss, sale, or disposal of such property renders me financially responsible for the cost thereof and liable to trial in the civil court. I understand further that any infraction of the rules or regulations of the civilian conservation corps renders me liable to expulsion thereof. So help me God."

PRINCE MIKE, NEE GERGUSON, GETS 90 DAYS IN JAIL

New York, April 5.—[Special.]—His impostureous highness, Harry F. [Prince Mike Romanoff] Gerguson, appeared before Federal Judge John C. Knox today. After a session in which the nature of a chance in life, the extent of Mike's friendships, the gravity of perjury, the future tenor of his way, and the possibility of recognition of Russia by the United States were discussed, he received a sentence of ninety days in the federal house of detention.

H. F. GERGUSON.

Though he was a study in sepia in his brown suit, tie, shirt, eyes, shoes, socks, and cane, Mike wasn't as brash as he has been. He was or he was playing the repentant and, though he didn't entirely forget his Oxford accent, it was a pretty, little speech he made before he was taken away to the federal house of detention.

"I realize I have broken the law, whatever the cause. I am prepared to do what you say. All I ask is to be left in peace when I am released."

He will be left in peace, according to Judge Knox's plan, if he reports at satisfactory intervals to a probation officer and behaves himself. If he doesn't he will get a sentence that "will hurt," the judge promised.

The period of the court jurisdiction was prolonged for three years and sentence was suspended on all but one of the charges against Mike, so that in the event of his misbehavior sentence can be applied on the others. As the maximum jail term Mike faces under them is fifty years, there's a hard way ahead of him if he becomes a transgressor again.

CARAVAN OF IDLE SPENDS NIGHT IN LA SALLE COUNTY

Ottawa, Ill., April 5.—(AP)—Revising their "keep moving" order, La Salle county authorities late tonight accorded the caravan of Chicago and Rockford idle who plan to present unemployment relief demands to state authorities at Springfield, permission to camp for the night at Twin Hickory filling station, 13 miles west of here. The demonstrators left Chicago and Rockford this morning and united near here. They traveled in 86 automobiles and trucks.

Sheriff E. J. Welter of La Salle county, who estimated their number at 1,000, asked Springfield to send 100 state highway police to assist him in keeping order among the group.

Leaders of the party indicated they would remain at the filling station grounds until morning and then proceed to the state capital. They prepared to spend the rainy night within their cars and trucks.

Sheriff Welter had first told the caravan that it must keep moving through La Salle county. His men threatened to arrest Karl Lockner Chicago leader of the caravan.

Starts Fire with Naphtha; Woman Is Fatally Burned

Mrs. Amenda Danielson, 30 years old, was fatally burned yesterday in her home at 2832 76th court, Elmwood Park. She attempted to start a fire in a water heater in the basement by pouring naphtha on the kindling. The flames leaped out and ignited her clothing. Mrs. Danielson died in the Belmont hospital.

Boy Shot by Mother Who Killed Husband Is Dead

William Vertalot, 13 years old, who was shot by his mother Tuesday in their home at 5024 North Kedvale avenue, died yesterday in the Swedish Covenant hospital. The mother, Mrs. Doris Peters, believed deranged by worry over finances, shot and killed her husband, William, a milk wagon driver out of work for six months. Then she fatally wounded her son, set fire to the house, and shot herself in the head. She is in a serious condition at the bridewell hospital.

Missing 2 Year Old Boy Found Drowned in Ditch

Robert Logan, 2 years old, who had been missing from his home at 5208 South Ridgeway avenue since Tuesday afternoon, was found dead yesterday in a water filled ditch a block from his home. Police said the boy apparently had fallen into the ditch and drowned.

FIRST EVIDENCE INTRODUCED IN BUSBY HEARING

A mass of letters, auditor's accounts, and stock quotations were presented in court yesterday by Attorney Edward R. Johnston as the first evidence in the hearing of a petition filed before Probate Judge Harold J. Taylor by Mrs. Esther Busby. Mrs. Busby seeks the removal of the First Union Trust and Savings bank as executor of the estate of her late husband, Leonard A. Busby, surface lines executive, and the replacement among the assets of the estate of $500,000 in securities.

Mrs. Busby charges on behalf of herself, her daughter, Janet, 19 years old, and her son, Jack, 16 years old, that the estate of Mr. Busby dwindled to worthlessness as a result of the failure of the executor to sell speculative securities of which it was composed while their market values were high. This failure, Mrs. Busby alleges in her petition, amounted to negligence.

Attorney John D. Black, counsel for the bank, is opposing the petition. In an opening statement Tuesday he asserted that the bank had used every care in administering the estate and could not be held accountable for the decline in security values.

You'll do it better on Dated Coffee

Coffee is a sure stimulant. It conquers fatigue and dispels the "blues." You can count on it to make you gayer, keener, fitter. But never drink stale coffee.

HOW ABOUT those people who never seem to get tired . . . who play a hard, fast game . . . and can work all night . . . who are always full of fight and full of fun?

They seem to thrive on coffee. They say it peps them up.

But also, wherever you go, there are always a few people who are afraid to drink coffee. They think it upsets them, gives them headaches, keeps them from sleeping.

Why does coffee seem to pep up some folks and have a bad effect on others?

That's just the sort of problem Science loves to solve. And it did solve this one.

In every pound of stale coffee science discovered nearly half a cupful of rancid oil.

And, science says, if you go on putting stale coffee into your system, you are likely to suffer sooner or later. But, if you are a normal, healthy grown-up, there's no reason why you shouldn't enjoy as many as 5 delicious cups a day of fresh coffee.

It was these findings that led Chase & Sanborn to institute Dated Coffee. An expiration date is right on the label of every pound. And no grocer is permitted to keep a can on his shelf after its date has expired. You're absolutely sure of delicious freshness and rich, full flavor.

By all means, keep away from stale coffee that may slow you up mentally and physically. Insist on Dated Coffee. You'll benefit from its safe exhilaration, enjoy its instant pick-up. Ask for Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee tomorrow.

GOLD HOARDINGS OVER $100 MUST BE BACK MAY 1

President Issues Order; Penalty Provided.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today called all gold holdings of more than $100 into the federal reserve banks and treasury department.

All gold must be turned in by May 1 except that held out for three specific purposes laid down by the President—that for immediate use in industry and art, that which is earmarked for foreign account, and that for which special licenses have already been issued.

Secretary of the Treasury William Woodin in a statement issued a few hours after the order hailed it as a step which will regularize the monetary position and strengthen the banking structure. He pointed out that gold in private hoards is useless, whereas in the vaults of the treasury and the reserve banks it forms a basis for currency and credit.

Woodin Sees Benefits.

Woodin stressed especially the importance of a provision in the order which permits him to license all legitimate domestic and international gold transactions. Customary procedures will soon be restored, he predicted, under this provision.

Approximately a billion dollars in gold and gold certificates is still outstanding despite the return of more than 600 million from hoarding during March. The order today seeks to spur the return of this last billion to the reserve banks and the treasury, where it will again be useful as a basis for currency and credit.

Violation of the order will carry a fine of $10,000 or not more than ten years in prison or both, the President declared in the last paragraph of his order. Extension of the May 1 deadline in cases of extraordinary hardship may be granted by the secretary of the treasury.

Rules to Be Authorized.

In addition to writing the final chapter in the government's drive against domestic gold hoarding the order contains provisions which the treasury may use to permit the resumption of legitimate international gold payments. The secretary of the treasury is authorized to promulgate regulations and license transactions in gold which will not lead to hoarding.

Two types of gold exports will receive speedy approval, it was said—the shipment of gold extracted from ore imported into this country for treatment and the exportation of gold alloys. Eventually licensing will be extended to all legitimate trade purposes, but a strict curb will be kept on domestic and international speculation in gold.

Paid For by Treasury.

Gold turned in to the government will be paid for by the treasury through the reserve system, according to the terms of the President's proclamation. Reasonable transportation charges also will be paid.

Holdings of more than $100 by banks and corporations for other than the three purposes permitted in the order are affected as well as private holdings. The order, it is thought, will bring a concentration of almost all the gold in the country in the hands of the government.

If this is the outcome, America will have marshaled the largest gold reserve in the world.

Text of Executive Order.

"All persons," the President's order reads in the section calling in hoarded gold, "are hereby required to deliver on or before May 1, 1933, to a federal reserve bank or a branch or agency thereof, or to any member bank of the federal reserve system all gold coin, gold bullion, and gold certificates now owned by them or coming into their ownership on or before April 28, 1933, except the following:

"[a] Such amount of gold as may be required for legitimate and customary use in industry, profession, or art within a reasonable time, including gold prior to refining and stocks of gold in reasonable amounts for the usual trade requirements of owners mining and refining such gold.

Under $100 Exempted.

"[b] Gold coin and gold certificates in an amount not exceeding in the aggregate $100 belonging to any one person; and gold coins having a recognized special value to collectors of rare and unusual coins.

"[c] Gold coin and bullion earmarked or held in trust for a recognized foreign government or foreign central bank or the bank for international settlements.

"[d] Gold coin and bullion licensed for other proper transactions [not involving hoarding] including gold coin and bullion imported for reëxport or held pending action on application for export licenses."

Gas in the Stomach Is Dangerous

Daily Use of Bisurated Magnesia Overcomes Troubles Caused by Acid Indigestion

Gas in the stomach accompanied by a full, bloated feeling after eating is almost certain evidence of too much hydrochloric acid in the stomach, causing so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous. Too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leads to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to try to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from Walgreen's a little Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in water right after eating. This will drive out the gas, wind and bloat, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and stop sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder form — never in liquid or milk) is harmless, inexpensive, and a fine remedy for acid stomach. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no fear of indigestion.

DANCING SCHOOLS VIOLATING CITY LAW, JUDGE RULES

Dancing schools which give lessons only in the afternoons and permit dancing without restriction to pupils in the evenings, are in violation of the city ordinance against taxi dance halls, Municipal Judge George V. McIntyre ruled yesterday. The judge fined Daniel J. Brennan, proprietor of the State Dancing school, 525 South State street, $25 and costs.

Assistant Corporation Counsel William V. Daly, who prosecuted Brennan, announced in court that the judge's ruling would be invoked against other dance halls operating in the same manner. Attorney John M. Lowery, representing Brennan, announced he would appeal.

The State Dancing school was formerly a taxi dance hall under the name of the State-Congress School of Dancing, Attorney Daly said. Evidence against it was secured by a special police detail, which included Policeman Denis Parkerson, a member of the Philadelphia Dancing Masters' association and a former dancing instructor.

JAS. TRUSLOW ADAMS, BANKER-AUTHOR, SEES U. S. RICHES IN SCIENCE

New York, April 5.—(AP)—James Truslow Adams, who says his prediction of the Wall street crash in 1929 was "very unpopular," now sees the possibility of a "stupendous boom" in America.

"I look to see recovery within the next two years, and possibly within one," said the banker-turned-historian today.

"I believe we may be on the threshold of a new frontier—a frontier of scientific discovery which may mean a stupendous boom. I can't predict that; but it's a possibility.

"The conquest of America's last frontier—the west, gold, cattle, wheat, timber—which created so much national wealth and made so many fortunes may be repeated when science opens new vistas for us."

Portuguese Premier to Quit Under New Constitution

LISBON, Portugal, April 5.—(AP)—Premier Oliveria Salazar will resign on April 12, when the new constitution becomes effective, and probably will be asked by President Carmona to organize the first new constitutional government. The new constitution provides for the election of the president by the people, instead of by parliament, and for direct suffrage in the election of the assembly.

MAKES UP WITH "KISS OF DEATH" GIRL; JINX BACK

The curse of Margaret Mary Collins, so-called "kiss of death" girl of gangland, caught up with Sol Feldman, 23 years old, 2125 Pierce avenue, yesterday in the Criminal court of Chief Justice John Prystalski. Feldman, apparently recovered from a police bullet wound, collapsed in the courtroom as he awaited trial on a charge of burglary. He was taken to Mother Cabrini hospital, where examination revealed that the wound, thought healed, had reopened.

Feldman, allegedly shot by a policeman while stealing a fur coat from the window of Leschin, Inc., 318 South Michigan boulevard, was known in gangland circles as the only admirer of Miss Collins to break the jinx of her attentions. Seven previous sweethearts, all notorious in hoodlum circles, have been killed by police bullets or those of rival gunmen.

Feldman, according to gangland rumor, broke the curse by severing his relationship with the jinx girl. But his bad luck returned, according to Defense Attorney Samuel Hoffman, when Feldman sought the girl's company again despite the fact that plans were being made for his marriage to another woman. His collapse yesterday followed.

BRITAIN CHARGES THIRD DEGREE IN SOVIET SPY CASE

Says Accused Official Was Mistreated in Moscow.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 5.—Disclosures of the third degree methods employed by Moscow's secret police, the Gay Pay Ou, were revealed in the house of commons tonight during a debate on the second reading of the government's bill to authorize the prohibition of imports from Russia as a reprisal for the arrest of six Britons on charges of espionage and sabotage.

The house passed the bill on second reading by a vote of 347 to 48.

The third degree disclosures were made by Sir John Simon, foreign secretary. He told how Allan Monkhouse, director of the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical company, one of the six under arrest, was questioned for 36 hours with breaks of only five and one-half hours.

Questioned by Relay Teams.

Teams of examiners took one another's place as the questioning proceeded. Even while Monkhouse was eating the examination did not cease.

Sir John said that on the day the Britons were arrested it was announced that the Gay Pay Ou had shot 35 Russians without trial for "deliberate propagation of weeds" in connection with agricultural sabotage allegations.

These 35 Russians, he said, were arrested only a day before the Britons were seized, and their executions took place at the same Moscow prison in which the Britons were incarcerated.

Commenting on the long interrogation of the Britons, Sir John declared: "Any testimony obtained by such means is wrong."

He recalled former Russian false charges, alleged confessions of accused men and mass executions, and pointed out that the British government is compelled to feel the most acute anxiety concerning what will happen to the British prisoners.

"The government has not the slightest desire to break off friendly relations," the foreign secretary said, "but there is no possible basis for friendly relations if this is the way these men were treated."

Defends Embargo Bill.

The government's embargo bill, he insisted, is the only method by which Britain can convey to the Russian government that its measures, if persisted in, will make it impossible to discuss a new trade agreement when the old one expires shortly. Sir John defended the action of Sir Esmond Ovey, the British ambassador to Moscow, who is now in London, as prudent, honorable and careful.

"I stand here to defend his majesty's ambassador in a very difficult situation," he said.

A scene occurred when Sir Stafford Cripps introduced a Laborite amendment to reject the bill. There were cries of "shame" and hissing from the Conservative benches. Sir Stafford objected to the assumption that there could be no justification for the soviet charges against the Britons. He described the government's statements as offensive to Russia and declared that the bill is a deliberate move to break off Russian trade. He warned against "excitement that may lead to war."

Russia Blocks Publicity.

Meanwhile one form of censorship has already been imposed by the soviet authorities on the forthcoming trial of the six Britons. Many journalists who have applied for visas to visit Russia and report the trial have been denied entry.

In cases where application was made on behalf of newspapers, Moscow press officials have reserved to themselves the right to choose what representative of a particular newspaper would be assigned to the story.

The anxiety that Britain will be left without any reliable account of the trial was voiced in the house of commons when Morgan Jones asked whether the British government would arrange for the transmission of a verbatim report of the trial in order to assure parliament and the country of accurate information.

Capt. Anthony Eden, undersecretary of foreign affairs, replied that Sir John Simon, his superior, is now investigating the possibility of such an arrangement.

DINAJPUR, India, April 5.—(AP)—Hillmen of the Himalayas, who believed a few days ago that the mountain gods would punish English aviators for invading their domain, now are kneeling and worshiping before the airplanes in which the Britons flew over Mount Everest and Mount Kanchanjanga this week.

From time immemorial the Himalayan peaks have been the seat of the gods.

An airplane piloted by P. F. M. Fellowes, which was forced down yesterday while flying back from Mount Kanchanjanga, returned today to Purnea, the base of the aerial expedition.

MOB RUMORS CAUSE JUDGE TO WARN PUBLIC

Alabama Jurist Asserts Troops Are Ready.

Decatur, Ala., April 5.—(AP)—Rumors of possible mob action, for which officers said they found no basis, today led Judge James E. Horton, presiding over retrial of the "Scottsboro attack case," to issue a warning. That was followed by receipt of a telegram from New York, signed by William L. Patterson, secretary of the international labor defense, protesting the "attempted lynching" of the Negroes and Samuel S. Leibowitz, chief of defense counsel, who offered his services in the trial. The telegram was received by Thomas E. Knight Jr., attorney general.

VICTORIA PRICE.

As the result of rumors last night and today that mob action was threatened, though Capt. Joe Burleson and Sheriff A. W. Davis said they were groundless, Judge Horton raised his voice to a pitch that carried through the courtroom, saying, "You've got to kill these guards before you'll get the prisoners."

Jurors Are Excluded.

The jury was out of the courtroom as Judge Horton began his warning. The judge had opened his address with a compliment to the general orderliness of the crowd in the courtroom. He said the National Guard had protected the defendants during the trials at Scottsboro two years ago, and was here for that purpose.

"The court also wants it known that it will protect any one else connected with this trial," Judge Horton added.

"Whether the reports of the impending trouble have any foundation the court does not know. Sometimes rumors occur that are without foundation, but sometimes they reach the point where notice must be taken of them.

"The court is conscious of this fact—that it is trying to arrive at the truth in this case. If these defendants are guilty they should be punished. If they are not guilty they should be acquitted. That is for the court and the jury to determine."

More Defense Witnesses.

This was the only interruption in the rapid progress of the defense in seeking to establish the innocence of Patterson, who with the other Negroes was indicted for an alleged attack on Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates of Huntsville, Ala., while aboard a Southern railway freight train.

Patterson took the stand today to deny repeatedly that he attacked Mrs. Price, and to declare that he had not even seen any white girls on the train. The charge against Patterson does not involve Ruby Bates.

Patterson, Eugene Williams, and Andy Wright, also under indictment, all described in similar fashion the fight in a car in which five white youths were forced from the train near Stevenson, Ala.

It was the complaint of these boys to Stevenson authorities that caused a posse to form at Paint Rock and halt the train. The two alleged victims of the attack were then found on the train and accused the Negroes.

DELAY IN ILLINOIS LIFE REINSURANCE IRKS WILKERSON

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday expressed disapproval of the failure of the Associated Mutuals company of Boston and Gen. Abel Davis, receiver from the Illinois Life Insurance company, to agree upon a contract for reinsuring the latter concern. He instructed counsel for both sides to come in next Monday with a contract, regardless of differences, which he said the court might settle.

Six weeks have elapsed since the Associated Mutuals company was awarded the reinsurance contract on its successful bid in a field of 12. Attorney William M. Klein, representing Davis, said he had received the draft of the contract from the Associated Mutuals, had redrafted it, and that an agreement had not been reached.

"I can't understand why it has taken so long to get the draft ready," said Judge Wilkerson. "The policy holders are waiting to see what happens and their interests cannot permit further delays."

Attorneys for policyholders of the $140,000,000 company charged that the assets were being dissipated and that continued delays are resulting in unnecessary expenses.

HAYES ORDERED TO PAY EX-WIFE $150 EACH MONTH

Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday ordered Municipal Judge Howard Hayes to make payments of $50 a month to his former wife, Mrs. Grace Houston, 1400 Lake Shore drive, until $1,500, which accumulated under an alimony order entered with a divorce decree in 1919, is paid up. At the same time, Judge Finnegan ruled, Judge Hayes must maintain payments of $100 a month in current alimony to Mrs. Houston.

The findings of Judge Finnegan were made as a result of a petition filed by Mrs. Houston, who asked that Judge Hayes be sent to jail for contempt of court because he had not kept up alimony payments of $225 a month under the decree. Judge Hayes countered with a bill seeking a modification of the original decree and a decrease in the monthly alimony order.

After numerous hearings Judge Finnegan cut the alimony to $100 a month, but he ordered Judge Hayes to pay up the money accrued under the old order.

Put more sunshine into your working hours

THESE are days when you require all your energy and "punch" to succeed. To tackle your job enthusiastically you need good health. It is the source of your vitality.

One of the greatest enemies of health is common constipation. This ailment may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Your ability to work may be seriously handicapped.

Overcome common constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also rich in iron.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it helps to clear the system of wastes. Isn't this better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful and habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily—as a cereal or in cooked dishes—will correct most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"How you feel — and how well you look — depends largely upon the food you eat. Be sure your diet is balanced — with sufficient 'bulk' to promote regularity."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The Abbey Theater company of Dublin, now approaching the close of its brilliant engagement in Chicago, expanded its repertory last night by giving a comedy called "Professor Tim" its first performance on the American stage. This is an unimportant piece of humorous story telling by George Shiels, author of "The New Gossoon," which has a closer kinship with the commercial stage than with the folk drama of Ireland. The Abbey players presented it, for this single performance, as a merry gesture in testimony of their desire to entertain their Chicago followers; for, although they wear the dignity of a national theater, an important part of their function is to amuse.

"Professor Tim" is the kind of comedy that was written for the sake of its plot alone—and that plot is none too original. It contains the broth of a boy who has wasted the family fortune, a mortgage on the old manor house, as many references to Irish horsemanship as can be found in a sketch by Somerville and Ross or a story by Donn Byrne, and a returned prodigal who humiliates his relatives by his shabbiness but proves to be a millionaire in disguise. Mr. Shiels' mind was full of echoes of the oldest tricks of play manufacture when he concocted "Professor Tim."

The "professor" lurches in upon his farming kinfolks after twenty years of absence, during which time they have boasted much about his intellectual eminence. He looks as if he had celebrated a voyage around the world as a stowaway with a three months' drunk on the water front, and for three acts he harasses the household with maudlin and comic behavior.

Then he reveals himself as a guardian angel who has been dabbling in the destiny of the family. He puts the schemers to rout, brings the parted lovers together, pays off the mortgages, and attends to all the other details of a story book happy ending. The rôle was played, with an excess of grimy makeup by that excellent actor F. J. McCormick.

The Abbey's true note of Irish character study was struck most effectively by P. J. Carolan as a rural councilor and by Arthur Shields as a groom.

The engagement of the troupe will end a week from Saturday night, and the only novelty of the rest of the repertory will be William Butler Yeats' one act play "The Words Upon the Window Pane," billed for next Monday night as a curtain raiser.

"When Ladies Meet," a comedy by Rachel Crothers which has been one of the emphatic successes of the New York season, will begin an engagement of three weeks at the Erlanger theater April 24. This will be the sixth and final play on the subscription schedule of the American Theater society. The cast includes Selena Royle, Spring Byington, Walter Abel, Frieda Inescourt, and Herbert Rawlinson.

Ethel Barrymore will come to the Harris theater May 8 in a play called "An Amazing Career," under her own management.

Members Aid Palette Club with Display

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Palette and Chisel club, 1012 North Dearborn street, has opened an interesting exhibit of paintings by members. The club is struggling hard to keep its head above water, although mortgages and taxes give it unexpected thwacks every time it seems to be becoming too optimistic in its effort to survive these difficult years.

The current exhibit is another fateful move in the battle for existence. About a dozen painters have given important pictures to be sold at moderate prices, the sum realized to be devoted to the needs of the club.

James Topping shows one of his most characteristic summer landscapes with a blue sky swept across by snowy clouds; he shows as well an interesting landscape, "The Covered Bridge," not typical, but Topping. John A. Spelman offers a corner of a north country lake framed with trees in the beauty of their autumn coloring. Othmar Hoffler is represented by the attractive painting of ships which was shown earlier in the season in a downtown gallery. It loses nothing of its charm by going north.

A landscape of New Mexico is representative of Holger W. Jensen. The only still life in the gallery is by Leo Marzolo, an exquisite and reticent rendering of a silver platter with peaches. Frank V. Dudley offers a fine winter picture, leafless trees and cold ground with a scattering of colder snow, the dunes, probably, in an inhospitable moment.

Arnold E. Turtle takes our thoughts southward with a typical Florida landscape, charming in a sketchy manner. Oskar Gross supplies the family note with a portrayal of a musical evening. Glen Sheffer illustrates the more relaxed side of life by the introduction of a gorgeous houri.

J. Jeffrey Grant gives a little painting of Gloucester boats at the dock. Karl C. Brandner closely patterns himself upon Topping in his summer landscape, with a wide reach of sky; and Oscar Erickson and Rudolph F. Ingerle are represented by characteristic landscapes.

The exhibit will continue through the month.

Dust Ruffles Swish Again in Style World

Provide Striking Contrasts for Dance Frocks.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

And now you are going to hear the alluring swish of the old dust ruffle. . . . No less a personage than a brilliant French designer has revived that rather old, but interesting extra that will cause a lot of excitement this season. Your newest dance dresses, especially the flounced and ruffled models that cling smoothly down to your knees where they burst into mad swirls around your ankles, will have a taffeta lining or dust ruffle.

And one esthetic dress designer is waging a picturesque war against exposed flounces. When the modern gal crosses her knees, a goodly portion of the aforementioned back flounce can be seen with all its seams, and piecings, so a delightful accordion plaited ruffle is used and all the knee or feet crossing you can manage in an evening merely shows the yards and yards of plaitings, adding considerable charm to the hemlines.

Contrasts have been evolved that are worthy of headlines. . . . A Mephistophelian slinky gown of black satin suddenly becomes dramatized with a lipstick red dust ruffle or a spectacular contrast of dead white, or canary yellow or jade green. All the dark and pastel tinted evening gowns are ready for this sort of an alluring new ankle contrast—you can use cottons, silks and satins, nearly every fabric can be used effectively over the silk.

If you are tired of silks, satins, crêpes, taffetas and organdys for new dance dresses, try something distinctive and thrillingly unusual. There are bolts and bolts of heavy, white novelty weave cottons just unpacked that are gorgeous. Some of them are like thin Turkish toweling in texture, others have drop stitches that form squares and long transparent rows, while still others look like puffy spongelike materials.

Lovely ivory shades, dull white, oyster white and sparkling chalk whites are what you should buy—fashion the dress very simply, with perhaps, one of the new drawstring necklines, and then try taffeta silk slips, made with bias seams to the knees, and deep circular flounces the exact width of the clinging cotton dress above it. Try an orange silk slip, chartreuse green, or a pale yellow, scarlet, or bright blue. And some ingenious person will soon discover the swank of black and white big checks or plaids for just this sort of a slip for a 1933 cotton evening gown!

These delightful new cottons will take many trips to the tub without any fuss—some of them will need no pressing, in fact none of the rougher textures, and added to all these practical things, such a gown would be as diverting and desirable as any you have owned in years. Think of the delectable new color contrasts possible. They ought to be instantaneous hits.

Mr. Montor, who is traveling under the auspices of the Carl Schurz Memorial association, will give a program from Goethe, Schiller, Heine, and Hebel. The reading is open to the public without charge.

Becomes Bride at Higinbotham Home in Joliet

Miss Florence Is Wed to J. S. Williams.

In Joliet, where she and her father and grandfather were born, Miss Florence Higinbotham yesterday became the bride of John Skelton Williams of Richmond, Va. The wedding took place in the house at Harlowarden, the Higinbotham estate which is part of the farm on which the bride's grandfather, Harlow Niles Higinbotham, pioneer Chicago merchant and president of Chicago's first World's Fair, was born in 1838.

The marriage service was read at 4 o'clock in the afternoon by the Rev Charles Sheerin of Richmond, a cousin of the bridegroom, in the beautiful and stately tapestry hung hall before an improvised altar lighted by candles in four single candlesticks and two candelabra. A background of green had been constructed for the altar and on it were Easter lilies.

Wears White Brocaded Satin.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Harlow D. Higinbotham, wore a gown of white brocaded satin made with a long train and mousquetaire sleeves and trimmed with handsome old rose point lace that had belonged to her mother. Her veil, of tulle, was held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms, and in her arms she carried white lilacs, great masses of them. Her only jewels were her wedding gifts from her husband and her father, a diamond bar pin from the former and a solitaire pearl hanging on a diamond studded chain from the latter.

Hubert Williams Is Best Man.

Hubert Williams served as best man for his brother, and stretching the ribbons to form an aisle for the bridal procession were the bride's brother, Harlow N. Higinbotham, Otto Williams of Richmond, the bridegroom's cousin; Theron Van Deusen of Detroit, Ralph Barber of Joliet, William K. Meyers, Hyde Gillette, and Sidney H. Heap of Chicago. William and Jeffrey Metzel of Chevy Chase, Md., were pages. Their grandmother, the late Mrs. Hutchinson I. Cone, was matron of honor for the bride's mother, who was a native of Virginia. So when yesterday's bride goes to Richmond to live she will not feel like a stranger in a strange land, for she will be among relatives and friends of her mother.

Mr. Williams will take his bride to live at Paxton, on the James river, one of the show places of that part of Virginia, and the homestead for generations of his family. His father was controller of the currency and assistant secretary of the treasury under President Wilson, and an eminent Richmond citizen. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in gray crêpe and her toque matched in color the purple violets she carried at yesterday's ceremony.

Hold Reception After Ceremony.

There were about 200 at the reception that followed the ceremony, and not quite so many at the wedding, some having been invited to the reception only.

Many of the bride's Junior league friends from the city and the north shore had driven to Joliet for the affair and also her aunts, Mrs. Richard T. Crane and Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson. The bride will be missed greatly by the Chicago Junior league, for she has been active in the business and artistic management of the league's Children's theater.

Wild Ox, Killed by Col. Roosevelt in Asia, Put on Display

A group of gaur oxen or seladang of southern Asia, mounted in a scene representing their natural habitat, was placed on display yesterday in the Field Museum of Natural history. Among the specimens is a large bull shot by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, retiring governor general of the Philippines, while leading the William V. Kelley-Roosevelt expedition to eastern Asia for the Field museum.

The animal was encountered by surprise by Col. Roosevelt while he was convalescing from tropical fever after hunting for several weeks during the rainy season. The gaur is probably the finest of wild oxen living today, according to Dr. Wilfred H. Osgood, curator of zoölogy at the museum. The animal has never been domesticated, often reaches a shoulder height of six feet and a weight of more than 2,000 pounds. Also included in the exhibit is a seladang calf obtained by George F. Ryan and George G. Carey Jr. of Baltimore, who also conducted an expedition in Indo-China for the museum.

Finds Children Demand Action in Their Movies

Speaker Asks Parents to Be Tolerant.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Mrs. Richard McClure, chairman of the motion picture committee of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, advised the Illinois congress of parents and teachers yesterday to teach children to "face life as it is, not as you have lived it." She urged them to become more tolerant toward motion pictures and more coöperative by patronizing the good family pictures brought by the producer to the neighborhood theater for the sake of the children.

Mrs. McClure addressed a meeting of the congress in the Stevens hotel. She was formerly chairman of the state federation's motion picture committee and last year organized the better films council of Chicago, a group which reviews and recommends motion pictures.

"If you teach children to face life as it is they will know that some things are true only in the movies," she said. "Children don't like pathos and sentiment. They want action, a villain to hiss, and a hero to cheer. A survey I conducted in a school in Chicago revealed that 82 per cent of the children in the 7th and 8th grades liked comedy best, western pictures next, and thrillers third. Only six were faithful to Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn, and only twelve liked news reels and educational films. It is up to the parents to help their children to become more selective."

Many neighborhood producers will switch a week-end picture at the request of educational groups, Mrs. McClure said, so that the children of the neighborhood will be given a better picture.

"But you must recognize," the speaker warned, "that the motion picture theater is a commercial proposition. If you ask your producer to make a substitution then you must assure him of a profit. Otherwise you have no right to go to him and complain. If he can't change he will be wise to run a special film for the children."

A résumé of last year's motion picture output as tabulated by the national federation's committee revealed, she said, that 71 per cent were recommended as suitable and 59 per cent of that number were considered family pictures.

Mrs. McClure gave as an example of the failure of parents to support good pictures, "Hello, Everybody," featuring Kate Smith. Because of this lack of support the film was stopped in a few days, while at the same time Mae West in "She Done Him Wrong" played to capacity houses with 200 bookings ahead.

Mrs. McClure deplored the lack of feature pictures for children. More than 177,000,000 movie admissions are bought each year, she said. Of that number 23 millions are for those under 21 years old, 14 millions under 14, and 6 millions under 7 years old, and 70 per cent of all of them go alone.

Paul C. Edwards, director of visual education in the Chicago public schools, said that learning is increased 30 to 35 per cent through visual education. There are 200,000 slides, 2,000 reels of films, all educational, used in the schools.

Twelve Parents on Wrong Tack with Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

So, I kept putting all of those in one pile. And when I counted them there were a dozen letters—"the Desperate Dozen," I thought to myself. All desperate about their very small boys and girls—about getting them to do what they wanted them to do.

These dozen desperate mothers in order to get the two and three year olds to do what they wanted them to or not do what they didn't want them to do, had resorted to all sorts of expedients—slapping their hands, sitting them on chairs (where they wouldn't stay) putting them in a room by themselves, taking away their favorite toys, scolding them, and spanking them. But none of the Desperate Dozen reported any success from these direct and desperate measures.

Why not? Because they were all on the wrong tack. They didn't know, either intuitively or intellectually, what it was all about. They were thinking only of what they wanted the baby to do or what they thought he ought to learn to do, and so were sure of meeting with failure.

What they lacked was knowledge of what a baby of two or three needs—what nature makes him demand of life—what his senses and muscles crave that must be satisfied.

All they did was to frustrate him. Misunderstanding and therefore mismanagement were at the root of their trouble. But they did not know it, unlike the eager young mother who wrote me: "Understanding his needs has helped me so much—when I manage him right he is as good as gold."

This age of two and three is absolutely fascinating if it isn't spent in slapping and scolding. Learn, if your letter was or might have been one of the desperate dozen, how to manage and so enjoy your very little boy or girl. Reading and then practicing what you read will help you.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

For mothers of young children I have two booklets written in full—although they apply to older children, too. They are "How to Gain Obedience" and "Make Patience Your Handmaiden." Either will be sent on receipt of a stamped-self-addressed envelope.

Beauty Association Sanctions Undraped Advertising Pictures

The National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists association yesterday passed a resolution in an executive session at the Hotel Sherman sanctioning the use of pictures of undraped women in national advertising for beauty culture.

"In our opinion a recognition of human beauty is one of the highest forms of art," the resolution read. "Its use as such solely as an expression of grace and beauty and art is within the bounds of good taste."

The resolution was presented by Emile Beauvais, Washington, D. C., president, and Max Hoefer, Chicago, a director of the association. The meeting was in conjunction with the tenth annual Mid-West Beauty Industry show, sponsored by the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association.

Writer Urges More Severity at Weddings

Mary Borden Thinks Rites Are Too Pretty.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Mary Borden, writing in one of the monthly woman's magazines, argues for less "show" at the marriage ceremony and more severity.

"If my object were to attempt to revolutionize society," she writes, "I would condemn the whole of this wedding day and all the preparations for it on the single ground that it makes getting married too alluring. I would demand that marriage should be made difficult. I would suggest that the religious ceremony should be of a stark severity, as solemn as taking the veil."

Not many would contribute to Mrs. Borden's idea of robbing the Big day of its physical beauty. We, least of all, would like to see a lovely church wedding denuded of the traditional music and flowers, the procession and the lovely spectacle of the bride.

However, we believe with Mrs. Borden, that the solemnity of the occasion might be more deeply impressed. We doubt, though, that this solemnity is a matter of the wedding day. Even in surroundings of starkest severity the girl or man not educated to look at marriage as more than a gambling adventure would hardly succumb to the seriousness of the step.

Well, we've learned a few things about marriage in the last couple of years. We've learned that it's not one long hour of uninterrupted bliss. That something might happen overnight to upset the dreams of security. In fact, we think this year's bridal pair has been blessed with a two-three year training in facing realities that must prove invaluable in the new career.

They do not have to start out with any such living standard as the '28 year bride had set up for her.

Society Sportsmen Make Plans to Entertain Visiting Polo Teams

National Indoor Championship Tournament Will Open Here Next Wednesday Night.

BY JUDITH CASS.

FOR those of society's sportsmen who find the maximum of excitement and pleasure in polo there is interesting news this morning. Winston Guest, Jimmy Mills, the Gerry brothers, Elbridge and Bobby, and a dozen more eastern stars are due here the first of next week for the national indoor championships, to open Wednesday evening in the 124th Field Artillery armory in Washington park.

And, according to the reports emanating from New York by way of George J. Matthews Jr., who is responsible for the national tournament as vice president of the Indoor Polo Association of America, there is quite as much anticipation of a gala two weeks among these polo players from foreign parts as there is among the Chicago players who will be host to them.

Just what the entertainment is to be has not yet been determined, but it is a foregone conclusion that some of the prominent hosts will be having dinner and late supper parties at clubs in town and out. And it is just as certain that large parties will be motoring south to fill the armory's boxes on each one of the nine evenings of play.

With eastern eliminations about over these dates were announced yesterday, April 12, 15, 18, 20, 22, 23, 25, 27, and 29. In other words there are to be two nights of play next week, three the week following, and four the final week of the tourney. It is fortunate that we are having A Century of Progress for this is what really brings the nationals here, the first time since their inception in 1922. And, too, it is fortunate that the city boasts the 124th Field Artillery armory for it provides the finest indoor polo field in the world, as well as grand stables for the strings of glossy polo ponies.

Mills Formerly on Old Aiken Team.

Jimmy Mills, who is coming from New York, will have a number of old acquaintanceships to renew, for he was one of the Old Aiken players who defeated the skilled Argentines at Onwentsia two summers ago, taking two games in a three game series. With Elbridge and Bobby Gerry he plays on a team known in New York as the Aknusti, which, by the way, is the name of the Gerry brothers' estate.

Without a doubt, Chicago hosts will be competing to entertain for Winston Guest, ranking No. 1 player of the universe and the only man handicapped at ten goals indoors. Since Mr. Guest lead the American team to victory in the international matches in the Argentine he has been hunting big game in Africa. He lands in New York Saturday in time for a few strenuous days of tuning up before flying to Chicago.

Then there are others on the distinguished guest list of the next fortnight . . . Michael Phipps and Earle Hopping Jr., Warren Sackman and Carl Pflug. The latest news is that Mr. Hopping will team up with our own Barney Balding and Maj. Richard G. Hunter under the colors of the 124th Field artillery, while Mr. Sackman will play for the Chicago Riding club with Herbert Lorber and James Hannah or Frank Ering.

Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening, who is a member of the distinguished guest committee that is to provide for the visitors, will play on an all-star Riding club team along with "Larry" Smith, whom he has brought here from the southwest, and S. Prentice Porter.

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin is chairman of this "host" committee announced for the first time this morning. Others are Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, Col. Charles C. Haffner Jr., Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, Col. Robert R. McCormick, Frank Bering, Roy D. Keehn, Paul Butler, Charles F. Glore, Otto Lehmann, George F. Nixon, John Hertz, Maj. C. C. Smith, George Bates, and Edward F. Wilson.

Alumnae of Latin School to Meet.

There will be reminiscing of happy school days when alumnæ of the Chicago Latin School for Girls gather for their annual spring luncheon Saturday at the Ambassador hotel. The party, for which Miss Susan Wegener will be the hostess, has a double significance this year since it combines both the annual meeting and a spring benefit the association usually sponsors.

The Girls' Latin school is synonymous with the Gold Coast, since it is an outgrowth of the original Latin School for Boys started in 1888. In 1895 Miss Mabel S. Vickery opened a small annex to the boys' school at the request of Cyrus H. McCormick who wanted to enter his six year old daughter, Elizabeth, in a day school. And so the Latin School for Girls was started for little Miss McCormick [who died at the age of 12], and a group of her playmates.

Among the alumnæ who are sure to be present Saturday are Mrs. Wesley Dixon, Mrs. Walter T. Fisher, Mrs. Nathaniel A. Owings, Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, Miss Harriet Borland and her sister, Miss Beatrice Borland; Miss Mary Fortune, who is vice president of the alumnæ associa-

The Changeling Bride

By Martha Ostenso

SYNOPSIS.

The Hendersons—Meryl and Margaret, sisters; Flint, their older brother, and Andrew, the father—have lived for twelve years in poverty in a fishing settlement on the shores of Lake Superior after losing their fortune in Chicago. Andrew went to pieces after the death of his wife. Great Aunt Letitia, formerly dean of a girls' school in Ohio, is the liaison between the Hendersons and a cultured past. Flint and his friend, Ned Brehmer, hope to build up a great export business. Ned is in love with Meryl, but she dreams of a better future. A forest fire brings Blake Lawrence, injured and lost, to the Henderson cottage. There were two great names in nearby Agate Bay and its environs—Lawrence and Greer. Blake is in love with Greer's wife, Christine. Blake's broken ankle keeps him two weeks with the Hendersons. Meryl falls in love with Blake. Though still enamored of Christine, Blake becomes engaged to Meryl and sends for his sister, Theresa, to meet her. Meryl leaves for Agate Bay with Blake and Theresa, where the wedding takes place. Blake leaves immediately after the ceremony for one of his mines where a strike is on. Lucia a snobbish cousin of the Lawrences, pays them a visit. She has some of her friends in for dinner. Lucia becomes jealous of the attentions one of her male guests forces on Meryl and in anger tells Meryl that Blake married her as an escape from Christine. Meryl prepares to return home. Theresa persuades her to stay for six months for Blake's sake, whom she still loves, and not to hurt her people. Theresa promises to teach her social service work. Blake returns home and hears from Theresa the trouble Lucia has caused.

A ROMANTIC DREAM.

Blake's thoughts were so far from Lucia Lawrence, when she came at last, her hair and her face perfectly done, and her sinuous body clothed in a brocaded negligee and lounging pajamas, that it was something of a shock to Blake to behold her in the doorway.

"Blake!" Lucia cried tearfully. "Tessie told me you sent for me."

"Did she tell you why?" he demanded.

"Yes. And I'm so sorry, Blake darling! I had no idea last night that I was putting my foot in it."

"What idea could you have had?"

Lucia's rouged lips formed a woebegone pout. "I don't know, Blake, dear. We had all been drinking—and I was furious at Chester—for no reason at all. It was just one of those things."

"And you chose to take it out on Meryl," Blake retorted.

"Not really, Blake. I thought Meryl would have known all about Christine. O, I'm such a dumbbell, Blake, dear! Please, forgive me!"

"You simpering little hypocrite!" he said coldly. "I've a damned good mind to——" He checked himself suddenly, then got up from his chair and stood close to her.

"I want you to get this, if you're not too damned stupid. If you ever insult my wife again by your bad manners —" In futile rage he swung away from her.

Lucia's eyes could fill becomingly with tears to suit her own convenience. "Blake!" she quavered. "We've been like sister and brother all our lives."

"That was wished on me," Blake replied acidly.

Lucia pouted. "You are angry, Blake, or you wouldn't be sarcastic. It isn't like you to resort to sarcasm. It isn't a bit dignified."

With a sudden feeling of nausea at squabbling with a woman, he turned his back upon her and strode to the window which looked out on the sere, melancholy garden.

"O, Blake!"

"Get out!" he exclaimed.

She drifted out of the library. When she reached the hall, she began to hum in her preoccupied way that always made Blake fume. If it weren't for the respect in which he held his dead father's wishes, he vowed, he would send her where she could hum for the rest of her life, unheard by any member of the Lawrence household.

The embarrassed color mounted to his cheeks as he swung about presently and saw Meryl standing in the doorway that had been so lately vacated by the detestable Lucia.

His first fleeting impression was that she had somehow changed. It was the dress she had on, of course—a soft blue affair that Theresa had undoubtedly bought her. It made her look taller and remarkably graceful. Her hair above it shone with a lustrous pallor, in smooth, shallow waves.

"May I come in, Blake," she asked, very composed. She smiled faintly across at him.

"I've been waiting for you," he said simply.

When she had entered he closed the door behind her. Then he stood leaning with his hand on the door knob, looking blankly down at her. His feelings were in such tumult that he found it impossible to speak.

"Hadn't we better sit down, Blake?" she asked in a friendly voice.

He drew her a chair. "I should have gone up to talk with you," he stammered, "but I wasn't sure that you would want to see me."

"Why not?" she asked with a disconcerting directness.

"After what occurred last night, of course," he replied.

She smiled. "I lay awake all night," she said, "or I should have been down earlier. I slept late."

"You lay awake on my account, I suppose," he said gloomily, in an effort to get at once to the subject that was weighing upon the minds of both of them.

"Partly," she admitted. "And partly on my own account. It took a little time for me to—to adjust myself to things."

He leaned forward and gave her a steadfast look. "I've succeeded in making quite a mess of everything, haven't I?" he observed. "You must hate me for what I've done."

"No," she replied, "I don't hate you, Blake. It's a little hard for me to explain just how I feel this morning. I've had a rather strange experience. I got up at dawn and looked out at the lake. And something happened to me—in here——" She laid her hand over her breast. "I can't tell you exactly how I've always felt toward that lake. Whenever I've been in trouble, I've gone and sat beside it—and it has always reminded me that the Hendersons have weathered greater hardships than the one I happened to be suffering at the time. I know how silly that must sound to you."

"It isn't silly at all, Meryl," he assured her.

"You see, I realized my love for you was just a romantic dream—the kind of dream that every young girl has at some time or other, I suppose, until she grows up."

"You mean—I have destroyed that?" he asked.

"I mean—I have grown up, Blake. I didn't know it could happen so quickly."

He got up suddenly and walked to the window, without the aid of his cane. His ankle gave him a twinge of pain, but he ignored it. He turned at last and looked down at her.

"Meryl," he said, "do you want to go home?"

"I did, at first," she admitted. "But Theresa talked to me and——"

"I don't want you to stay here out of charity for me," he told her, and looked levelly into her eyes.

For an imponderable instant, only, her clear gaze appeared to become veiled.

"If I stay," she replied with a glimmer of a smile, "it would not be out of charity to you. It would be out of charity to me."

Blake drew himself up. "I don't know just what is behind that statement," he said harshly, "but if you mean it, there isn't much that I can do about it."

"I can explain it, I think, quite easily," Meryl went on. "It would only make matters worse for you, if I left after having spent two days in your house—as your wife. I don't want to make it more difficult for you than it is already."

"Please!" he protested, but she continued.

"On the other hand, it would be a little embarrassing to me, if I returned home now and admitted that I had failed in the first venture I have made in the world that I have been threatening for the last year or more to enter—without a cent in my pockets. It may sound strange—coming from me—but I don't see how either of us would benefit from my going home—just yet. You made the mistake of marrying a girl you did not love. I made the mistake of thinking that marriage could come only to two people who loved each other more than anything else in the world. We've both made our mistakes. We'll both have to take the consequences, for a little while, at least."

Bachelor Life in Hollywood—as Told by One

Bob Armstrong Prepares for a New Film.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., April 5.—[Special.]—Bachelor life a la Bob Armstrong. Its as interesting a way [for a bachelor] to spend an existence as I've seen practiced here.

The ingredients are simple. In Armstrong's case, they consist of a Mediterranean style hillside mansion full of outdoor patios, sunlight, tile stairways, old oak furniture, scottie dogs, ping-pong tables, exercising rooms, fireplaces and loaded book racks, to which are added a taste for good, old fashioned American cooking, a good old fashioned American cook, and a carefully chosen circle of friends to drop in and help eat the cooking.

Of course, it's more than incidental that there's a neat little bank account for which the movies are to be thanked, to back up all these simple bachelor things; and that, supporting the bank account, there is an appetite for work which, even after 15 years as an actor, is still whetted by its possessor's close escape from practicing law.

Armstrong is just starting as a central character in a new film for Radio-RKO, which is announced as a sequel to "King Kong." He took an hour off to reminisce while packing to go on location with the cast to the Catalina island isthumus.

Regarding the escape from Blackstone, Armstrong says:

"Three of us started out from the University of Washington with a vaudeville stunt we had worked up. We wanted to play it long enough to get a little stake ahead of us to carry over the lean years of starting law practice. That is, the others did. I wanted to get away from the law offices as far as I could—at least as far as New York."

The trio made a success of their skit, satisfied the ambition to reach New York, and there Armstrong got in touch with his uncle, the playwright, Paul Armstrong, and soon found himself a full fledged actor.

"Is Zat So?" came along some years after, with Bob Armstrong and Jim Gleason bracketed in this hit of a decade, and the first thing he knew Bob Armstrong was a movie star at the old Pathe Hollywood studio. Through the various régimes of Pathe, De Mille, Kennedy, and Radio-Keith-Orpheum, that studio outfit clung to Armstrong as star, and he is still on contract to the successor of the company which first signed him up in 1926.

Armstrong started recalling those days when he was playing the boards around the country trying to sidestep his father's law ambitions. "Of the three fellows on that stage trip all are now in Hollywood," he said. "Pete Burns is a haberdasher. I get my hats and ties there. Don Fullen is with a mortgage company. They give me advice on how to be an actor. Being retired actors, they ought to know."

Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"Shame" is a soviet film. It has to do with the running of a turbine factory in Russia. It is so slow moving that it will hardly prove entertaining to such as are not sociologically inclined. Splendid photography, picturesque characterizations and English subtitles are assets.

The film details the blacklisting of an old mechanic who likes his vodka and who is blamed for certain imperfections in a turbine. The flag of shame is hung over his station in the factory—and everybody is much upset. Factions develop. People talk and gesticulate. Pals part, and husbands and wives will have none of each other for a long, long, LON-N-N-G time. But at last all turns out well and great is the rejoicing among the workers of Leningrad.

The characterizations are, sometimes, touchingly dramatic, and here and there is a potent and moving scene. A bit of romance, and some of what passes with Russians for comedy, are occasionally injected. They have a slightly yeastlike effect.

See you soon!

Announces Style Show for Dogs.

All of the aristocrats of dogdom are to have their day on April 18. Yesterday Mrs. Frank Hibbard of the popular Oak Street "Conveniences" announced that she would have invitations in the mail tomorrow for a canine fashion show that afternoon at a Michigan avenue shop yet to be determined. Gold coast mistresses will be asked to walk their Scotties and poodles to the shop, then to turn them over to "treers" who will care for them while their mistresses hear the latest style notes on haircuts, raincoats, and leashes.

The "doggequins" are being selected as the result of careful study of breed, size, and temper.

The "Société des Uns," under the patronage of the Franco-American Society of Chicago and the French consul, Rene Weiller, has sent out invitations for a banquet and concert to be given next Tuesday evening at the Parkway hotel for Carter H. WHO likes to scrub a toilet bowl? It's the meanest chore in the house. Well, don't do it! Keep toilets sparkling clean and purified with Sani-Flush. It's just as easy as this:

First: Sprinkle a little Sani-Flush in the bowl (follow directions on the can). Second: Flush the toilet.

Dried Legumes Often Entirely Too Savorless

It's Cook's Duty to Offset Bland Flavors.

BY MARY MEADE.

"How shall I fix our dried beans like the bought baked beans, but they don't like the ones prepared at home."

That question came in the other day and set me to thinking. There are many folk nowadays doing overtime scheming on ways to pare down the food budget. But it's no easy job. For one of the biggest snags we all hit is the fact that the cheapest foods and the ones that are at the same time the most nourishing ones—bread, cereals, dried peas, beans, and lentils—are often the least outstanding and peppy in flavor. So, when we add a good big share of these blandly flavored foods to every day meals, we're running the risk of serving uninteresting, tiresome dishes unless we have discovered the art of putting snap and tang into them in the kitchen.

If that art hasn't been learned, we can, for it takes only a few new recipes and some assorted suggestions to acquire it.

In the first place, if you would have dried beans at their best, don't go to the bother and expense of preparing them each time you wish to serve them. Enough for three meals may be cooked at one time and each day brought forth in a swanky new dress, thanks to the assistance of those otherwise bothersome vegetable or meat leftovers, dashes of flavor, and blankets of peppy sauce. The macaroni family also has some grand times accompanying cooked dried beans or peas into casseroles, baked loaves, and soups—even into salads and desserts.

There are all kinds of these dried vegetables on the markets—some better than others for this purpose or that. You'll find pea beans, lima beans, kidney beans, navy beans, marrow beans, black beans, split peas, whole peas, and lentils. In general, these foods should be washed, soaked over night in water to cover, drained, and again covered with cold water. Heat in this water until it comes to a slow boil. Then simmer lazily until tender, and add salt and your own favorite seasoning. Soup bones or pieces from low priced pork cuts cooked with the beans add a pleasant tang. Or cook the dry vegetable seeds in the water left from boiled ham or corned beef. Take care, though, that the mixture doesn't become too salty. Added water will take care of the difficulty.

CHILI CON CARNE WITH KIDNEY BEANS.

2½ cups canned tomatoes.
2 cups cooked kidney beans.
2 level teaspoons chili powder.
1½ tablespoons butter.
1 medium large onion.
3 slices bacon.
3 bay leaves.
1 teaspoon salt.
Spaghetti.

Chop the onion and bacon into bits and fry until brown in a heavy pan. Add the meat, salt, and chili powder and let fry for ten minutes. Then add the rest of the ingredients except the spaghetti and simmer over a dawdling fire for about one hour. By the time this peppy conglomeration is ready to come off the stove, have the spaghetti just cooked and spanking hot. The meat mixture is served over the cooked spaghetti.

But don't stop with formal recipes. Create your own! Cooked beans or peas, mashed or whole, make perfect "extenders" for meat loaves, meat or vegetable croquettes, breaded vegetable "cutlets" fried in pan fat or simple cream soups. They turn into delectable "layer dinners" when alternated with layers of hard cooked egg, vegetables, and meat, all swooning in a handsome blanket of tomato or cheese sauce. Yellow split pea soup and black bean soup are both prize winners for economy and flavor. These two recipes, by the way, are available if you would like them.

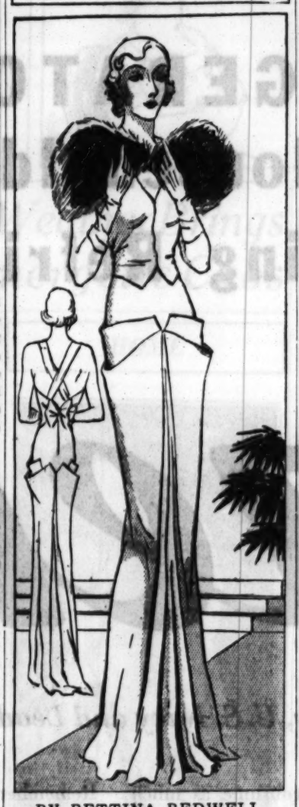
Hobbled Lines Proposed for Paris Evenings



BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Whether the free, boyish fashions, or the stilted early 1900 styles, both being brought out simultaneously by Paris, will win out to be big modes remains to be decided by women over the world. It seems at the moment that both of these very different fashions will have a place in the clothes closets of style-conscious ladies.

Certainly when evening clothes are worn, the picturesque styles of the 1900 epoch will be given a break. Heim proposes for evening a return of the hobble skirt hipline, from that period, which is one of the most extreme of the rising from the dead 1900 styles. The accompanying picture shows what this hobbled hipline looks like on a formal evening frock from Heim. As you see, the lower skirt isn't hobbled like its progenitor. It seems narrow at the knees, but it has a generous and graceful width from the knees to the floor.

This dress is made of palest blue silk cloque and has a vest bodice that is high at a V-neckline in front and low in points at the waistline. In back there is no vest, nothing but crossed shoulder straps and a low draped band near the waistline, which ends in a bow.

MINUTE MYSTERY
CAN YOU SOLVE IT?
BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

REVIEWING THE EVIDENCE.

Studying the official photographs taken at the scene of the crime, Prof. Fordney saw a beautiful young woman of about 25 expensively and tastefully groomed lying on a patch of dense rank grass. Apparently she had waged a valiant battle for her life, for in her gloved hand had been found some blond hairs and her disarranged clothing bore witness to the terrific struggle that had taken place.

Winifred Richards, returning home from town by train, had expected the family chauffeur to meet her at the suburban station at 11:15 p. m. He was late and evidently while awaiting him she had been forced by some one to walk to the deserted spot where the assailant killed her by a blow (probably with a piece of wood) at the base of the neck.

Good detective work and some luck led to the discovery of her body shortly after the commission of the crime. An hour later a big, blond, rough looking character was picked up attempting to board a freight train five miles down the line.

Accused of the crime, he stoutly maintained his innocence, admitting, however, that the fresh scratches on his neck and face had been made by another girl he had accosted who resisted his advances. He insisted, though, that this happened three miles from where Winifred's body was found and stated he had never been near that to the place. No, he didn't know who the girl was.

The police, believing they had Winifred's murderer, were chagrined when Fordney, after reviewing the evidence, stated they were probably holding the wrong man.

One Exercise Can Serve You in Varied Ways

Good for Shoulder, Back Abdominal Muscles.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

To answer your query, Ruth: No. A stiff back and rigid shoulders are the very things the West Point cadets are constantly warned against. A straight, flexible back, yes! Shoulder muscles are not forced back till they ache. Easy, flexible shoulder muscles are the object of the exercises given.

The training idea is to strengthen the muscles, put the right ones to work first, so that they can do their job easily and properly before the commands to straighten up are given.

Earlier in this series I gave a set of shoulder exercises directed by Maj. Harold M. Rayner, in charge of physical training at West Point. One of these consisted of moving the shoulders slowly forward as far as possible, upward on count 2, backward on count 3, and down smartly on count 4. The effect is to get the shoulders working entirely on their own muscular energy and to take out any stiffness or rigidity that wrong shoulder posture may have created.

The order is to get shoulders down and back—not shoved back first. A cramped, rigid style of bearing is not wanted.

The condition of the abdominal muscles exercises a great influence on the carriage.

The relation of shoulder and abdominal and back muscles in posture improvement is seen in the repetition in today's exercise of an exercise previously given for strengthening the shoulder muscles. It's likewise recommended for strengthening abdominal and back muscles.

Roosevelt Gift Ends Hunt for Genuine Dutch Brick

New York, April 5.—[Special.]—After a three year unsuccessful search for an authentic Dutch brick that was actually used in the construction of a New York house of the Dutch period, officials of the Museum of the City of New York have received just such a brick from President Roosevelt. The brick, which was given to the President by Mrs. Ruth E. Perrin of Potsdam, N. Y., was taken from an old house at 75-77 Nassau street that was demolished in 1885.

WILLIAM C. GRUNOW, dynamic manufacturing genius, who again sets the pace for an industry with a new, amazing and outstanding refrigerator.

C. M. Grunow

THE GRUNOW REFRIGERATOR IS SAFE Because It Is the Only Household Refrigerator to Use This Amazing Refrigerant

Carrene*

Used in Chicago Stadium, U. S. Capitol Bldg., Radio City, U. S. Navy and Leading Hotels, Theaters, Etc.

WHEN you buy an electric refrigerator you deserve to know what's inside of it—what freezes the ice, and what keeps the food chamber at a steady, cold temperature. You deserve to know what's inside of it for the protection of your family's health, and for safety.

May we suggest that when you look at electric refrigerators, you make this important test for your own satisfaction: Ask the dealer or his salesman to let you see the refrigerant, smell it and hold it in your hand. If it is a Grunow dealer or salesman you are talking to, he will gladly accede to your request, and will even open up the mechanism right before your eyes.

He will make other tests with the Grunow refrigerant that will amaze and thrill you! Great scientists and engineers acclaim this new Grunow refrigerator, not alone for its absolute safety but for the efficiency with which it operates.

It is an absolute fact that the Grunow is so efficient that during the course of any twenty-four hour period it will not consume as much electric light current as the average light bulb that burns in your home.

The Grunow is beautiful, too. Just one look and you realize immediately how different it is—with its flush door, its jewel-type hardware, its pure white Dulux finish, baked on just as fine automobile finishes are baked on under high temperatures.

Every woman loves beauty, and the Grunow was built to please women. Already thousands of women throughout America have looked, liked and bought the Grunow refrigerator, recognizing instantly that here at last is the pinnacle in something beautiful for the kitchen, at no higher price than for something very ordinary.

Something to be proud of—yes! Yet the main thing to remember is the ultra safety of the Grunow. Its new vacuum principle and its refrigerant—Carrene—assure you the final word in safety and satisfaction.

Remember that Carrene, itself, is not new. It has proved its efficiency and safety over a period of ten years in such large commercial installations as the Chicago Stadium, U. S. Capitol at Washington, Paramount Theatre, Radio City Rockefeller Center, New York; and on many fine passenger ships, where safety to human lives is a positive essential.

It remained for the genius of William C. Grunow to adapt this amazing refrigerant to household use. Now, with this done, Grunow dealers offer you a super bargain in beauty, convenience, efficiency—and price as well. Grunow prices are really astonishingly low for such quality.

★ CARRENE is a harmless, colorless liquid—non-explosive, non-poisonous, non-inflammable, non-corrosive—the only refrigerant that remains a liquid even when exposed to open air in a warm room. Most important, too, Carrene operates at NO PRESSURE. This means safety, simplicity and continuous trouble-free performance.

GLEAMING white one-piece steel—seamless, jointless, and free from dirt-catching ledges and corners inside and out—the new Grunow is made in 5, 6 and 7½ cubic foot sizes. Illustrated is the 7½ cubic foot size that freezes 112 ice cubes—fast! Note the abundant shelf space, concealed ice cube trays, and convenient 9-speed freezing control. 34 outstanding advantages make the new Grunow the most convenient as well as the safest refrigerator you can buy.

OTHER STAKES AT WASHINGTON PARK REDUCED

Big Race to Be June 3 or June 10.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The value of the American Derby, one of the most noted of all 3 year old stakes run in America, which is renewed each year at the Washington Park track in Chicago, has been slashed from $50,000 to $25,000.

C. W. HAY.

The announcement was made yesterday by C. W. Hay, general manager of the Washington Park course. It was not in the nature of a surprise, for after Col. Matt Winn had been reelected president of the American Turf association earlier in the week he announced there would be radical reductions in the values of all stakes and purses.

Washington Park is one of the four tracks operated by the American Turf association.

Preakness First to Be Cut.

The American Derby is the second of the five famous American 3 year old specials to be reduced in value. More than a month ago the Preakness stakes prize in Maryland was cut from $50,000 to $25,000. The Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes in New York were not reduced. Each will be worth $50,000 or more.

The Arlington Classic has been the richest of all 3 year old stakes for two years. It carried $70,000 in added money. No announcement has been made as to what the value of this championship fixture will be when it is renewed in July. Persons close to the Arlington management say there will be a reduction but will not venture a guess on how much it may be.

Other Stake Values Slashed.

The value of all the other stakes to be renewed during the early summer meeting at Washington Park, which opens on May 22, were also cut.

The Illinois Oaks, worth $10,000 and won last year by Suntica, has been cut to $3,000, and the Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap, also worth $10,000 when Gallant Knight won it last season, has also been dropped to $3,000. It will be held this year late in June at Lincoln Fields.

The $5,000 stakes at Washington Park, including the Thomas Curran Memorial for 2 year olds, the Robert M. Sweitzer Handicap, the Washington Park Handicap, and the Debutante stakes were cut in half and will be worth $2,500.

Last year the series of Washington Park stakes carried $87,500 in added money. The new retrenchment policy has dropped the value of them to $41,000 for the impending season. No decision was made on what the value of overnight purses will be, but General Manager Hay said every effort will be made to keep them up to the level of last year which was $800 and $1,000.

Will Be June 3 or June 10.

No date has been selected for the running of the American Derby, but it will be decided either on June 3 or June 10. Col. Winn left yesterday for New York to confer with Belmont Park officials and will endeavor to avoid a date conflict between the American Derby and Belmont stakes.

The American Derby was first run in 1884. The value was $10,000 and Edward Corrigan's Modesty won it. Since 1884 the Derby has been renewed 23 times, and only on six occasions has the prize been worth more than $25,000.

In the 1893 World's Fair Derby, won by Boundless, there was a $50,000 prize, the first ever offered in America. The race had never been worth more than $20,000 up until that time.

Worth $89,000 in 1926.

In 1926, after a lapse of twenty-two years, came the American Derby renewal at new Washington Park, and Col. Edward R. Bradley's Boot to Boot won $89,000 when he galloped home in front. This was the notorious "rubber check" Derby, but Bradley finally collected, and it was the richest of all American Derby prizes. The value of the purse dropped to $25,000 again in 1927 and 1928. Since then and until the purse was sliced yesterday it has been a $50,000 fixture. The winners of these rich prizes were Windy City, Reveille Boy, Mate, and Gusto.

The entries for the Derby as well as for all the other early summer stakes to be run at Washington Park and Lincoln Fields will close May 1.

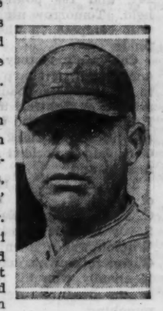
Chicago Willing, but Gibson Won't Play.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Amarillo, Tex., April 5.—A high, cold wind came along here today and blew the White Sox and Pirates out of their third scheduled game into a lawsuit. The game easily could have been played, although under uncomfortable conditions, but the Pirates' manager, Mr. George Mussolini Gibson, would have none of it and declared rather lustily in the hotel lobby that he wouldn't risk injury to his costly athletes.



GEORGE GIBSON.

The local promoter, Jerry Malin, a sports writer, pleaded with Gibson to go through with the agreement, but the manager refused to listen to the argument. The budding promoter then visited Gibson's room, but Gibson, backed by the Pirates' president, remained obdurate. So the scribe promoter went away and obtained a writ of attachment which resulted in the sheriff's taking charge of the uniform trunks belonging to the clubs.

Sox Willing to Play.

The Sox officials, willing to play if Gibson would consent to putting his first team in uniform, kept out of the mixup until this evening. Meanwhile, the Pirate representatives had spent the entire afternoon complacently believing that nothing would happen. They learned differently about 7 o'clock tonight, two hours before their scheduled departure.

Gibson, at that hour, was already on the train, apparently anticipating that some of the hundreds of Texans who were openly indignant about the cancellation of the exhibition, would come down to the depot to await his arrival. Even when everybody was scurrying around trying to readjust matters, Gibson was not seen by any of the newspaper men. Meanwhile, Lew Fonseca, Sox manager, was trying to locate Joe Barry, the Sox secretary, whose signature was necessary before the paraphernalia would be released under bond.

Rail Attorneys Free Trunks.

The legal procedure was launched after a threat. The first intimation came when the early birds arrived at the train to discover that the trunks of the two clubs were loaded on a truck which was guarded by a small gentleman who said he had a writ for them and didn't know whether to move them to the jail house or wait.

Meanwhile, the railroad attorneys were summoned and they adjusted the matter through bonds, permitting the trunks to go on their way, but the clubs will have to be represented when the case comes to trial on April 17. Their fees for lawyers at that time probably will exceed the $250 Promoter Malin claimed he had spent in preparation for the game. In his suit he demands damages of $1,300.

As far as playing conditions were concerned, they were neither good nor bad. The field itself was none too excellent, but the same field was here when the two clubs agreed to play. When the special train bearing the athletes arrived this morning the temperature out of the sun was at freezing, but the mercury rose rapidly. By the time the game was scheduled to start the winds had died down considerably, but it was too late for Gibson to withdraw his lobby oration.

At Tulsa Today, If—

If the weather happens to suit Mr. Gibson tomorrow at Tulsa, Okla., the Sox and Pirates will conclude their spring series which now stands at one victory each. It is Fonseca's intention to work Paul Gregory, who was slated to start today, and if the young man can do things against a high powered team such as the Pirates are conceded to be, it will be a matter of keen satisfaction.

Gregory is being counted upon to be one of the Sox's regular starters this season. Against two Coast league clubs he allowed only one run in sixteen innings, and while it was with minor opposition, it nevertheless was a worthy achievement.

Gregory's opponent tomorrow probably will be Heinie Meine.

Frasier May Be Regular.

If and when Gregory proves himself good enough for regular employment, Fonseca will have three starting pitchers. Ted Lyons is one and the other is Ed Durham, the ex Red Sox player who held the Pirates to three hits yesterday at El Paso. The fourth one may be found in Vic Frasier, who possesses ample skill, but is inclined to make light of the possibilities of lucrative employment in the major leagues. If Frasier can come through it will solve the question of proper rest for both Sam Jones and Milt Gaston.

After the Tulsa game tomorrow the Sox will head for home, arriving in Chicago at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon over the Chicago and Alton. They will rest there until the opener of the two game series with the Cubs Saturday.

TALKING IT OVER

BY ARCH WARD.

THERE is a growing opinion among certain promoters that sport fans today are less interested in the competitive angles of an event than they are in the showmanship with which it is presented.

Wrestling has so far surpassed professional boxing as a drawing card in Illinois there is no longer any comparison. One wrestling show at Chicago Stadium in March produced more revenue for the state athletic commission than the boxers raised in the month of February.

It would be a sad commentary on the intelligence of Chicago's sport fans to state that they pay to see two evenly matched workmen battle honestly for an hour or longer to decide supremacy on the mat. Occasionally perhaps a match is on the level. More often it is not. There is no way of telling.

Wrestling thrives because the fans as a whole are not particularly interested in whether one man is trying to throw the other. They come to be entertained and they seldom are disappointed. The evening would be dull indeed if the contestants had any purpose other than the enjoyment of the clientele in mind.

This is an age of specialization and you can't accuse the wrestlers of being behind the times. They all have their particular holds—flying tackle, airplane spin and polar bear clutch. You never hear of a man using the old style hammer lock employed by Gotch and other leaders of the days when wrestling was wrestling.

William L. Veeck, president of the Cubs, believes his team has one of the brightest outfield prospects that has come into the National league in some time. He refers to Frank Demaree, who will be called upon to fill Kiki Cuyler's place for at least the first two months of the season.

"Demaree will prove himself a great player," Veeck predicted the other day. "Remember, I didn't say a good player. I said a great one."

It was just a year ago this same gentleman told us the Cubs would win the 1932 National league pennant.

Veeck looks for the Cardinals and Pirates to give the Cubs strong competition this year, with the Giants troublesome all the way. He rates the Cardinals more dangerous than the Pirates because of their superior pitching.

There used to be an idea that ping-pong should be played only by elderly gentlemen or delicate girls who could not stand the exertion of golf, tennis, or other sports. That was before men like Coleman Clark, a former all around athlete at the University of Chicago, showed the folks that modern ping-pong in its developed state involved physical strain comparable to many outdoor games.

This department yesterday received announcement of a ping-pong tournament to be conducted by the Oak Park-River Forest association starting April 17, and who do you think are the sponsors?

Chuck McGuire, Charlie Higgins, and S. W. Cochrane, three of the greatest tackles A. A. Stagg developed on the Midway.

REFUSED JOB AS USHER, HE FIRES AT ANDY FRAIN

An unidentified man, angry over his failure to get work through Andy Frain, who has charge of ushers in most of Chicago's sporting centers, drew a revolver and fired four shots at Frain yesterday in the grill at the Chicago Stadium, 1800 West Madison street. The bullets went between Frain's legs and he was unhurt. The assailant fled from the grill before friends of Frain could seize him.

CHICAGO'S GOLF SEASON OPENS THIS WEEK-END

Public Fee Courses Will Serve Beer.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Chicagoland golfers will begin their annual march down the fairways Saturday morning, when many of the district's public fee courses open. The clubs have improved their facilities, have planned tournaments, and have fixed low prices to attract what they hope will be the largest attendance in their history. And, as an added attraction, nearly all plan to sell beer.

This will be the first season in which the patrons of the public courses will have ample opportunity to play competitive golf, for the Chicago Daily Fee Golfers' association has planned a tournament which will give the habitués of 27 links an opportunity to pit their skill against one another.

Beer May Help.

With the return of legal beer the clubs hope to gain additional revenue, and most of the patrons look forward to an increase in the pleasure which they derive from a day spent on the links. Although nearly all the daily fee courses will have bars in the near future, it is doubtful whether many will be ready to dispense the beverage on opening day.

The fact that thousands of conventions are scheduled for Chicago this summer has inclined the managers of the public courses to the belief that they are in for their biggest season. But they are proving themselves good business men by refusing to have their heads turned by the probable influx of tourists.

Visitors Are Protected.

Many municipalities are accustomed to look upon visitors not as customers but as victims, and prices double or triple accordingly. But Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, who is vice president of the Chicago Daily Fee Golfers' association, yesterday explained the attitude of the clubs.

"We do not want out-of-town folks to fear they will be victimized if they come to Chicago for the World's Fair and play on our golf courses. We have no intention of taking advantage of the situation, but will keep prices down to reasonable levels. At most courses rates will be 50 cents for an 18 hole round and $1 for the entire day. On Sundays there will be a minimum charge of $1 and a maximum of $1.75.

Need Additional Revenue.

"Golf has taken a cut fully as great as any other industry. In former years prices were $1.50 to $2.50. Most of our clubs were established six or seven years ago when property values were very high. Accordingly, we are carrying great interest charges. When we undertook these obligations we believed our revenues would stay up, but falling prices have made it very difficult for most of us to keep going. We hope that greater crowds and revenue from beer will carry us through this season on a sound basis."

Among the courses which have made definite plans to open Saturday, weather permitting, are Cog Hill, Westgate Valley, Elmgate, Evergreen, Kinsmans, Silver Lake, Mid City, Oak Hills, Pickwick, Pipe o' Peace, Techny Fields, Vernon, White Pines, and Indian Wood. Many other clubs may open, depending on the weather during the next few days. All of the daily fee clubs will be ready for business by April 15.

Ralph Chrissie, who was professional last season at Silver Lake, has signed up at Indian Wood for the coming year.

Urbanski Finally Signs to Play with Braves

Washington, D. C., April 5.—(AP)—Bill Urbanski finally signed his contract today for the 1933 season with the Boston Braves. Although no figure was announced, the star infielder, who went with the Boston club a year ago last fall, was offered a salary increase early this year, but held out for more money.

No Game, Cold Weather Brings Howl From Energetic Cubs

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kansas City, Mo., April 5.—The Chicago Cubs, like all gents engaged in the baseball playing profession, are disciples of the rest principle. But today, when their scheduled contest with the Kansas City Blues was called off on account of cold weather, there were many who went so far as to say they would rather play a double header than just sit and sit.

The day off made it three in a row for the Cubs and some of the lads who haven't rounded out their conditioning program felt that so long a span would cause them to slide back so much it will be impossible for them to be in physical shape come opening day. This alarm was especially pronounced since there is no assurance that they can play tomorrow or the next day.

Malone Is Irked.

Among those who found the day off especially irksome was Pat Malone, who worked all winter at various exercises to be able to report for spring training weighing in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. When Pat showed up at Catalina he was several pounds under the lowest mark he reached in the regular season and 27 pounds under the weight at which he reported in 1932.

Malone hasn't pitched for ten days and he has had no exercise for three days. He says he hasn't slipped much, but that he must have work and plenty of it if he is to pitch his best in the third game of the opening series with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The thought of Malone crying for work was music to Manager Charley Grimm, who has ideas about how best to handle the big right hander.

Malone Will Get Work.

"Malone does his best pitching with three days rest," said Mr. Grimm. "Pitchers like Charley Root, though strong, need four days and are better with five, but Malone is different from most pitchers. He needs lots of work and the fine part of it is that he likes lots of it. As long as he is in good health, there will be few series this summer in which Malone does not make at least one appearance."

Another who is being done no good by the enforced vacation is Lyle [Fat Boy] Tinning, the distinguished grocery destroyer.

One hears of the heroic fight Tinning has been making to shed the results of his winter victual rampage, but the fact remains that he currently rates as the big bust of the Cubs' off season dreams.

Before Tinning left Chicago after the world's series he was warned that it would not be advisable for him to spend his world series split of $4,200 on groceries and confectionery alone. The young man said that he would strive to keep the delicatessen satan behind him.

Bud Is Trying, but—

During the winter it was reported that Tinning had appointed Rolly [Hobo] Hemsley as his physical director. While serving as a sub catcher for the Cubs, Hemsley had revealed that his theories of physical conditioning were not in accordance with the orthodox prescriptions in such matters, and the word that Tinning had appointed Rolly as his physical director is said to have caused such concern that new warnings were issued telegraphically to Tinning.

Since the training season has opened Tinning has tried hard, but it ever has been apparent that he paid no heed to the several aforementioned warnings, until he came under the direct surveillance of Cub officials.

DORAIS INVENTS 'MUDDLE HUDDLE' TO CONFUSE FOES

Detroit, Mich., April 5.—[Special.]—Charles E. [Gus] Dorais, dean of the active Notre Dame coaches, came up with something novel in the way of a football offense this afternoon when he outlined for his University of Detroit squad what he termed a "muddle huddle."

Briefly the scheme is this: Before the ball is snapped, the line and the back field drop back four yards behind the line of scrimmage. They do not go into the orthodox huddle. Instead they retain two lines. But on the three step count, which is the basis of the Notre Dame system, the linemen begin to shift right and left.

That is, those on the right shift to the left and those on the left to the right. Meanwhile these actions serve as a screen for the maneuvering of the backs, who have the opportunity to drop into a wingback formation or a box, carefully shielded from the opposition.

Added to this, Dorais pointed out, the "muddle huddle" gives the linemen an opportunity to reach the line of scrimmage either in balanced or unbalanced formation. If all this sounds confusing it is just what Dorais expects of Detroit's opponents next fall.

POOR WILDCATS! THEIR COACHES PUT BAN ON BEER

But Crisler Says Tigers Can Have It.

The advent of 3.2 per cent beer tomorrow morning will not make any difference in the lives of athletes at Northwestern university. They'll have to get along without it.

Frank Hill, track coach, speaking for the coaches, said beer would be taboo for Northwestern athletes in training, regardless of what stand coaches at other universities might take.

"It Might Be Harmful."

"Our athletes got along without it during prohibition of beer and before prohibition went into effect legal beer was taboo while 'aining," he said. "They'll have to get along without it now. I don't think it would have any beneficial effect as a stimulant and it might do them harm."

Dispatches from Princeton, N. J. said Fritz Crisler, Princeton's football and basketball coach, was understood to regard beer, taken in small quantities with a heavy meal, as beneficial and would express no displeasure if members of his team drank a glass at dinner.

No Coffee Either, Fellers.

"If I were handling a group of professional athletes who had nothing else to do, I would let them have a little ale," he said, "but college men have too much else on their minds. With their studies and outside activities they have to watch themselves carefully to be at their best for the strain of a track season.'

Albert Neis, the Tigers' lacrosse coach, indicated he would make beer drinking an individual proposition with his players, leaving the question to the players' own discretion. He will not dismiss any one from the squad for indulging occasionally.

WHO'LL SUCCEED RENTNER?

Members of the Northwestern football squad are staging a lively contest to determine who is to take Pug Rentner's place as the fastest runner on the team.

DUNLAP EQUALS RECORD OF 64 IN PINEHURST GOLF

Pinehurst, N. C., April 5.—[Special.]—Brilliant golf was displayed today as George T. Dunlap Jr., Garden City, L. I.; M. P. Warner, New Haven, Conn.; Tommy Goodwin, Monroe, N. Y., and Jack Toomer, Jacksonville, Fla., entered the semi-final round of play in the annual north and south amateur golf championship tournament.

Dunlap, the medalist, equaled the course record of 64, established by Joe Turnesa, as he defeated Dick Wilson, Southern Pines, 5 and 4. Dunlap, former captain of Princeton university's golf team and member of the United States Walker cup squad, shot a 32, four under par, on the first nine.

Warner's hopes of winning a second successive title soared when he triumphed over Jimmy Robbins, Philadelphia. Warner, a Yale student, won the match by 4 and 3.

Goodwin equaled par in beating Johnny Park, Yale university golf captain, 6 and 5. In the other quarter-final match Toomer won from Fumitaka Konoye, son of a Japanese prince, who scored an upset yesterday when he defeated the veteran Jack Ryerson of Cooperstown, N. Y. Toomer triumphed by 4 and 2.

RAH! RAH! SHOOT THAT SEVEN! LET'S TEACH GAMBLING

Every Kiddie Ought to Know Little Joe.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 5.—It is a little early, perhaps, to propose the teaching of gambling odds in the public schools, but it may come to this eventually as the states throw off more of the artificial restraints which they adopted in a spirit of piety during the ten years preceding and the ten years immediately following the enactment of prohibition.

Maine has sanctioned the new beer and even New Hampshire has approved horse racing with gambling facilities, after which it would not be very surprising to hear that South Carolina had voted to establish craps as a varsity sport in the state university and all the public high schools.

There was a time, not very long ago, when horse racing was not only illegal but prohibited in all the states except New York, Maryland, Kentucky and Louisiana. It was illegal, but not prohibited, in Ohio and Florida, where the horse track promoters made private adjustments with the county prosecutors, sheriffs and other politicians and were permitted to violate the laws with the understanding that they would not do so to excess.

This was an unsatisfactory arrangement, however, because inevitably unsympathetic citizens bobbed up, calling themselves leagues for one thing or another, and obtained court injunctions to restrain the horse people from violating the law even to a moderate degree. This made it necessary for the horse people to institute further court actions to have the injunctions set aside and confirm their right to break the laws.

Further embarrassment arose from the fact that safe crackers, pickpockets and burglars thought that they would be allowed to pursue their vocations also. This caused considerable unrest because a league for this or that cannot very well enjoin a safe cracker from blowing a safe unless he has signified his intention in advance. This he is not likely to do, safe cracking being a reticent trade.

In order to clarify the situation, steps were taken in many states to abolish the laws against horse racing and gambling, and there are now so many sites at which the horses may run and the citizens gamble on a legal basis that there is likely to occur a shortage of live stock to fill out the racing cards. It is possible, also, that there will be a shortage of money for gambling purposes, but this possibility is very remote. There seems to be money for gambling when there is no money for rent or groceries.

I do not know why the people wish to gamble and have been demanding the right to do so in many jurisdictions during the last few years, but that is their own business and they do not have to give any reasons. Perhaps it is because they feel that they might as well be completely broke as the way they are, although that is a mere speculation. Whether they know it or not, however, the citizens are certain to wind up losers with the few exceptions of those novices who gamble once, happen to win, and quit permanently.

On the other hand, it is untrue that the race track promoters and bookmakers accumulate the bulk of the money in the course of time, because the majority of them wind up losers also. The promoters are exposed to the risk of fidgety public sentiment, which does not stay fixed, and the prosperous horse track of today becomes the abandoned and weed grown wreck of tomorrow when a new legislature or a reform governor decides that the citizens do not know what is good for them, and runs the horse crews over the state line. The bookmakers spend most of theirs away, and nobody really can say what becomes of the money.

The plant at Agua Caliente, which for several years prospered on the loose wages of the Hollywood moving picture actors and California tourists, seems likely to become another example of the ephemerality of the magnificent horse park and money trap. Caliente ruined Tia Juana and now it is likely that racing will be sanctioned in Los Angeles, in which case there will be no reason for the customers

CELEBRON AND HIGGINS ADVANCE IN A. A. U. MEET

Rothier Withdraws When 8 Pounds Overweight.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Billy Celebron and Gene Higgins won their first bouts at White City last night in the annual Central A. A. U. boxing tournament. Their victories in the welterweight class featured the night's program and brought them nearer to a match which probably will decide who will represent the Central A. A. U. in this weight at the national tournament at Boston, Mass., late this month.

Henry Rothier, Catholic Youth organization and Golden Gloves intercity welterweight champion, did not compete. Henry reported eight pounds overweight and since he did not wish to advance to the middleweight division withdrew. His absence increases the interest in Higgins and Celebron. Higgins won the lightweight C. A. A. U. title last spring, while Celebron reached the welterweight finals, where he lost a decision to Johnny Phagan.

Finals Tomorrow.

The tournament continues tonight at 8 o'clock. Bouts in the 126, 135, 147, and 160 pound classes will be held. Tomorrow night thirty-two boys will compete in the semi-finals and finals.

Celebron's victory was scored with one punch, a sharp right hand blow to Richard Dosenbach's jaw, after one minute of fighting in the first round. Higgins was forced to go three rounds to whip Leroy Clark of Trafton's gym. Gene had a decided advantage in the final round.

The last bout of the night was one of the best. Phil Kenneally of the C. Y. O. whipped Earl Watson of the Savoy Athletic club in the lightweight. Watson was a member of the Golden Gloves intercity squad three years ago. Kenneally won by his aggressiveness in the final minutes and by sharper punching.

Geoghagan Wins.

Bill Treest and Jim Cummings, middleweights on Chicago's intercity Golden Gloves squad, drew byes last night and advanced to the second round.

Lindblom, Parker Enter Wrestlers in U. of C. Tourney

Lindblom and Parker yesterday entered the annual University of Chicago interscholastic wrestling tournament, which will be held at Bartlett gymnasium tomorrow and Saturday nights. Eleven schools now have entered more than 200 wrestlers in the meet.

Lane Tech, Chicago Public High School league baseball champion, will meet Morton at Cicero Saturday. Morton is seeking week-end games with out of town teams.

Preliminaries in the sixth annual Chicago Public High School league swimming meet will be held at Roosevelt pool May 6. The finals are scheduled for May 20. Senn won the senior title last year. Schurz is the defending junior champion.

Rain forced cancellation of several practice baseball games yesterday. The teams will resume preparations today for the championship season, which begins April 17.

Frank Dolac led the Bowen heavyweight basketball scorers with 75 points during the 1932-'33 league season, it was announced yesterday. Jimmy McKirchy was the lightweight team leader with 89 points.

Harrison Tech's leading individual high scorers for the season were Herman with 86 points in the heavyweight division and Hamm of the lightweights, with 71.

The Morton freshman sophomore football team will meet a team composed of former Morton players in a spring practice game at Cicero next Tuesday. Al Kawal, Northwestern university player, will be in the alumni lineup.

Bob Skidmore will be the regular catcher on the Deerfield baseball team during the Suburban league season.

Ring Commission, A. A. U. to Co-operate in Amateur Rule

Chairman Joe Triner and George Getz of the Illinois athletic commission, and Avery Brundage, president, and George Donoghue, vice president, of the Central A. A. U., conferred yesterday at the Illinois Athletic club relative to a bill introduced into the Illinois legislature by Representative John Bolton which would place amateur boxing under the control of the athletic commission. They were the guests of Peter J. Peel.

At the end of the conference, which lasted two hours, the following statement was issued:

"It is the intention of the Central A. A. U. and the Illinois athletic commission to work in harmony on behalf of the amateur boxers and wrestlers in the state. We intend to draft a rule to that effect."

Packey MacFarland, the third member of the commission, was not present. He was at Springfield, Ill., attempting to get action on the 15 round bill for nonchampionship bouts. The amendment has passed the senate, but action on it in the house has been slow.

Triner said that the bill taking away supervision of amateur boxing and wrestling from the Central A. A. U. is being withheld in the house of representatives pending examination by the state athletic board. It was indicated that the bill will be withdrawn at the request of the commission.

Negotiations were reopened yesterday by the Chicago Stadium Operating company for a 10 round contest between King Levinsky and Izzy Gastanaga at the Stadium on April 21. After Mrs. Lena Levy, sister-manager of Levinsky, refused to take the match, Solly King, director of Gastanaga, made the following offer: "We will guarantee Levinsky $4,000 for the bout, $500 to be paid upon signing and the balance to be filed with the Illinois athletic commission and paid after the match."

Mrs. Levy said last night that Levinsky "will not fight Gastanaga for the same reason that Gastanaga will not fight Tony Canzela."

Max Baer, California heavyweight, will arrive in Chicago tonight from Denver, Colo., to train for his 15 round bout against Max Schmeling at New York on June 1, Mike Cantwell, his local representative, announced last night. Baer will begin workouts here tomorrow afternoon.

Kid Irish, Benld, Ill., featherweight, has put in a claim for the state featherweight championship following his victory over Sammy Levine at White City Monday. Tuffy Griffith of the west side is the only recognized Illinois champion. He was recognized as heavyweight champion after he defeated Paul Pantaleo at White City on July 20, 1931.

Johnny Phagan, west side welterweight, and Jackie Purvis of Indianapolis were matched yesterday to meet at the Cicero stadium, April 14 . . . The card at the Rainbo Fronton tomorrow night follows: Young Scotty vs. Chuck Reed, Art Mitchell vs. Fred Gravelle, George Shrosbree vs. Jack O'Brien, Oscar O'Hanlon vs. Duke Calloway, and Al Woznica vs. Rudy Branly and Rudy Kay vs. George Jonasen [both wrestling] . . . An amateur show is to be presented at Fenwick High school on April 26 . . . Joe Savoldi will referee a wrestling exhibition tonight at the Sears Roebuck Y. M. C. A., Kedzie avenue and Arthington street . . . Henry Rothler, Golden Gloves intercity welterweight titleholder, and Harry Booker, Catholic Youth organization featherweight titleholder, are to compete in the show tonight at the C. Y. O. Center, 31 East Congress street.

Jack Dempsey appeared briefly a couple of years ago as sponsor and ostensible promoter of another such resort in Mexico which was to have done to Caliente what the Los Angeles track now threatens to do, but there was just one serious oversight in the plans for Dempsey's place. There was no road leading to it, so the project was abandoned.

Inasmuch as horse race gambling is coming to be considered moral again and the end of the tendency is by no means in sight, it is reasonable to contemplate a further relaxation of public sentiment which would permit of crapshooting, poker, roulette and many other games of more or less chance under state supervision and subject to state tax.

There is a strong sentimental prejudice against the distinctly American game of craps which I am unable to account for. It was the favorite diversion of the armed forces, which fact should give it good patriotic status, and, if disorder and vulgarity be held against the sport, it may be said that it is certainly no more to be condemned on such grounds than horse race betting, which is attended by noisy rooting and thrives on money lust.

Moreover, it is the one American game which is known to more Americans of both sexes and of all social classes than any other.

If gambling is to be acknowledged as a decent practice in any form, then it would be very arbitrary and, possibly, unconstitutional, to legalize horse gambling, with its calculated odds against the victim and discountenance the American sport of craps, which offers a square shake, as the phrase goes, to any one with sufficient mental agility to follow the odds and lay the correct prices.

As to the teaching of gambling in the schools, it is my suggestion that children growing up to face the realities of horse park speculation and possibly the hazards of the legalized crap table should be taught the mathematical formulas which they will need to know. It may be of no practical value for the citizen of the next generation to know whether Andrew Jackson or Benjamin Franklin, if either, said "Give me liberty or give me death." But he, or she, has a right to be told how much the mutuels owe on a $5 ticket on a horse which pays $5.32 for $2, and the correct price to lay for or against Big Dick or Little Joe.

Starling Finds No Welcome in Hunt for Home

BY BOB BECKER.

Instead of hanging out an inviting "for rent" sign, many of the bird fans in Chicagoland appear inclined to maintain a strict "noadmittance policy toward the European starlings. European starlings are increasing in this territory and confidently appropriating nesting boxes and natural nesting sites. Although a number of readers are writing for information about the desirability of the starling as a bird neighbor and especially its relationship to American songbirds, many have decided that they prefer native songbirds to the foreigner now invading the central states.

Certainly the starling needs no encouragement. We have only to look at the trouble which the east is facing due to the enormous increase in the starling population to realize that the starling can take care of itself. Several of the large cities on the eastern seaboard have a starling pest problem. Hundreds of thousands of the birds are defiling public buildings and giving our desirable native birds the "runaround." The starling, originally introduced from Europe, is so cocky, so able to take care of itself and so dominant in character, that it waltzes into anybody's yard and appropriates nesting sites that formerly were the favorites of American songbirds.

During the first week in March one bird fan in Chicagoland wrote us that several martins looked over his martin house and then flew away. It is safe to guess that this bird fan, who is just beginning to learn the species in this section, was looking at starlings instead of martins. The latter species does not appear in Chicagoland that early in the season. The dark colors of the starling, its drooping tail and general speckled appearance are puzzling many bird fans.

Those who wish to get full details on how to identify this invader will find them, along with an illustration, in THE TRIBUNE'S "Birds and Birdhouses," a handy pocket manuel on bird life just off the press. "Birds and Birdhouses" is sold by the public service office of THE TRIBUNE, 1 South Dearborn street. The price is 31 cents by mail or 26 cents at the counter.

Sparrow hawks, which have been slowly coming north, have punched the clock and now are ready for a season in Chicagoland. We saw the first one of the season near our home Monday morning.

FEAR YACHT IS LOST AT SEA IN RACE TO HAVANA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, April 5.—One yacht was feared lost at sea as the Haligonian and Gamecock won the annual St. Petersburg to Havana sailing race in their respective divisions today.

All ships in the vicinity of Dry Tortugas were advised tonight to be on the lookout for the Irondequoit, unreported since a storm and 60 mile wind battered the fleet at the western end of the Florida keys.

The Cynosure, a 36 foot ketch, skippered by Gidge Gandy of St. Petersburg, also was feared lost, but came into Havana harbor at 11:47 o'clock tonight. The Irondequoit is a 60 foot yawl, captained by G. A. Tacot of Tampa.

ORDER AUTOISTS WITH OLD PLATES ARRESTED APR. 15

State Reports 732,000 Vehicles Unlicensed.

BY HAL FOUST.

The secretary of state's office yesterday requested police to begin enforcement of the automobile license laws on April 15. Owners of more than 640,000 passenger cars and 92,000 trucks, still operating with 1932 plates, will be subject to arrest.

Forty-nine per cent of the passenger automobiles and 51 per cent of the trucks of Illinois are without 1933 licenses, according to the records. The law requires vehicles to display plates of the new year on Jan. 1. There was a flurry of enforcement a month ago, but the police have made few arrests since.

A look at the boulevard traffic indicates that lack of cash cannot account for all of the failures to buy licenses. Some old plates were seen on expensive machines, a few chauffeur driven. An illegible 1932 number was noted on a 1933 model sedan.

Some of the '32 Licenses.

Here are a few of the 1932 license numbers, with the names of the persons to whom they were issued, that were noetd on the Michigan avenue bridge.

892-838—[Cadillac]—Ed H. Waddell, 6800 Cottage Grove avenue.
420-353—[Lincoln]—T. D. Randall, 5110 Kenwood avenue.
707-094—[Cadillac]—Lawrence F. Helmbacher, 939 Sunnyside avenue.
449-367—[Packard]—Mrs. Wilhelmina Fleischer, 5424 Wayne avenue.
709-246—[La Salle]—James P. Lynch, 4856 West Huron street.

In the traffic with these larger cars bearing 1932 plates were many dilapidated old models of the flivver types whose owners have paid for this year's licenses as their legal fee for use of the highways. The revenue from this excise is used in paying interest and principal on the road bond issues and in financing highway maintenance.

Old Licenses on Four Cabs.

"It's the driver's fault if he doesn't have the new plates," said M. M. Sokoll, president and general manager of the cab company. "The company paid $15,000 to the state, $13,000 for city stickers, and $7,500 in city cab stand licenses shortly after the first of the year.

"I suppose the taxicab chauffeurs haven't put on their new plates because the police haven't insisted upon it. The cab drivers are no different than other motorists in this respect."

In addition to furnishing revenue to the state, a purpose of the automobile plates is to furnish identification in case of accident or violation of the law.

Behind Last Year's Figures.

According to A. R. Millard of the automobile bureau of the secretary of state's office, 638,784 passenger cars and 88,829 trucks had been registered for 1933 up to April 1. On the same date of 1932 taxes had been paid on 884,258 passenger cars and 119,515 trucks. The total registration for last year was 1,311,783 passenger cars and 181,715 trucks.

Other states have extended the time for paying the license or have reduced the amount of the fee. Illinois legislators have been reluctant to touch our license laws on the grounds that any change might jeopardize the validity of the $160,000,000 road bonds to which the revenue is obligated.

BAPTIST SCHOOLS AND CHARITIES GET BULK OF GEO. LEASK ESTATE

New York, April 5.—(AP)—Charitable institutions, most of them associated with the Baptist faith, received large bequests in the will of George Leask, private banker, filed for probate today.

The Baptist Fresh Air Home society and the New York City Baptist Mission society each received $100,000.

The Manhattan Eye, Ear, and Throat hospital was named to receive the remainder interest in the principal of a $40,000 trust fund.

The Moody Bible institute of Chicago received a remainder interest in two-thirds of a $75,000 trust; the other third went to the Fort Valley High and Industrial school, Fort Valley, Ga.

The Northfield schools of East Northfield, Mass., received a fourth of remainder trust of $100,000. The rest of the trust went to the Baptist Home for the Aged in the Bronx.

Of a $75,000 trust, two-thirds was left to the American Baptist Home Mission society; one-third to the Women's American Baptist Home Mission society.

Caroline Wells, a cousin, of Scioto, Pa., was left $125,000. Equal interests in a $40,000 trust fund went to Evelyn B., Irving B., and Harry Atwater Wells, all of Scioto.

Ida B. Leask, widow of the banker's half brother, Arthur, of Waukesha, Wis., was left a life estate in $75,000. Helen Townsend, a distant relative of Montvale, N. J., was bequeathed $50,000. Charlotte Leask, widow of another half brother, of Phoenix, Ariz., received a life interest in $75,000.

The will provided for other bequests totaling more than $200,000. The residuary estate was left to the New York Homeopathic Medical college and Flower hospital.

Six widows so far have identified Stanley Brett, 54 year old ex-convict, as the "friend of your late husband" who defrauded them under pretense of helping them for the sake of auld lang syne. Brett is under arrest at the Rogers Park police station.

Mrs. Emily Haggberg, 1321 Belmont avenue, yesterday signed a complaint charging Brett with bigamy. She said that under the name of Shirley Brewster he was married to her. He then took $500 of her money. Mrs. Theresa Hella, 1327 Belmont avenue, signed a complaint charging larceny by bailee, alleging that he made love to her and then defrauded her of $500.

The other victims of Brett are Mrs. John A. Hough, 130 North Lotus avenue, whom he married and left after taking her $3,000; Mrs. Albert Hopkins, 2752 Warren boulevard, who declared Brett took some of her jewelry; Mrs. Ida Madsen, 3250 LeMoyne avenue, from whom he "borrowed" $57, and Mrs. Frank S. Hansen, 1634 Granville avenue.

Mrs. Hansen caused the arrest of Brett. She became suspicious of his motives because she had read of Mrs. Hough's experience.

Fourth Child in Family Dies of Pork Poisoning

Frances Frapaselli, 12 years old, of 4925 South Dearborn street, died yesterday at the county hospital, the fourth member of her family to die of pork poisoning. The others were James, Anthony, and Dorothy. Four other children and the parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Frapaselli are in the hospital seriously ill, and some of them may also die, doctors said. The family of ten was stricken March 19, when they ate infected pork.

Labor Secretary of Mexico Here on Way to Mayo's

MRS. CUSTER, 90, WILL BE BURIED AT WEST POINT

New York, April 5.—(AP)—A brief informal funeral service was held today for Mrs. Elizabeth Bacon Custer, 90, widow of Gen. George A. Custer, the cavalry leader who was killed with his entire command at the battle of the Little Big Horn in 1876.

The service was held in the Park avenue apartment where Mrs. Custer died yesterday and was attended by a few close friends, mostly elderly women. It consisted of a prayer and the reading of a psalm by the Rev. H. P. Silver, chaplain at West Point from 1913 to 1918 and an old friend of Mrs. Custer's.

During the service the flag flew at half-staff on the city pole in Mandan, N. D., the same pole from which the flag flew over Fort Abraham Lincoln the day Custer and the 7th cavalry rode off on the mission from which they never returned.

Mrs. Custer's body will be sent to West Point tomorrow afternoon for burial in the cemetery where her husband lies. Services will be conducted in the chapel there by the chaplain, the Rev. Arthur Kinsolving.

New York, April 5.—Late selling weakened bond prices today after the list had negotiated the first substantial rally in about two weeks. The end of the general advance came on the heels of sharp breaks in speculative railroad bonds, notably issues of Chicago and Northwestern.

Steady buying kept federal government issues on the upgrade, especially those due within one or two years. A feature of strength were Liberty fourth 4¼s, which are callable on April 15 next for conversion as early as next October. Indicating better feeling toward treasury refinancing, long term governments were slightly better.

North Western Sags 7 Points.

Losses up to 7 points were shown by Chicago and North Western bonds late in the session; the low priced 6½s due 1936, particularly were singled out for selling. Southern Pacific and Great Northern were other conspicuous losers.

The reason for the selling of Chicago and North Western was the feeling in the street that this road will be the next one to move for bankruptcy under the new law, the Missouri Pacific having taken advantage of the new regulations only last week.

Railroad bonds were in the van of the early rise, reflecting a sudden change of sentiment toward the group on reports of increased carloadings by some of the important carriers, which in turn led to a revision of earnings forecasts. Ease in money rates was another factor.

Industrials Are Firm.

High grade industrial issues participated in the early improvement with the withdrawal of offerings and short-covering of effective proportions. Also the day saw the return of many buying orders which had been withdrawn because of banking difficulties.

Utilities returned to favor, and while not greatly changed on the whole they exhibited impressive strength in better grade issues both on the stock exchange and on the curb.

Improvement in public utility bonds on the stock exchange included issues of American Telephone, Consolidated Gas of New York, Pennsylvania Power and Light 4½s, New York Telephone general 4½s, and others.

Please give me information in regard to Toledo Edison company 5 per cent bonds, due 1962.—B. O. C.

Toledo Edison company is controlled by Toledo Light and Power company. It furnishes electricity to Toledo, Defiance, and neighboring Ohio communities.

In January, 1933, the Defiance city council ordered the company to remove its distribution system from the city streets within 60 days after expiration of contract. The council maintains that authority to do business rests in two rate contracts, one of which expires Dec. 26, 1933, and the other in August, 1934. The company announced that it will fight the order, maintaining that it has a perpetual franchise, acquired as successor to Auglaize Power company.

In November, 1932, the company offered $27,500,000 first 5s, due 1962, to retire $26,458,000 outstanding bonds.

Operating revenues for the 12 months to June 30, 1932, were $9,365,000 and charges were earned 3.19 times.

Operating revenues for 1931 were $10,072,000, against $10,903,000 for 1930 and $11,316,000 for 1929. Charges were earned 3.51 times in 1931, 4.34 times in 1930 and 4.33 times in 1929.

Giving effect to sale of the bonds current assets on Aug. 31, 1932, were $3,898,000 and current liabilities were $2,403,000.

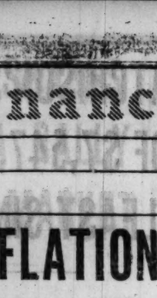
75% INFLATION URGED BY 300 U. S. LEADERS

Would Raise Prices to 1926 Level.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Seventy-five per cent inflation—to be accomplished by raising the price of gold from $20.67 to $36.17 an ounce—is urged in a proclamation released last night by a group of three hundred industrial leaders and executive heads of organizations of national scope.



F. H. FRAZIER.

This group, which goes under the name "Committee for the Nation, to Rebuild Prices and Purchasing Power," is headed by a directing committee consisting of Frederic H. Frazier, chairman General Baking company; Vincent Bendix, president Bendix Aviation corporation; Lessing Rosenwald, chairman Sears, Roebuck & Co.; F. H. Sexauer, president Dairymen's League Coöperative association, and J. H. Rand Jr., president Remington Rand, Inc.

The Committee for the Nation in February urged an embargo on gold and suspension of specie payments as first steps toward rebuilding the price level and restarting business.

Five More Steps.

Before arriving at these conclusions the committee commissioned the National Industrial Conference board to prepare by special research fifteen surveys covering the economic and financial situation of the country. The committee also carried on investigations and continuous hearings of its own. Industrial leaders, bankers, economists and financial experts contributed from their experience and background to the committee's work.

"Reports in the hands of the committee indicate that at present the forces of deflation remain unchecked and that there is grave danger, unless decisive action is taken, that they may be accelerated," says a letter accompanying the recommendations.

Fear Credits in Danger.

"The effects of the prevailing low price level now threaten to undermine other credit institutions. The reports in the hands of the committee indicate to it that the credit of insurance companies, railroads, and municipalities may soon be menaced by strains similar to those which endangered our banking structure. These reports are from the same sources which in January disclosed the danger to the banking situation."

The effect of suspending specie payments, the committee asserts, has not been felt so far in the United States because the dollar has been pegged at par in international exchange markets, while Great Britain and Japan cheapen their money and persistently undersell American merchants and manufacturers.

The National Industrial Conference board's special research report to the committee shows that between 1929 and 1932 the price the farmer received for the goods he sold fell from 100 to 11, while the cost of his purchases decreased only to 75.

Farm Buying Halted.

"Debts and interest payments continued unchanged; taxes increased," the report states. "His income was almost wiped out. The disparity in prices makes him unable to buy as formerly from industry in the city.

"This cuts down the volume of freight shipments, closes factories, throws city workers out of employment, and reduces their ability to buy from other industries. The drop in price level thus makes it difficult for one group to carry on business with another."

All economic groups, the committee says, have been injured by the drop in the price level, which has already wiped out approximately 175 billion dollars of value.

"Until we deal with this monetary cause of the depression," it contends, "there can be little hope of recovery. Measures to reduce the debt structure or to relieve distress or give employment out of public funds are only palliative.

"The best place where twelve millions of unemployed can find work is in their formerly accustomed positions in factory, commerce, and agriculture. Our efforts must be directed to removing the causes which brought this organization to a standstill.

"Our economic system has proved itself the most efficient for production that the world has ever seen. Like a high powered automobile, it is stalled because the distributor on its magneto has broken down.

"Instead of tinkering with the body of the car we must direct our efforts at the source of the trouble."

Committee Five Point Plan.

The five point inflation plan which the committee says will result in a gradual increase in the price level that will eventually carry prices back to 1926 levels is as follows:

"1. Recognize that bank deposits constitute the nation's important me-

Steel Mills Lift Output; Orders Gain

Steel ingot output has increased to 16½ per cent of the country's capacity from 15 per cent last week, according to the Iron Age. The improvement is ascribed by the journal to a "Broadening in the demands for steel, aided by increasing production schedules in the automobile industry and requirements of the brewing industry."

At Chicago, ingot production has gained two points to 13 per cent of the district's capacity "because of a better miscellaneous demand, as well as orders for sheets for beer barrels, releases of 5,000 tons of rails for a western road and reinforcing bars for highway construction." The Iron Age says "a further gain in operations is likely before the end of the week."

Rush Orders Received.

Some individual units of the steel industry have had a "surprising influx of rush orders, principally in last minute specifications against low priced first quarter sheet contracts, which the mills insist must be shipped by April 15." In the Pittsburgh district, there has been a slight rise in steel operations. In other districts, finishing mill schedules have been accelerated, particularly in the lighter products.

"The dip in business caused by the recent bank holiday is illustrated by the blast furnace production figures for March, which show a falling off of 11.7 per cent in the daily pig iron output last month, as compared with February," says the Iron Age.

Pig Iron Sales Improve.

Merchant pig iron sales have improved, according to the journal. "A stiffening of prices is apparent in nearly all districts," it says, "with prospects of some outright advances in the near future. The $1 a ton higher level recently announced in eastern Pennsylvania has been established by small lot sales, bringing about the first increase, to $13.68, in the Iron Age composite pig iron price since May, 1929, since when there has been an average drop of $5 a ton."

The Iron Age composite price for finished steel has declined to the lowest level since the world war because of a sharp reduction in prices of steel pipe. The present composite price is 1.879 cents a pound, compared with 1.923 cents. The composite price on heavy melting steel scrap remains at $7.08 a gross ton.

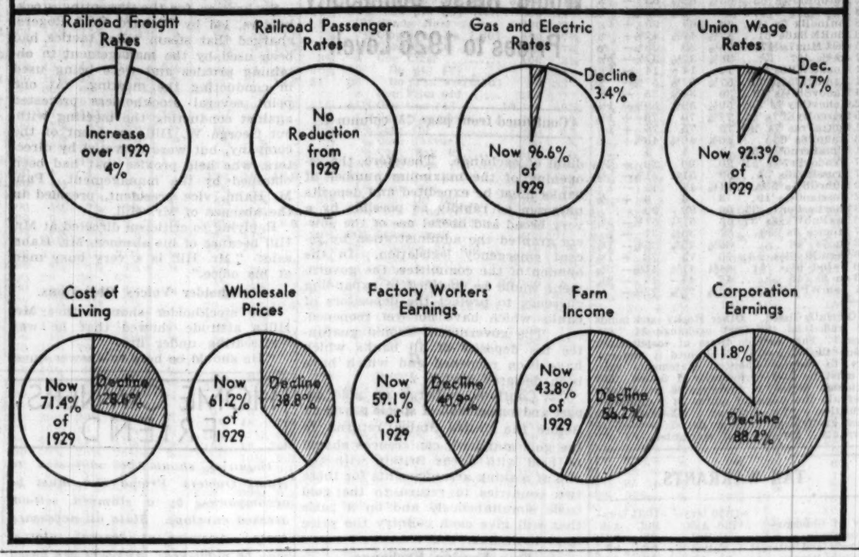
How Much Decline Since the Boom?



Seek Capital to Open Bank in Oak Park

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Plans for raising the half million dollars needed to free the deposits of the Oak Park Trust and Savings bank were launched yesterday in the western suburb. The bank's $3,200,000 deposits have been tied up since the beginning of the moratorium. Included among the depositors are schools, churches, and civic organizations, whose activities have been hampered by the closing of the bank.

The raising of the new money has been set as a condition for reopening by the state and national banking authorities. The bank, a state institution, was founded 41 years ago and has been a member of the federal reserve system for many years. It is the largest bank in the suburb.

Meeting Discusses Plans.

Plans for raising the money were outlined yesterday at a meeting of the Oak Park Rotary club at the Oak Park club. The meeting was attended by the leading business men and property owners of the village. Ellis H. Denney, president of the bank, and Robert E. Nicholas and George R. Hemingway, directors, attended.

As outlined, the plan calls for a 50 per cent assessment on the capital stock, which amounted to $1,000,000. The inability of many stockholders to furnish the full amount at present necessitates the raising of funds to make up the deficiency in order to enable the bank to open in the near future. Plans were made for the forming of a syndicate among the business men of the suburb to supply the needed funds pending the raising of the full amount by the stockholders.

Reopen Stock Yards Bank.

While more than 20 other city and suburban banks went ahead yesterday with plans for reopening or winding up their affairs, arrangements were completed for resumption of normal banking in the stock yards community. The new Livestock National bank will begin business today as successor to the Stock Yards Bank and Trust company.

State Auditor Barrett announced last night that five downstate banks have been given authority to reopen this morning. They are:

GREENFIELD—Farmers State Bank of Greenfield.
ST. ELMO—Fayette County bank.
UNION—State Bank of Union.
CORNLAND—State Bank of Cornland.

GERMANY TO PAY FOREIGN CREDIT OF $70,000,000

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 5.—The Reichsbank announced today it would repay its rediscount credit of $70,000,000 to America, England, France and the Bank for International Settlements at Basel within a few days. This would reduce the gold currency covering to around 15 per cent.

Repayment will entail the sale of gold abroad to acquire the necessary foreign currencies. Twenty-two hundred pounds in gold, which Germany expects from Russia in a week in payment for German goods, will help in the transaction.

The rediscount credit was extended for three months at the beginning of March, when the Reichsbank agreed to repay $16,000,000 and creditors reduced the interest rate to 4 per cent.

Now it transpires that the creditors demanded a gold clause amendment as protection against fluctuations of the dollar. Although such fluctuations are considered highly improbable in view of reassuring reports from the United States, nevertheless the Reichsbank states it prefers to offer repayment.

One creditor of the bank—reported to be the Bank of England—accepted the offer of repayment of its quarter share. As all creditors must be treated equally, the Reichsbank will now repay the entire credit.

Financial circles point out that the Reichsbank is thus equaling the record of the Bank of England which a year ago suddenly and unexpectedly repaid £110,000,000 [about $550,000,000 at par] rediscount credit to the United States and France.

It is declared that the Reichbank's repayment cannot affect the stability of German currency, since "stability does not depend upon covering through gold foreign currencies, but on maintenance of the note circulation in an appropriate relationship to the production and turnover of wares."

The rediscount credit was originally taken up in the critical summer of 1931 by Hans Luther, then president of the Reichsbank, to avert the psychological shock of the note covering falling below the legal limit of 40 per cent. As the credit fell of this purpose and as the annual interest payment demands amounted to $3,000,000 a year, Hjalmar Schacht, who recently became head of the Reichsbank, says he decided the time was ripe to end it.

Power Output Second Best in Over Year

Showing an accelerating improvement, the electricity output for the Chicago district for the week ended April 1 was 88,502,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 91,681,000 kilowatt hours in the coresponding period last year, or a decrease of only 3.5 per cent.

According to the Electric Edison institute the national electricity output for the week ended April 1 showed a decline from the like period of 1932 of only 5.3 per cent.

This week's percentage, both for the Chicago district and the United States, is the smallest decrease, excepting one, for a little over a year.

Spread Grows Narrower.

For the week ended March 25 the margin of decline from 1932 for the Chicago district was 6.1 per cent; for the week ended March 18, 10.2 per cent; for the week ended March 11, 13.2 per cent. Production for the week ended March 25, however, was 90,526,000 kilowatt hours.

The Edison Electric institute reports that the output of the United States for the week ended April 1 amounted to 1,402,142,000 kilowatt hours, against previous week, and made the most favorable comparison with 1932 since Feb. 18. For the week ended March 25 the percentage decline was 6.9 per cent.

Output by Regions.

The central industrial region was 8.1 per cent under last year, as against 10.9 per cent in the week ended March 25. The Atlantic seaboard had a decrease of 4.6 per cent, against 4.3 per cent; New England alone 7.2 per cent, against 7.6 per cent, and the Pacific coast 5.7 per cent against 4.1 per cent. For the week ended Feb. 18 the decrease for the nation was 4.9 per cent.

Preliminary figures for the Chicago district for March, although not so good as those for February, are about the same as the average of the last five months.

U. S. Treasury Seeks Bids on New $75,000,000 Issue

Washington, D. C., April 5.—(AP)—Secretary Woodin today invited tenders for $75,000,000 of 91 day treasury bills to be sold to the highest bidder on April 10. The bills will be dated April 12, and will mature July 12.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain prices forged ahead again yesterday to a new high since March, 1932, for cash corn and to the best figure of the season on September wheat, July and September corn and oats, and all deliveries of rye. Profit taking which appeared in the early trading was readily absorbed and later general commission house buying swept aside all opposition to an advance and put May wheat to 56⅞ cents, or 13¾ cents above the recent low, while May corn touched 33⅛ cents. The latter was nearly 10 cents above the lowest level of the season.

Bullish sentiment was rampant and there was a marked broadening in outside interest in all grains. Further talk of inflation in the currency was heard, but the dominating influence was the continued sensationally bullish crop comments on the winter wheat crop from the west and southwest.

Cash Corn in Demand.

As has been the case for several weeks, cash grain led the upturn in futures, the former being quoted steady to ½ cent higher, as com-

Expect Freight Gain of 16% in Middle West

Railroad freight traffic in the middle western states in the next three months will run 16 per cent ahead of the comparable period last year, according to estimates made public yesterday by the American Railway association. The anticipated increase in the middle west is the largest for any of the 13 sections in the country.

The estimate is based on reports made by the shippers in the district. The reports are gathered by the 13 shippers' advisory boards throughout the country and are compiled by the railway association. Reports were received from 20,000 shippers throughout the country.

It is estimated that the country as a whole will show a decrease of three-tenths of one per cent in railroad traffic for the quarter as compared with last year. Four sections expect an increase of which the middle west anticipated the biggest gain. The other sections expecting an increase are Ohio valley, 10.4 per cent; Allegheny, 3.1 per cent, and southeast area, 2.1 per cent.

The estimates are based on 29 principal commodities representing 90 per cent of the total carload traffic. The present estimate covers the months of April, May, and June.

The large increase is expected in this section because many coal mines which were closed last year are now operating. At this time last year the coal traffic was at a minimum because of the labor difficulties at the mines.

The advisory predict loadings of 3,606,491 cars this quarter as compared with actual loadings of 3,618,392 in the second quarter last year. This is the expected decrease of .3 of 1 per cent.

An increase of 11.9 per cent in cotton loadings is estimated, while citrus fruits are expected to gain 4.5 per cent. Loadings of sugar, sirup, and molasses are placed at 4.6 per cent above a year ago and ore and concentrates .7 of 1 per cent ahead of 1932.

ATCHISON'S NET OF $7,547,000 LEAST SINCE '99

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, rated among the soundest of America's railway systems, managed to keep out of the deficit column, in which so many of the systems found themselves in 1932. Its net income, however, was the smallest reported during the present century. Not since 1899 has its net corporate income been as small as the $7,545,000 reported for 1932.

W. B. STOREY. [Moffett Photo.]

The pamphlet report of the system, containing information on all phases of its operations last year, was issued yesterday by President W. B. Storey.

The report contains a statistical table showing and giving the operating results of the system during the last 35 years. The record provides a striking illustration of what happened to the American railroad industry in 1932.

1929 Net Was 61 Millions.

The results for 1932 appear in sharp relief against the showing in the preceding 31 years. To match the 1932 net income figure of 7½ millions one must go back to 1899 when net was just short of 7 millions. In the intervening years net corporate income had never fallen below 13 millions. The all time peak of 61 millions was

URGES U. S. GIVE UP RECAPTURE CLAIM ON ROADS

Eastman Also Asks Control of All Mergers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 5.—Repeal of the recapture provisions of the interstate commerce act, under which the railroads face claims now estimated at $342,239,689, and increased control over unifications of railroads were urged today before the senate interstate commerce committee by Joseph B. Eastman, member of the interstate commerce commission.

Speaking for the railroad regulating agency, the commissioner also urged enactment of other provisions in two measures which have been favorably reported to the house by the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce. These related to a simplified rule of rate making, offered as a substitute for the present rule requiring rates to be based on values of the railroad property, and to amendment of the railroad valuation law to relieve the commission of the duty of reporting valuations of the railroads.

Would Control Holding Concerns.

The proposed legislation, which is to be included in President Roosevelt's rail legislative program calling for a federal railroad coordinator, also amends the consolidation provisions of the interstate commerce act so as to give the commission complete control of unifications of any kind of railroad properties. Holding companies controlling railroads, such as the Van Sweringen and Pennsylvania operations, would be brought under the regulation of the commission.

The financial plight of the railroads generally is such that even if the government pressed to a conclusion its claim under the recapture provisions of the act no money would be forthcoming, according to Commissioner Eastman.

Would Return Payments.

Payments made by railroads into the commission's recapture fund, plus interest, now total $13,124,819. This would be returned to the paying railroads if recapture were repealed.

The recapture provisions have been in the law since 1920, but no single final legal determination of the amount due by any railroad has been made, the money in the recapture fund having been paid subject to legal protest.

Masters Appointed to Hear Rail Reorganization Cases

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday named three special masters in chancery to hear railway reorganization cases under the new bankruptcy act. They are: Jacob I. Grossman, Chicago district; Frank T. Boesel, Milwaukee, and Harry O. Chamberlin, Indianapolis.

CARRIER SHARES DERAIL A RALLY IN STOCK MARKET

Rumor Some Roads Will Use Bankruptcy Act.

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 5.—A break in the rails, precipitated by rumors that other roads with heavy debts were preparing to follow the example of the Missouri Pacific in seeking relief under the new federal bankruptcy laws, this afternoon interrupted the most promising little rally the stock market has known in weeks.

The selling started in Chicago and North Western, spread to Great Northern, Illinois Central, and other midwestern and western issues, and then to the rest of the group. Some of the outstanding targets of the movement dropped from 3 to more than 5 points from their highs of the day. Chicago and North Western lost an even half of its listed value as recorded earlier in the session, dropping from 3 to 1¼ points and then firming up at 1½, where it closed. Sales in this issue were unusually heavy.

Union Pacific melted down from an early high of 67⅝ to 61¼, where it closed, 4 points below yesterday's final. Illinois Central gave up nearly 2 points net.

Eastern Rails Lose Less.

Eastern rails, including Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, and New Haven, fell back behind minus signs, although the losses in this division were not nearly so pronounced as in the others.

Anxiety over the outlook for the rails was emphasized to some degree by the circulation of a number of surveys of listed companies which might be considered, on the basis of their known financial conditions, to be in line for possible capital readjustments.

Up to the time of the break the rails were joining in the general rally in a manner that excited no little comment, considering the spirited performances they had been putting on lately. Reports of proposed increased expenditures by various roads for maintenance and renovation of equipment and advance estimates indicating some encouraging statistics in the second quarter earnings statements contributed to the early show of strength of the group.

Many Industrials Gain.

Most of the other groups gave ground with the carriers, but a long list of industrial favorites mustered enough resistance to retain anywhere from a fraction to a point of their early gains. Allied Chemical, American Can, United States Steel, General Motors, Westinghouse—in fact, a big majority of the so-called pivotals—managed to finish behind plus signs.

Trade reviews emanating from various quarters, indicating a modest upturn in business activity, especially in the major industries, helped to support the list. Steel shares were particularly well supported on statistics disclosing slightly improved conditions in that industry. The motors came in for their share of buying on growing spring activity in the big plants of the industry.

Sugar stocks had another good day. American Sugar mounting to a new high for the year. Gossip had it that a pool is operating in this issue, with 40 as its objective.

JOHN M. NICHOLS REPORTS HIS BANK IS 107 PCT. LIQUID

John M. Nichols, president of the First National Bank of Englewood, who is known in banking circles throughout the country as 100 per cent liquid Nichols, yesterday issued a report for his bank as of March 31 which showed that his bank was 107 per cent liquid on that date.

The report showed deposits of $4,418,725 against liquid assets of $4,727,877. Liquid assets included $1,503,448, cash on hand; $5,306, due from correspondent banks; $1,512,559, United States treasury bonds and notes; $749,000, purchased loans secured by liberty bonds, and $1,557,562, short term bonds. Non-liquid assets totaled $5,430,773.

Ordinarily statements of condition published by national banks carry this legend: "Published by direction of the United States government." Since no reports were ordered at this time Mr. Nichols said his statement was published by direction of "a clear conscience."

RALLY IN HOGS MAKES CHICAGO HIGHEST MARKET

Prices Up 5 to 10 Cents; Supply Larger.

Hog prices pushed slowly upward after a steady opening yesterday and closed mostly 5 to 10 cents above the average of the previous day. Prices again pulled away from those in vogue at other leading places, making Chicago relatively the highest point in the country.

This additional gain was made in face of the heavier supplies handled here. Local receipts for the first half of this week show an increase of 12 per cent compared with the first three days of last week. The total at the 10 leading outside markets showed a gain of only 5 per cent over a week ago.

Tops were again back to the $4 line, showing 5 cents gain over Tuesday. The general average at $3.85 was also up 5 cents. Most support came from local interests yesterday, notwithstanding the weakness displayed by fresh pork, which lost the meager gains registered earlier in the week.

Bank Reopening Helps Trade.

Announcement that the Live Stock National Bank of Chicago would open today, releasing accounts of packers and commision firms which have been tied up in the Stock Yards Bank and Trust company since the banking holiday was declared for Illinois, had a good influence on the trade. Smaller packers and city butchers were aggressive.

Little encouragement was found in news from outside points. St. Louis reported top hogs selling at $3.65. Early last week that point sold hogs in line with Chicago.

Cattle Prices Irregular.

Yearlings averaging 1,007 pounds and prime 1,230 to 1,248 pound steers sold to Swift and Cudahy advanced the top price to $6.40. This price was 15 cents above Tuesday's peak. Heavy steers averaging 1,389 pounds brought $5.50, while 1,620 pound beeves were cashed at $4.30 and 1,729 pounders at $4.

Yesterday's 10 to 25 cents break in lamb prices brought the market close to the lowest point since 1901. Yesterday's top sale at $5.50 showed a loss of 15 cents, and was only 15 cents above the 32 year low. On Dec. 18, 1931, top lambs sold at $5.35. The same price brought top grades on Oct. 20, 1932, while best lambs on Feb. 22, 1933, sold at $5.40. These were the only days with lower top sales than yesterday.

LATE RALLY IN LARD

Lard had a rally after being easy early and closed around the best prices, which were the same as the previous day except on July, which was 2½c lower. Commission houses bought early and packers put out a fair number of hedges. Cash business in lard was quiet, with regular, $4.17½; loose, $3.62½, and leaf, $3.50. Cash bellies were picked up in a moderate way at $5.12½. Pork loins were easier at 7 to 8½c. Prices follow:

COLLEGE INN TO HAVE CASINO AT WORLD'S FAIR

Sponsored by the Pabst Interests.

BY AL CHASE.

Hotel Sherman interests are to operate what is claimed will be the World's Fair's largest and finest group of restaurants—the Pabst Blue Ribbon casino, to be erected at the south end of Northerly island, on the site of the defunct "Hollywood-at-the-Fair," which failed to materialize. The project, designed by Holabird & Root, will be sponsored by the Premier-Pabst Sales company, a subsidiary of the Pabst Brewing company of Milwaukee, it was announced yesterday.

The catering [except, of course, the 3.2 per cent liquids] and the entertainment will be supplied by a newly formed corporation known as "College Inn Management."

Ernest L. Byfield of the Hotel Sherman is president of the new corporation. Gilbert H. Scribner of Winston & Co. and one of the receivers for the Hotel Sherman, is secretary and treasurer. Frank Bering, manager of the Hotel Sherman and also a receiver, is vice president of the new corporation.

Will Seat 3,500.

In the penthouse of the Pabst Blue Ribbon casino, as already announced, will be the Century club. Its cuisine will be supplied from the kitchens of the casino below.

Mr. Byfield yesterday outlined the plans for the elaborate casino. Its several units will have a total seating capacity of 3,500 at one time. The casino proper, will have a dance floor and tables for 700. South of this will be a summer garden, with both table and counter service, and with more moderate prices. There'll also be a "brown derby," a bar, and both covered and partly open dining space.

Revolving Band Stand.

A revolving band stand between the summer garden and the casino is contemplated. According to Mr. Byfield three leading bands will give afternoon and evening concerts. Ben Bernie's orchestra already has been engaged. The others will be announced later.

Work is scheduled to start at once, with completion promised for about May 15. It was learned yesterday that the world's fair management also is financially interested in the project.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, April 5.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was firm today. Following sales late yesterday of about 30,000 bags of Puerto Rican in prompt positions to refiners at 3.00c. There was further interest at this price today, but nothing more was available below 3.05c. Operators showed interest at 3.05c for Cuban with a sale confirmed of 20,000 bags for prompt shipment at this level. Continued firmness in the spot market and possibilities of some adjustments in the tariff were reflected by renewed buying in the futures market, with most positions selling into high ground for the movement.

May contracts which opened at 1.08c advanced to 1.10c, while March sold up from 1.25c to 1.26c with the general market at one time 2 to 4 points net higher. Realizing checked the upturn, but final prices were at or within a point of the best.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
July	1.13	1.15	1.13	1.14	1.12

March	1.22	1.24	1.22	1.23	1.20

Refined was unchanged at 4.30c for fine granulated, but it was reported that second hands were available at around 4.15c.

IF YOU ARE REALLY SERIOUS

About Saving Money This Is Your Opportunity

HUDSON, ESSEX, TERRAPLANE Executives' Cars

HUDSON 1932 4-DOOR SEDAN. A car that has the silky freshness of a new Hudson. Used by one of our executives and driven a very short distance. It is fully equipped, has 5 demountable wood wheels, 5 tires that show no signs of service and we can recommend it to the buyer who is looking for absolute value for every dollar invested. The finish, a beautiful medium brown, flawless and the interior finished in brown broadcloth. Both front and rear seats are adjustable. The body is rattle-proof. Has Hudson's 101 horsepower engine, duoflo engine oiling system, selective free wheeling, airplane type instruments, startix, eye-level instrument panel, diagonal truss-frame. If you would avail yourself of this distinctive motor car and want it at a price that is a substantial saving, we suggest your quick action because it ought to be gone in 48 hours at our sacrifice price.

ESSEX PACEMAKER 1932 CONVERTIBLE COUPE 2-4-P-S. One that was put through as a "special." Finished light brown, brown leather upholstery, fenders to match. Ideal for any season or weather condition. Used by our vice-president only and given the small mileage necessary for special displays where a mot distinguished car was required. Your chance to own and drive a most attractive convertible coupe at a substantial saving, but you must act quickly. Gladly demonstrated by arrangement.

ESSEX TERRAPLANE 1932 4-DOOR SEDAN. A car that will out-start, out-run, out-climb, out-curve and out-stay other cars nearly twice is rated horsepower, ten times its price. Although this model was introduced in August, '32, when others called theirs '33s, this is one of the very latest cars and was used only by one of our executives an driven so little it can hardly be called a "used" car. Has automatic clutch, 5 wire wheels. Finished in the very newest Opal-lescence Bronze, the latest development in motor car finishes. Come in and drive it; it's a car any one would be proud to own. There's a big saving.
